Miss Esther Roehm To Be In Charge Of Annual Program

NEW FEATURES READY

Numerous Gifts Awarded To Persons Attending Sessions

Once again cooking takes the spotlight in Circleville and Pickaway County with the opening of the 1940 Cooking School in Memorial Hall auditorium Wednesday at 2 p. m. This cooking event is being brought to Circleville by the combined cooperation of The Circleville Herald, the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and some of the Circleville district's enterprising merchants.

A staff of experienced personnel is in charge of the School including the food lecturer, Miss Esther Roehm. Miss Dorothy Duncan, local home service representative of the Gas Company, assists Miss Roehm. All physical properties of the Cooking School are in charge of K. A. Williams, who also handles announcements and takes an active part in all programs.

A complete change of program from last year presents a novel and varied series of lectures, demonstrations and dramatic skits which will both entertain and inform the School audiences. The School has acquired a reputation for its unique presentation of the latest cooking trends. During the programs practically every phase of cooking and food preparation will be covered with special emphasis on time-saving methods and the preparation of unusual food servings.

The opening program, "Life Begins at Breakfast", is a different approach to the problem of getting variety and substance into breakfast menus. The program opens in a dramatic manner which holds many surprises for the audience. Every homemaker will find much of interest in this first day's program.

Many New Features

A score of brand new features will enliven the interest of the Cooking School this year. For example, the "magic mirrors" bringing an exciting new touch to all cooking demonstrations. These and other properties are designed to make each program more enter-

BRITISH LUXURY LINER TO START PANAMA CRUISE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 26—The 35,739-ton British luxury liner Mauretania will pick up a British warship escort after passing through the Panama Canal, it was reported today.

The Mauretania, now painted war-time gray and believed enroute to Australia to serve as a troop ship, anchored last night in Cristobal Bay, but was expected to begin passing through the canal today.

Only a few persons were aware of the presence of the great ship off Cristobal after she arrived under cover of darkness, blacked-out save for her running lights.

The vessel will make the trip through the canal as fast as possible, it was anticipated, and is

STATE SECRETARY TAKES 'TURN FOR THE WORSE'

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Secretary of State Earl Griffith, who suffered a heart attack in his office in the statehouse yesterday, took a turn for the worse during the night and was reported in critical condition this morning by attaches of White Cross Hospital.

Griffith, whose ailment was complicated by pulmonary trouble, was placed in an oxygen tent to aid his breathing.

AUDIT ASKED TO CLEAR QUESTION OF RELIEF FUND

The Pickaway County commissioners Monday authorized a complete audit of all funds received from beer, malt, admissions and public utility tax in an effort to clear up any misunderstanding that might exist between the county and City of Circleville concerning the expenditure of this money for relief purposes. The audit will be conducted by an examiner from the office of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, according to Herbert A. Sifferlin, relief examiner, who was in the county Monday.

"If the city thinks that it has some funds due it," one of the commissioners said, "we will do everything possible to bring the fund to light. We are ordering a complete audit of all money coming into the county from these sources."

Council in discussion last Wednesday evening brought up the subject of relief funds with some of the officials declaring that they believed the city should have some money in the county treasury since they had no record of any money being distributed from beer, malt, admissions and public utilities. County officials pointed out, however, that prior to July, 1939, all relief funds had gone into one relief pot from which city and county expenditures for aid were made. No distinction was made between city and county shares, they said.

All parties concerned hope that the audit will determine definitely whether the city should have a relief balance in the auditor's office.

SPRING-LIKE WEATHER AT HAND, FORECASTERS FOR STATE ANNOUNCE

Spring is on the way.

Although Monday night saw the thermometer again plummet below the 10-degree mark in scattered parts of the state, forecasters Tuesday promised fair skies and slowly rising temperature for the remainder of the week.

Spring-like weather, the meteorologists declared, will arrive with the week end.

Circleville's low temperature during the night was 20 degrees, six points higher than Monday's low reading.

The area around Cambridge was hardest hit Monday night with the mercury sliding to eight degrees. Hayesville reported 12 degrees, Toledo and Cleveland had 13, Columbus and East Liverpool 14, Akron 15, Dayton 19, and Cincinnati was one degree above Circleville.

CAR HUNTED AS CLUE IN DEATH OF OHIO YOUTH

Patrolmen Seek Auto Seen In Southern Ohio After Store Robbery

TWO CRIMES CONNECTED

Body Of John Baldwin, 19, Tossed In Front Of Doctor's Home

WEST UNION, O., March 26 — State Highway patrolmen today searched for a black coupe from which the bullet-riddled body of John Baldwin, 19, was thrown outside the office of a West Union physician.

Coroner E. T. Gibboney expressed the belief that the murder of Baldwin and the $150 robbery of the "rolling grocery store" of William McKee was perpetrated by the same men. McKee said he was held up near Baldwin's home, 12 miles northeast of West Union. It was believed Baldwin may have been shot because he was a witness to the holdup and recognized the robbers.

According to a report over highway patrol radio, three men in a light blue car with license tags covered with cardboard, held up the grocery truck at approximately 7:45 p. m. Monday about five miles East of West Union on the Vaughn Chapel road.

Robbery Confirmed

Mrs. Harold Tracy, owner of the store since the recent death of her husband, confirmed the story of the armed robbery of the truck.

Dr. O. T. Sproull, West Union, said that an injured man had been found in front of the doorway of his residence about 8 p. m. and that he had been identified. He died approximately 15 minutes later, and according to Dr. Sproull, cause of the death was undetermined although Baldwin was suffering from a bad flesh wound on the inside of his right thigh. No bones were broken.

At the time of the robbery, Mrs. Tracy notified Adams County sheriff's office and patrolmen at Georgetown. The Adams County sheriff, Mr. Baldridge, and his deputy was unable to act on the case at the time because they were engaged in a murder trial being conducted at the time. However, according to Mrs. Baldridge, they assisted the Georgetown patrolmen on the case as soon as they were free.

Thought To Be Prank

Dr. Sproull said that he did not know who brought the man to his front door, and that at first he thought the man was not injured and that it was the work of some pranksters.

'BOOK' OPERATOR, NUMBER WRITER FORFEIT BONDS

The Circleville treasury was aided by $100 Tuesday when a numbers writer and a race horse book operator forfeited $50 bonds each for hearings in Mayor W. B. Cady's court. They were Clyde Weaver, East Corwin Street, charged with participating in the numbers game, and Paul Carman, South Court Street, who was cited for running a 'book'.

One radio commentator charged the romance merely is a publicity buildup.

Lyle Reports Auto Tag Sales Surpassing 1939

As Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, issued a warning that there will be no extension in the deadline date of March 31 for the purchase of license tags, A. J. Lyle, deputy registrar of motor vehicles in Circleville, said Tuesday that tag sales to date are ahead of last year.

Lyle announced that starting Wednesday evening the Pickaway Motor Sales rooms will be open until 9 o'clock each evening through Saturday.

Sales early Tuesday totalled 1,628. At the same date of 1939 only 1,350 pairs of license plates had been sold. By April 1, 1939 sales amounted to 2,318. The total number of tags sold during 1939 was 3,675.

State authorities warned that drivers without new tags on their cars by April 1 are subject to arrest and a $25 fine. Mayor William Cady said this week that strict enforcement of that regulation has been ordered of the police department.

Local agencies that attempt to make any extension of the deadline will also be subject to arrest as state enforcement officers will move into the offending territories.

BRITISH CRUISER CHASES GERMAN VESSEL AGROUND

LONDON, March 26—Great Britain's intensified naval campaign against Germany produced still more results today as another German vessel ran aground on the Danish coast south of Hirtshals.

Identity of the German vessel was not revealed beyond the statement that it was a sister-ship of the German coke carrier Edmund Hugo Stinnes IV, which was sunk Sunday night by a British submarine off the west coast of Jutland, Denmark.

It was learned that the unidentified German vessel ran aground while attempting to evade pursuing British naval craft.

The fate of this ship marked the second incident in which a German vessel has run aground since the new British naval drive got under way. On Sunday the German steamer Ostpreussen ran aground off Skalderup while en route to Germany with a cargo of coke. A Danish salvage vessel went to its assistance.

British naval circles declined to comment on Copenhagen and other Scandinavian reports regarding the nature of the British naval concentration off the Norwegian coast.

These reports estimated that the British units consisted of several flotillas of light and heavy destroyers in addition to submarines.

Domestic Airlines End Year Without Fatality

WASHINGTON, March 26—American aviation passed another momentous milestone today as domestic airlines of the United States completed one year of operations without a single fatal accident or serious injury to passengers, crew or other persons.

During the 12-month period following the crash of an airliner at Oklahoma City on March 26, 1939 which brought death to eight, the nation's commercial air carriers safely transported more than 2,000,000 persons—an all-time record for one year.

President Roosevelt, Civil Aeronautic Authority officials and aviation leaders joined in special ceremonies marking the occasion.

A message from the White House will be read over a nation-

HOUSE TO HEAR PLANS TO SELL ALLIES PLANES

WASHINGTON, March 26—Full details of the administration's plan to sell late models of airplanes being built for the national defense program to Great Britain and France probably will be revealed tomorrow by Secretary of War Woodring, house military affairs committee members said today.

Decision to relax restrictions on sale of late model planes—restrictions known to have caused a slow-down in Allied plane purchases in this country—reportedly was reached yesterday at a conference between President Roosevelt, Woodring, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Woodring has been called to testify tomorrow when the house military affairs committee opens hearings on sales of planes to foreign powers.

The house investigation was ordered after members charged that the Allies were being sold military plane secrets. President Roosevelt described these charges as "bunk," and said volume sales of aircraft abroad would build up American plant production capacity to a point where U. S. defense needs could be more rapidly filled with later-model, more efficient planes.

Bazooka Bob Burns Denies Love Piracy

But West Coast Man Claims Radio-Film Star Took Wife, Abducted Him

HOLLYWOOD, March 26—"Bazooka Bob" Burns, homely hillbilly funnyman of screen and radio fame, today flatly and emphatically denied charges, contained in a $70,000 damage suit, that he was a "love pirate," and "kidnaper."

The allegations were made by Daniel W. Hoge, former Texas oil man, who knew Burns when the comedian sold street car advertising for a living in Kansas back in 1915.

In his complaint, which he filed late yesterday, Hoge charged Burns had him seized in his Washington home and haled under threats to a downtown Los Angeles office, after he had accused Burns of stealing the affections of his wife, Millie Bernice Hoge.

There, the suit declared, Hoge was forced to sign a release, absolving Burns of the alleged love theft, and promising never to assert the matter again.

At his swank Bel-Air home, Burns snorted his disgust and his denials.

"This is crazy," he exploded. "I never had any more to do with his wife than the man in the moon.

"I think the guy has lost his mind. Imagine me kidnaping anybody."

Burns said that Hoge had threatened several times to sue him, but that he had taken no notice until Hoge went to the offices of his studio, Paramount Pictures, with his charges.

"Paramount lawyers went to the district attorney's office," he

PAROLE DENIED FOR PRESIDENT OF CLOSED BANK

COLUMBUS, March 26 — The State Pardon and Parole Commission today refused to grant a parole to Charles E. Wheland, Uhrichsville, former bank president serving a penitentiary term for the embezzlement of approximately $475,000.

Wheland's case was continued to March 1941, when he again will be considered for a parole.

The 48-year-old former president of the defunct Union Bank of Uhrichsville was at the London prison farm when the parole commission announced the adverse ruling.

Brought to Ohio penitentiary from the Junction City brick plant for the parole hearing a week ago, Wheland was later transferred to the London honor farm where higher type prisoners are confined.

Under the ten-to-30 year sentence imposed by the trial court, Wheland would not have been eligible for a parole until April, 1943.

However, in reviewing another case early this year, the parole commission ruled that a trial judge could not fix a minimum sentence in excess of that provided by statute.

The statutory penalty provided under 54 of the 55 counts in the indictment against Wheland was none-to-30 years. The other count carried a sentence of one-to-five years. Since the sentences were

ONNO MAY LEAVE TOWN, BUT NOT UNTIL SUMMER

For about the twenty-seventh time, Onno Wilson, East Franklin Street, was in the county jail Tuesday charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct. Onno was released from jail Sunday and was picked up again Monday evening.

Onno, who has told Mayor W. B. Cady many times that he would leave Circleville, made the same pledge Tuesday. Mayor Cady replied, though: "You may leave Circleville, but it will not be until sometime in June, because you are fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail."

Berlin Declares British Violating Neutrality With Aircraft

PARIS, March 26 — A huge renewal of activity all along the Western Front, with continuous artillery fire and intensified patrol sorties, was reported in dispatches from the battle zone today.

The fighting broke out with new vigor in the midst of the Easter holidays — the season of peace—as heavy guns pounded the opposing lines from one end of the Franco-German border to the other.

Advices said artillery duels raged yesterday along the entire Western Front and that they were accompanied by numerous German attacks on Allied outposts. These attacks, however, were repulsed with ease, the French reports said.

At one point along the Rhine River sector, three German soldiers launched a small boat in the river, bearing anti-British propaganda slogans.

The soldiers were killed immediately by French rifle fire.

Explosions Heard

Mysterious explosions were seen and heard at various points along the German Siegfried Line, but it was not known whether these blasts resulted from French artillery shells or from "local accidents."

Both the Allied and German air forces were extremely active. French planes carried out night reconnoitering flights deep into Germany. In the daytime the French planes also carried out numerous photographic and artillery control missions over the German lines.

(In London the Evening Standard reported that British warplanes carried out reconnaissance flights over northwestern Germany and over Prague during the night.

(The German war communique today accused Allied planes of "repeatedly violating" the neutrality of the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium and Switzerland while crossing into northern and southwestern Germany.)

LONDON—The British government revealed today that it will refuse to recognize the puppet Wang Ching-Wei regime which Japan proposes to establish in China. In reply to Japanese queries regarding Britain's attitude toward the puppet Wang government, it was learned that the Japanese were informed that "his majesty's government recognizes only the Chiang Kai-Shek regime as the legally constituted government in China."

PARIS — In a new move to "streamline" his government for a maximum war effort, Premier Paul Reynaud today announced that all questions relating to exports hereafter will be concentrated in the office of the minister of commerce.

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is considering formation of a "big five" war cabinet as a means of intensifying Britain's war effort, the London Daily Mail said today. According to the newspaper, the stream-lined cabinet would include himself, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Lord Privy Seal Sir Samuel Hoare.

wide radio hookup by CAA Chairman Robert H. Hinckley from Salt Lake City.

At 3:50 this morning, exactly one year after the Oklahoma City crash, the following message sped over the government's 30,000-mile aviation teletype network from the CAA in Washington:

"Notice to airmen: Heartiest congratulations to all airline, CAA and weather bureau personnel on completion of an entire year of airline safety. This is one of the outstanding achievements in the history of transportation."

This message also was radioed to more than 200 airliners in flight. Some 3,000 passengers aboard these planes were given copies of the message, countersigned by the captains.

In addition to completing their first year of non-fatality operations, the commercial airline established a number of other records.

The 2,000,000 passengers flown during the 12 months travelled approximately 815,000,000 miles. During the same period a year earlier, the airlines carried only 2,380,000 passengers for a travel mileage of 565,000,000 miles.

TEEGARDIN AND JOHNSON ESTATE VALUES LISTED

Inventories filed with Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon Tuesday in the estates of Peter L. Johnson and Florence M. Teegardin totalled $49,949.52 and $58,146.22 respectively.

The bulk of the estate of the late Peter Johnson is in savings accounts and bonds, notes and other securities. Real estate holdings, centered in Ashville, were appraised at $11,033. Details of the inventory are personal goods and chattels, $2,537.65; bonds, notes, securities, $22,000; bank deposits and accounts receivable and other credits, $16,878.49; real estate, $11,033. Appraisal amounted $52,449, but $2,500 was exempted from administration.

Real estate was the largest single item in the state of the late Florence Teegardin. The holdings were concentrated in Madison and Harrison Township and were valued at $25,700. A breakdown of the appraisal shows the following items: personal goods and chattels, $4,307.50; money, $1,142.64; bonds, notes and securities, $19,266.27; accounts receivable $7,729.81; real estate, $25,700.

No part of the $58,146 estate was relieved of administration.

to be served concurrently, thus totaling a sentence of 1-to-30 years, the commission held that Wheland should have been eligible for a hearing a year after he entered the penitentiary.

The banker entered the penitentiary January 2, 1937. Shortly thereafter, he became ill of stomach ulcers. He refused an operation in the prison hospital, and lost over 100 pounds before being removed to Grant Hospital in Columbus for a series of abdominal operations.

Following his convalescence, he was transferred to Junction City, where, officials believed, the sunlight and fresh air would aid his ultimate recovery.

AKRON WOULD TAX KENO, BINGO GAMES' OPERATION

AKRON, March 26—An ordinance to secure revenue for the city by taxing of bingo and keno games and similar amusements was being drafted today by First Assistant Law Director Harold L. Mull, according to Frank Waite, chairman of the Akron city council's finance committee.

Waite said that the operator of each of these games would be assessed a $25 monthly tax and a special one dollar tax for each day the game is operated.

The proposal was expected to arouse strong opposition, particularly from the Akron Ministerial Association which has opposed similar measures in the past. Waite said, however, that he believed there were enough favorable votes in council to pass the ordinance.

said, "and the district attorney's men, or somebody, brought Hoge downtown to find out what it was all about. I was not there, but I was told Hoge said there was nothing to the charges. Then he signed a paper admitting it, and later apologized to me and asked me to forgive him."

The alleged kidnaping took place, according to Hoge's complaint, on December 29, 1938.

Not only did his abductors seize his person, Hoge charged, but also ransacked his house and confiscated important papers.

After he had signed the releases, one of which absolved the Paramount Company, he stated his "life was threatened unless he 'forgot all about this,' with the result he has lived in fear ever since."

He alleged that Burns, whom he first met in Kansas in 1915, renewed acquaintance in Hollywood in 1932 when he began visiting Hoge and his wife.

In 1935, Hoge alleged, his wife left him "because of Burns," and in 1938, Hoge planned to get a divorce, naming Burns, but denied that he had ever threatened the actor with the suit or asked for money.

Hoge declared he signed the releases on advice of an attorney, who told him to sign and take action later.

Burns' first wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher Burns, died of accidental burns in 1936, and on May, 30, 1937, the comedian married his secretary, the former Harriet Foster.

WALLACE WANTS CHANGE IN FARM LOAN PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, March 26 — Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today advocated a sweeping revision of the entire farm loan system—including lower interest rates and government guarantees of bonds—in testimony before the house agriculture committee today.

He indorsed major features of a bill by Committee Chairman Jones (D) Tex., which scraps important parts of the 25-year-old federal bank system.

Emphasizing the need for lower interest rates on farm loans, Wallace approved the policy of the Jones bill to make loans at 3 to 3½ percent.

expected to reach the Pacific early this afternoon.

Shortly thereafter she is expected to contact the warship escort which is believed to be waiting for her at an undisclosed point, presumably to protect her on the long voyage to Australia.

The Mauretania sailed from New York on Wednesday, a day ahead of the giant 81,235-ton British liner Queen Mary, which is too wide to pass through the canal. If the Queen Mary also is bound for Australia, she probably would make the journey via Cape Horn.

Stories of German submarines lurking off the Galapagos Islands, possibly lying in wait for the Mauretania, were believed responsible for the reported warship escort.

MAYOR ORDERS CHURCH VISITS FOR 'REGULARS'

CHILLICOTHE, March 26—A new kind of sentence was handed down by Mayor Harold H. Brown to four consistent repeaters who have been brought in on charges of drunkenness.

Suspending workhouse terms, each was directed by the Mayor to attend any church or Sunday school next Sunday and each Sunday after that for nine weeks.

For the next ten Mondays each of the men must appear before the Mayor with a signed "receipt" from the pastor or the superintendent as evidence of compliance with the Mayor's order. A lapse in the execution of the order will result in a trip to the workhouse.

"Maybe this will work. We've tried every other way," the Mayor said.

KIWANIANS HEAR ADDRESS ON STATE CONSERVATION

Johnny Jones, widely known Columbus sportsman, spoke before the Kiwanis Club Monday evening on the conservation program in Ohio, discussing Governor Bricker's "Conservation Week", which is being observed the week of April 5.

Jones, a guest of Carl Bennett, urged Kiwanians to promote tree planting and to do all they could to help conserve trees.

Another guest at the meeting was Kenneth Holtrey, agricultural instructor of the Walnut school.

Lawrence Snodgrass, employe of the Citizens Telephone Co., became a new member of the club at its meeting Monday evening.

Mothers Told What Not To Do To Crash Films

HOLLYWOOD, March 26 — Here's a tip to mothers if they want to get their children into pictures — don't dress them or make them up to resemble some famous child star.

Instead, let them be their natural selves and don't overtrain them.

This advice from Julius Evans, head of the RKO Radio talent department. He has recently had experience with child actors, and knows whereof he speaks.

He sent out a call for a girl, 7 or 8 years old, for "My Favorite Wife." More than 50 answered.

"Ninety percent of them either had curls after the manner of Shirley Temple or straight Dutch bobs like Jane Withers," Evans reports. "Most of them are stuffed full of schooling and recited lines like parrots. Not natural at all, just elocution.' '

At Bottom Of List

At the bottom of the list was a little girl making her first visit to a studio. She was given some of the lines to read.

"I nearly screamed," Evans says, "as she was exactly like the others, even if she had just come to Hollywood. I said, as politely as I could, I was afraid she wouldn't fit our requirements. When she and her mother started to leave, she turned and thanked me for having given her a hearing. Her voice was perfectly natural then—not elecutionary and I saw a gleam of hope."

Evans had the girl read the part again, this time without flourishes —just in her natural voice.

"If it wasn't for those curls—" he hesitated.

"All little girls have curls, especially children who are professionals," her mother defended.

Signed to Contract

Evans took the child and her mother to see Director Kanin, but before he did, he had the curls combed out and only two short pigtails at the back of her head.

When the gril read the lines for Kanin and he talked with her a short time, he instructed Evans to sign her.

So Mary Lou Harrington of Detroit, Mich., was put under contract, and has forgotten all her cute little elocutionary tricks and her desire to look like Shirley Temple, and is scoring a great hit by simply being natural.

"If mothers would only remember that we're looking for children with personality, not more Shirley Temples, they would find many more chances for their youngsters to really get some place in pictures," Evans sighs. "But they probably won't."

FUEHRER READY TO TALK ABOUT BRENNER CONFAB

LONDON, March 26 — Chancellor Hitler will soon deliver an important speech outlining the results of his recent conversation with Premier Mussolini at Brenner Pass, the London News Chronicle reported from Brussels today.

According to the News Chronicle, Mussolini agreed to enter an understanding with Russia in exchange for permanent peace in the Balkans. In addition, it was stated, Mussolini told Hitler he desires the European war to be limited to the Franco-German front and the neutrality of Belgium and Holland to be respected.

ASHVILLE

Ashville, Phone 79

At the local United Brethren Easter services there were 185 present at Sunday school. At the church service seven new members were received into full membership and the rites of baptism conferred on nineteen, fourteen of these being infants. The church special collection amounted to $264. At Robtown church 76 were present at Sunday school, ten new members united with the church and nine baptisms.

—Ashville—

This kind of winter weather doesn't fit in so well with dwelling house construction but it's fine for doing the cost figuring. Talked to some of the supply and building men yesterday and they told us there would be five new dwellings for sure and several more in the talking stage. So the prospects for that dozen-for-sure new dwellings for the season, gets brighter each day.

—Ashville—

Mrs. Lida Brinker recently received a letter from her nephew, William Lane, located in New York City. He is employed by a law firm there which has to do with maritime business. Our Mr. Lane is an Ashville High graduate and also of the O. S. U. law department. During his school years his vacation periods were spent shipping on the seas, having crossed the Atlantic 25 times according to his own statement. And while doing all this ocean travel made all the ports of the world except four. Among the things the letter contained, hesaid: "I saw the Queen Elizabeth come to New York harbor and it was a sight I shall never forget."

—Ashville—

Easter services at the Ashville Methodist Church were marked by special music with Mrs. Walter Hedges and Mrs. R. S. Hosler, and Chester Hedges and Dick Welch taking the solo parts. Children baptized were Phyllis and Edith Bozman, and infants James Lamb Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Hoover and Larry Beatty Fullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fullen.

—Ashville—

At Hedges Chapel Methodist Church the rites of baptism were administered to four children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams. They were Betty Irene, Wanda Pauline, George Allen and Walter Lee. The following were received into the membership of the church, Dorwin Eugene Hay, Joe Hilbert Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holtrey, Hugh Lamb and Ellen Ruth Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wharton and sons George and Billy. Approximately one hundred people participated in the Communion service. Special music was rendered by a Junior Choir and a Youth Choir directed by Miss Elizabeth Reber, a double quartette sang "Christ the Lord is Risen Today" and Metta Mae Hickman rendered a violin offertory solo. Mrs. Martin Cromley was at the piano.

—Ashville—

At the regular Good Friday Communion Service in the Ashville Methodist Church there were approximately eighty communicants. Miss Althea Ballinger of South Bloomfield was the soloist at this service. The Rev. T. A. Ballinger and the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh assisted the pastor Rev. Walter Peters in the service.

—Ashville—

Homer S. Reber has been designated chairman of the White Cross Hospital Loyalty movement and has called a meeting at the Ashville Church next Sunday at 2 p. m. Dr. J. L. Spindler will serve as local treasurer, and Rev. H. O. Harbaugh is the local hospital counsellor. Those serving on the teams are John Sark, A. B. Courtright, the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh, H. E. Swayer, W. O. Dountz, T. R. Acord, T. W. Purcell, Mrs J. L. Spindler. Hedges Chapel, Wilbur Brinker, Kenneth Holtrey, Glen Hay, Frank Dill, Gerald Solt, Wayne Hines, Martin Cromley, Hugh Solt and Sam Brinker. C. T. Hay, Russell Hedges, William Scothorn. The campaign will extend from April 1 to 10.

—Ashville—

Ashville Methodist Church was dedicated April 25, 1890 and will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary on Sunday, April 28. Committees were named by the Official Board of the Church for this anniversary as follows:—invitation, Mrs. Blanche Morrison and Mrs. J. L. Spindler, program, Rev. H. O. Harbaugh, Mrs. R. S. Hosler, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Scothorn and Miss Ruth Courtright; decorating, M. M. Hott, H. E. Swayer, Mrs. S. Beckett, Mrs. T. W. Purcell, dinner, The Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. H. E. Swayer, president, reception, A. B. Courtright, Mrs. Blanche Morrison, John Sark, Dr. J. L. Spindler, Mrs. Lyda Brinker.

Easter was observed as a day of joy and gladness in First English Lutheran Church, Ashville. In his sermon, the pastor, the Rev. H. D. Fudge, stressed the significance of Christ's Resurrection, and called on the worshippers for a renewal of faith and Christian life. The service was enhanced by beautiful floral offerings and burning candles which beautifully bedecked the altar, and by special music by the robed choir. The choir, under the direction of Miss Gretchen Plum, sang "The Resurrection Light" by Wooler. The service was climaxed with the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

Preceding the Easter Service, Palm Sunday had been observed together with Confirmation, and Maundy Thursday with Holy Communion. Those confirmed on Palm Sunday were: Maurice Martin, Harold and Gene Tosca.

GOOD WILL

ONE of the most valuable assets a railroad can have is the good will of the public it serves.

In building good will, it is essential, of course, that the railroad provide an adequate, efficient transportation service. The constant, frank presentation of the true facts about the railroad—its problems and what it is attempting to do—is another vital factor. But so far as the Norfolk and Western Railway is concerned, genuine public good will grows from something more lasting and significant. And that is: a sympathetic understanding and a common interest which actually exists between the railway and the public, plus mutual respect and confidence.

The Norfolk and Western is what you might call a "home-town" railroad. For during the 101 years of its existence, the railway has grown up with hundreds of communities along its lines. The people of those communities have played a very definite part in the development of the railroad, and the railroad has played a very definite part in the development of the communities. They live and work together as neighbors and friends. They understand and respect each other. Each has a sincere interest and pride in the progress and achievements of the other. These things are the essence of genuine good will.

The Norfolk and Western cherishes the good will of its patrons and friends, and of the communities it is privileged to serve. The railway will always strive sincerely and diligently to merit that good will.

SELLING WAR PLANES

AS regards the sale of American airplanes to the Allies, which is coming to be an argumentative question, we might as well face facts. Assuming that we're determined to keep out of war, the facts now visible seem to be about like this.

Air combat and bombing have come to be very important and may eventually dominate the war.

The Nazis so far seem stronger in the air than Britain and France.

Britain and France hope to gain air supremacy and keep it by getting all the planes they need from America, and they have enough funds to pay for such air supremacy for perhaps two years.

We have an acknowledged right to sell them planes for cash, to take away at their own risk, just as we would do with any other belligerent that would come and get them.

Some people, both foreign and American, are beginning to object to this. Some of them object for the benefit of Germany, but most of them object honestly for patriotic reasons.

If we stop selling the Allies war planes, they may get licked. With enough planes, they will probably win.

So it seems to boil down to a question whether we want to take the chance of living in the kind of world it might be if the Allies were licked.

TALENTED YOUNG MUSICIANS

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI, famous orchestra conductor, has been testing young musicians for the big orchestra he plans to take on a South American tour during the coming summer. He is reported as delighted with what he finds. Some of the people he has heard show "amazing promise."

This is interesting, because the principal purpose of Mr. Stokowski's good will tour is to give employment and encouragement to young musicians of marked talent. He believes there are plenty of them who will make the most of the opportunity he offers.

After the summer trip he hopes to keep the orchestra intact and eventually to tour the United States. As the members grow in experience they will be expected to return to their home states to start other youth orchestras, while younger musicians take their places in his organization.

Mr. Stokowski should have no difficulty in filling the ranks of his proposed 109-piece orchestra. Musical education has been excellent in recent years, with more public school youngsters being taught both how to listen to music and how to produce it. The Stokowski orchestra will focus attention on this work and give the movement fresh impetus. Before long it may mean more good orchestras and more jobs for good musicians all over the country.

As for war sympathies, we're neutral on Sundays after church, but able to do justice to dictators the rest of the week.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

FARLEY INTENDS SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON—It is no longer any secret that Jim Farley is definitely lined up with the anti-third termers. But not generally known is the fact that Jim actually plans a show-down with Roosevelt regarding the President's own plans, and this showdown will come before the Democratic convention at Chicago.

Jim made up his mind to do this about the same time he issued his recent Massachusetts bombshell labeled, "My name will be presented to the national convention."

Democratic insiders had known for some time that Farley was cold to the idea of the President running again, but he sidestepped a positive commitment. He always declared that he was confident the President had no intention to seek reelection.

In the past month, with Roosevelt slates being entered in various states under obvious White House guidance, Farley's aloofness has hardened to out-and-out hostility. From being on the fence he has slid over definitely to the anti-third term group.

Not only will Jim aggressively fight a third term, but he is prepared to denounce it publicly. However, he will not talk out until he has had a showdown with Roosevelt, at which time he will insist on a categoric "yes" or "no" answer.

If there is no reply, or an unsatisfactory one, then Jim is prepared to express his opposition publicly. He is aware that such a statement would play into the hands of the GOP and that it may mean finale for him politically, but he feels that he owes it to the Democratic Party and the country frankly to state his views.

The Massachusetts statement was Farley's opening gun in his plan to smoke out Roosevelt. From now on, regardless of their close ties and their still warm personal friendship (as far as Farley is concerned), they are two rival candidates.

NOTE—Farley was absolutely sincere when he declared that he was "in no combination with anyone." Recent reports that he was secretly allied with Garner are unfounded. Privately Jim thinks Garner is getting nowhere fast. His own personal ticket is Hull and Farley.

FARM-DIPLOMAT WALLACE

Following publication of a poll showing increased farm support for Henry Wallace, a newsman asked him: "Does this have any effect on your personal political ambitions, Mr. Secretary?"

Wallace evaded: "I noticed the poll indicated Pennsylvania was 51 percent Republican."

"Mr Secretary," persisted the newsman, "did you hear my question?"

"No," said Wallace, grinning. Then he added, "I'm trying to give you something of real interest."

CAPITAL CHAFF

When the three trustees of Associated Gas and Electric undertook to take over the holding companies of the billion-dollar utility system, they found no office, no clerks, no books—just two safety deposit boxes in Wilmington, Del., and Ithaca, N. Y. . . . Lieutenants of Senator Stylus Bridges saw an omen in the defeat of Governor Francis Murphy for a place on the New Hampshire delegation to the Republican convention. Murphy is credited with third-term ambitions, but like Roosevelt has refused to declare himself . . . Rest—Great Remedy for a Damaged Heart

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A PHYSICIAN who finds a case of valvular disease of the heart is duty-bound to warn the patient that he should not exert himself unduly. This is good doctrine and common sense doctrine because, naturally, the heart with valvular disease has a mechanical defect and, therefore, has not as much reserve power as a normal heart.

The physician, however, is not greatly fooled as to what his patient will do about his advice. It is all right to say to a boy 12 or 14 years old that he mustn't run too much, but if the boy is playing baseball and he hits the ball, he is going to run down to first base. This often unduly alarms parents, but a great deal of this alarm is unnecessary. The doctor is not so much worried when his advice is disregarded in this respect because he knows that the heart muscle is a wonderful organ and is capable of doing a great deal more than might be expected of it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

We have a remarkable example of the reserve power of the heart muscle in a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It describes a marathon runner who performed a great many strenuous athletic feats, although he had a double valvular disease of the heart.

Advised Against Racing

The runner was 32 years old. He was found by the medical examiners of the athletic board to have heart murmurs which indicate valvular disease, and he was warned against participation in the race. He replied that he had competed in similar races on many occasions without any ill effects. He entered the race and ran a marathon of approximately 26 miles in three hours and two minutes, when the weather was intensely warm and at an altitude of approximately 6,000 feet above sea level. His condition after the race was good and he recovered general bodily equilibrium in a shorter time than his competitors.

A case of a different kind reported in the same journal indicates how completely the heart can heal after a severe, acute attack of coronary disease. Physicians usually order a patient with coronary disease to rest at least six weeks in bed. Time hangs heavy, especially after one gets to feeling better, and such a patient wants to be allowed out of bed. This case is a good example of what strict adherence to the rules will do.

Plenty of Rest

After he had been in bed in the hospital for seven weeks, he remained quietly at home for another month, and then spent six weeks in Nassau, mostly lying on the beach. After this he began very unusual physical exertion. He went airplaning; he went skiing; he engaged in swimming and dancing. He traveled by airplane to Europe, a trip which included 19 hours of continuous flying at an altitude of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet.

I certainly don't wish to be understood as advocating such a regimen for anybody, but there are some lessons to be learned. One is that the heart has great powers of recuperation and great reserve powers. The other is that the great remedy for the heart is rest. Even with such serious damage as comes from a coronary occlusion, the patient, by giving the heart several months of complete rest, gave the soft spot an opportunity to heal and this patient appears to have as good a heart as anybody as a consequence.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. W.: "I have heard that going bareheaded in chilly weather causes sinus trouble. Is there any truth in this?"

Answer: You are just as likely to hear that going bareheaded cures sinus trouble. Cold may be a factor in sinus trouble, but a remote one.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

C. A. Leist, North Pickaway Street, purchased the property of Harry West, West Main Street, for $5,000 at sheriff's sale.

George Beers of Commercial Point, who had been in the eighth district office of the sales tax division, was transferred to Pickaway County to work with E. W. Weiler.

All physicians of the county were notified to watch for a corn thief seeking treatment for gun shot wounds after being "peppered" on the farm of Howard Hughes, north of South Bloomfield.

10 YEARS AGO

W. I. Spangler, a resident of Tarlton, cast his hat in the ring as candidate for state senator from the Tenth District, subject to the Democratic primaries.

The City of Circleville was made defendant in Common Pleas court by Marvine Riffle through her next friend, Harry W. Riffle, for the sum of $5,000. The petition states the girl suffered serious injuries to her right arm at the elbow joint in a fall on the sidewalk in front of C. E. Moeller's dry goods store, East Main Street.

Miss Anne Bennett, a student at the Birmingham School for Girls, Birmingham, Pa., spent her spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bennett, South Court Street.

25 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Newhouse left for Pueblo, Col., where they planned to make their home with his sister, Mrs. Eda Holderman, widow of John Holderman, formerly of this county.

The public sale of horses and cattle of Cary Short held on his farm in Wayne Township amounted to $10,887.40. Fifty head of horses and 71 head of cows were sold.

Miss Mary Roberts, who fell and broke her arm several months previously, resumed her duties as clerk at Moeller's Dry Goods Store.

Up to find the windows coated with ice and a wintry wind a-blow. Everyone asking the same question about Spring. I don't know the answer, either. Wish I did. Found the post deserted and much activity at the plant where everyone was busy polishing all angles of the Cooking School that opens Wednesday in Memorial Hall. Quite a show it promises to be this year with record breaking attendance. This is the third year for the event and each time it has proven more popular than before.

On the desk a little glass jug containing grasshoppers picked up when plowing by O. A. Lanman on his farm in Walnut Township. Earl, his son, brought them in, giving me a real surprise. I thought hoppers were hot weather insects, and here they are popping about in such weather as this. Green, brown and red ones.

Wonder why the district conservation officer's headquarters remains in Columbus. Circleville is more centrally located, rents are cheaper here. And then, too, finding an official's office in this ville is less difficult than finding one in Columbus. Must put that question up to my old hunting and fishing friend, Dr. C. P. Kite of the state conservation commission. Ought to get something out of him for the hours I have spent at night helping him find Baldy, his gun shy coon dog. Or in memory of Old Sing, a dog I still think was part coon because he thought so much like one.

Remember one night when Doc and I were out after coons and we stopped to ask permission to hunt on the farm of a friend of Doc's, a certain man named Schroeyer. Doc introduced me to the farmer and I said it was a pleasure to meet him. "Oh, dot's all right," said the farmer, and I just had no reply for that one.

Ever hear of Pickaway Pinks? They are a breed of chickens peculiar to this county alone. Had the strangest pink feathers, and many persons passing the farm of Frank Ward, down near Tarlton, stop and marvel at them. Some stop for a setting of eggs, but never do the eggs produce pink fowls. Only Frank has them. I know the secret. It is a dusting box for the chickens, and the box contains venetian red, a powdered coloring matter.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, rich young jeweler, at a party at the Rio Vista clubhouse. Captain of Detectives Clyde McDonald is convinced of my innocence, but young Coroner Silver still doubts me. The coroner is surprised to find that hobnailed boot prints in the garden where Markham was killed match prints found outside the house where a boy commits suicide the following midnight. The boy was the cook's helper at the Rio Vista club.

A man was sitting at the table, facing me.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"I TOLD YOU the servants were mixed up in this!" exclaimed Captain McDonald, triumphantly. "We should have suspected something when Pappini, the cook, said his helper went home early."

I thought of the weeping mother downstairs. "The boy was innocent," I told the officers. "Obviously he killed himself because he had fallen into the power of this man who tossed the note of warning to him through the window."

Coroner Silver agreed with me. "I think Strickland has something there, Captain. The boy had kept his drug addiction from his mother. This man knew of it, and was holding it over him to force him into a life of crime. Rather than have his mother learn his terrible secret, or become a criminal, he chose this way out."

The captain shook his head. "Good theory, but we should stick to facts. This is too early for theories. The fact is that this boy is linked, somehow, to the killing of Alfred Markham. You can't get away from that."

The boy's name was Robert Williams, we discovered. He was 18 years old. There was little more to be learned from studying his room and his belongings.

"We can question his mother tomorrow," the captain said. "Might as well call it a night. Time we all got some sleep."

Riding back to the police station, after picking up Sullivan and his equipment, Captain McDonald asked, "By the way, Silver, since you are so sure the servants at the Rio Vista club weren't mixed up in Markham's death, just what is your theory?" There was a note of sarcasm in his voice, but the coroner didn't seem to notice it.

"There was a quarrel," said Coroner Silver slowly. He was looking at the river front lights we were passing, but without seeing them. "It took place in the rose arbor. The assailant, I believe, tried to use Strickland's pocket knife. Perhaps it was stolen out of Strickland's pocket earlier in the night. Markham grabbed his arm, and the knife dropped. The killer then grabbed the stool and swung it over his head to knock Markham to the ground. The stool caught on the wire and broke it. Perhaps the men fell together. They would be unbalanced. The killer grabbed the mallet off the ground where they fell, knocked Markham unconscious and, to make doubly sure, stabbed him with a dagger of some sort. He threw the dagger and the wire and the stool into the river. He was in a hurry and he either forgot or couldn't find the pocket knife, and the mallet. He dragged the body along the walk toward the north wing of the building, where the moonlight was bright. He wanted to search the clothes, but he was interrupted. Whatever he was after—perhaps the jewels—he never found, for at that moment Jerry Montcalm opened the door and the killer ducked for cover."

The captain brought the car to a halt by the police station. "Very cleverly thought out," he admitted, "but how do you explain all this struggle without some sort of cry that would have been heard by the people inside the clubhouse?"

"They were playing the piano and singing," the coroner reminded him. "And a brave man seldom makes an outcry. He is too busy fighting."

"I have another objection to the theory," I told Coroner Silver. "You think the killing was done in a fit of anger, yet you say the body was dragged along the walk to be searched. That would indicate premeditation."

The coroner nodded. "There are weak spots in my theory—there would be in any theory."

The captain snorted. "That's why I say 'stick to facts.'"

"You have a theory of your own," the coroner told him. "You say Markham's death was planned in advance, with the servants—"

"Gentlemen!" I protested. "It is nearly two o'clock. Don't you think we should—"

"Right," agreed the captain. "Here comes the newsboy with The Morning Eagle. We can take it to bed with us."

We each bought a copy from the gray-haired, hunchback "boy." Captain McDonald opened his immediately, but Coroner Silver kept his folded and offered to drive me to my Laurel street studio. I accepted with thanks, although I, too, was curious to see what Belzer had written.

A large man lounged in the shadows of the doorway adjoining min· My first thought was that he was the man who had sent me the threat, but when he and the coroner exchanged a friendly word, I knew he was my police guard.

Coroner Silver drove away. I climbed my own steps and shut the night on the outside of the door.

The hall light was dim, but the headlines and first few paragraphs of the newspaper story in my hands were in large, black type:

"KIDNAPER in MARKHAM MURDER PLOT!

"Bound hand and foot, and gagged, William Strickland, portrait painter who has been a suspect in the Alfred Markham murder case, was rescued from the river yesterday a half mile above the Rio Vista club, where the popular young jeweler was found stabbed to death Tuesday night.

"Interviewed exclusively by The Morning Eagle, Strickland told of being slugged and kidnaped by a large man whose face he never was given a chance to see. The attack, he said, took place an hour after Markham's death, in the Rio Vista garden, only a few feet from the spot where the body of the jeweler had been found. Strickland said his attacker bound him and took him upstream by rowboat.

"No reason for the kidnaping was disclosed. Strickland said his captor was careful to reveal nothing that would identify him. Nor could the victim tell where he had been taken, except to say that it appeared to be a large, half-deserted warehouse on the river's edge."

The report went on to tell how I managed to roll back into the boat and drift away, how the kidnaper had shot at me, and how to escape a shot that was almost certain to be fatal, I had purposely upset the boat and taken my slim chance in the water.

"Luckily," the reporter said, "an Eagle reporter who was giving thorough coverage to the case, was on the river in a motor boat."

No mention was made of Louise Markham, for which I knew she would be grateful.

I folded the paper and started up the stairs, quietly so as not to disturb my landlady. I felt a little more kindly toward Belzer. He had made it quite clear that I could not identify my assailant, which should satisfy the fellow that he didn't have to kill me to remain unknown.

Nevertheless, I was glad there was a police guard at my front door. The kidnaper might not subscribe to The Morning Eagle.

There was the disturbing thought, too, that Belzer had recognized my danger and had purposely emphasized my inability to identify the boatman. Suppose the fellow decided it was a trick? Suppose it only served to make certain his suspicion that I was dangerous to him?

I paused at the head of the stairs. What about the rear entrance to this house? Was it guarded? I didn't remember that Captain McDonald had spoken of assigning more than one man to the job.

Resolutely I opened my door, snapped on the light. My heart almost stopped. A man was sitting at the table, facing me.

Hints on Etiquette

If a divorced woman finds herself at a social function as co-guest with her former husband and his new wife, she greets them courteously and pleasantly, just as she does the other guests. Any display of animosity is out of place.

Today's Horoscope

The opposition of his or her elders will hinder the plans of the person whose birthday is today, particularly those plans concerning the opposite sex. The health of the women of such a person's household should be safeguarded. The child born on this date will be reserved, dignified, thoughtful, but also passionate and possessing strong emotions. In these latter qualities lies the danger to the career unless they are overcome early.

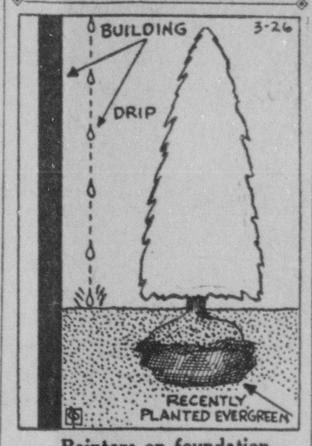
Today's Garden-Graph



Pointers on foundation plantings

When planning a foundation planting about a new house the first thing to be done is to put on a "clean-up" campaign. This often involves removing any heavy, clay sub-soil dug up during excavating of the basement; cleaning out all broken bricks, mortar and other building debris. If to top soil itself turns out to be rather poor, it is advisable to remove it for a depth of 12 to 15 inches and replace with good loam.

Do not make the common mistake of planting evergreens and shrubs too close to the house. Such plants are usually small when set out, but they soon grow larger and the crowding distorts their natural shape. When plantings are set too close to the foundations of a house are also harmed because the overhanging eaves keep off rain in summer, while in winter, when the eaves' troughs freeze, the overflow drips on to the plantings, freezes on them, after which the winter sun is apt to cause burning.

THE BACKGROUND coat, like the background frock, is an important feature of the comprehensive wardrobe. A well-cut coat serves as the background for a jeweled flower or amusing lapel gadget, for a gay chiffon scarf or furs. Here's one smart model, in a crinkly blue. Collarless, it closes over a chiffon scarf with four leather clips. The shaped yoke is outlined by a narrow fold terminating at the vertical seams on either side of the waist. The patch pockets are also outlined by a fold. The skirt has an inverted flared pleat center back.

ROBERTS FLAYS COURT DECISION IN BANK CASE

Justice Declares Doctrines Established By Judge Brandeis Forgotten

4-3 VOTE IS ANNOUNCED

Drive Against Trusts Wins Support As Contract Is Held Invalid

WASHINGTON, March 26—A declaration by Justice Owen J. Roberts that the Supreme Court has rejected important doctrines laid down by the famous liberal jurist, Louis D. Brandeis, aroused widespread discussions in congressional and legal circles today.

It raised again the question of whether the high court, with its New Deal majority, will follow the famous Holmes-Brandeis liberal philosophy, or go even "to the left" of it.

The declaration of Roberts was made in a dissenting opinion in a 4 to 3 decision in which the court ruled that national banks in Washington State had power to pledge assets to secure deposits of government agencies such as the Merchant Fleet Corporation.

Roberts declared that the majority overrode decisions delivered by Brandeis, before he retired from the court, in which he said that national banks could not give security to secure private deposits and that the comptroller of currency lacked power to order it in absence of a Congressional Act.

Principle Violated

"Paradoxically, the opinion of the court, while recognizing the authority, in the field of banking, of Mr. Justice Brandeis, rejects the fundamental principle of the opinions," said Roberts, twitting his fellow justices. He was joined in his dissent by Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds.

The majority of opinion, of which Roberts compained, was delivered by Justice Felix Frankfurter, longtime friend of Brandeis. He characterized Brandeis as an authority in the field of banking and asserted that his (Frankfurter's) ruling did not conflict with decisions by Brandeis.

Roberts refused to accept this view. He said that Brandeis ruled that specific authority of congress was necessary, while the majority opinion ruled that the comptroller had the authority in the absence of a special congressional act.

Trust Drive Aided

A notable unanimous decision of the court yesterday strengthened the anti-trust drive of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold. The decision may open up a wide field for prosecution of corporations holding patent monopolies.

The court held invalid contracts between the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, holding patents for Ethyl gasoline, and 11,000 jobbers, on the ground that they were used to fix prices and suppress competition.

WAR VETERAN CHANGES PLANS ABOUT SUICIDE

WASHINGTON, March 26—William J. Scott, 47-year-old World War veteran of Jenkintown, Pa., planned to commit suicide today, but something caused him to change his plans and take his life a day early.

Police found Scott, wounded, in the basement of his sister's home. On a table was a diagram depicting the swimming pool of a Capital High School, a nearby tree and bench.

"On Tuesday morning, March 26, you will find my dead body on this space," said one of several notes written by Scott.

The veteran died last night in Walter Reed Hospital, as the result of three bullets he fired into his own body.

No one knew why he changed his plans.

F. D. R. A COMMUNIST?; NO, SAYS DAILY WORKER

NEW YORK, March 26—In an editorial entitled "No, thanks" the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, today asserted any suggestion that President Roosevelt is a member of the Communist party is an "insult" to the Reds.

The editorial referred to the disclosure before the Dies committee that a member had used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" in enrolling in the party.

"Thinking of him today, in his present role as the chief of the imperialist war makers attempting to drag our country into the European war and, quite consistently, resorting to the Sherman anti-trust law in an attempt to exterminate the American trade unions as a part of the same reactionary war policy, the suggestion that he is a member of the Communist party is an insult," the Daily Worker said of the President.

Healther Discusses The Five Greatest Killers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another in a series of articles provided by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, for the education of the public.

In all of our articles on Health, we have tried to stay within the realm of Preventive Medicine. The specific duty of Public Health officials, is to preserve health and prolong life. In our previous publications, we have dealt with "preventable" diseases and more particularly with those communicable diseases which are caused by micro-organisms.

We have emphasized the numerous diseases of childhood and have pointed out the fact that fewer children, today, die from these diseases than in former years. We have produced figures to show that the reduction of infant and child mortality has been the cause of prolonging the life span by 20 years in the past century. The death rate in Ohio has been reduced from 13.7 in 1910 to 10.2 per 1000 population in 1938. Since 1900 the death rate from all causes has gone down 34 percent, but in this same period of time, the death date from all communicable diseases has dropped 70 percent.

The great killers of yesterday are not the great killers of today. Yellow fever, cholera, smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria are not dreaded plagues of this generation. Tuberculosis which not many years ago held third place among the killers is now down in seventh place.

Pneumonia (all forms) showed the greatest decline in the number of deaths, there being 1621 fewer deaths, in Ohio in 1938 than in 1937. The reason for the decline in death rates of the above named diseases, is that, scientific knowledge was put to work to fight them, and in a great measure to prevent them.

Now let us take time to examine the vital statistics of Ohio, for 1938. We find that five great killers, namely, heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemmorrhage, accidental deaths, and kidney disease, were responsible for 61 percent of all deaths in Ohio in 1938 while in 1920 they were responsible for only 40 percent of all deaths. We find also, in examining our statistics, that while the average span of life has been extended 20 years, that after the age of 35 years, life has not been extended a single year in the last two generations and that between the ages of 50 and 70, the life expectancy is not so great as it was a century ago.

There is a reason for this. It is because the death rate from these five great killers is on the increase. This bring up the question: "Are these five great killers preventable?"

Can heart disease, cancer, cerebral hommorhage, accidental death and kidney disease be prevented? Is these any immunity or any preventive measures that can be applied to these causes of death? On good authority, the answer can be given: "Death from all these causes can be delayed 5 to 20 years and in some cases prevented entirely."

Here is the Prescription

Go to a doctor for a complete overhauling and then repeat the procedure at least once a year. If you are past 40, you should have a thorough going over every six months. It is a known fact, however, that 30 percent of all persons over 40 have never had a complete physical examination, and 40 percent will not average an examination once in five years, and yet the people of the U. S. are spending $500,000,000 annually for patent medicines and nostrums that do more harm than good. Most people consult a physician only when they are sick and in many cases when it is too late for any hope of cure.

On the other hand, there are many people who have these periodic examinations. These wise people have convinced themeselves that guess work is poor policy. They know that only by a thorough examination can the hidden symptoms of these "killers" be found. (Accidental deaths excepted.)

For example, upon examination, the urine may show an excess of albumen, it may be that a high blood pressure may be discovered, a focal infection of teeth, sinuses or tonsils may be uncovered, or a faulty heart sound may be heard. The blood count or the x-ray examination may reveal many hidden pathologic conditions. Your doctor may discover that your arteries are hardening, or that you have too much fat over your abdomen or around your heart. He may discover a beginning cancer or other tumor or an enlarged prostate. In short the periodic examination permits of an early diagnosis. Early diagnosis and prompt medication, or surgery, or scientific advice, will add years to your life.

Keeping well and prolonging life need not be a burden. The plan is easy and effective if we will follow the simple "rules of health" and obey the "Laws of Nature" and rely on "Science" to do the rest.

WAVE OF SUICIDES FINDS THREE PERSONS VICTIMS

COLUMBUS, March 26—Two women and a man were dead today in what Coroner Edward E. Smith termed a wave of suicides due to ill health.

Lucille Striebel, 24, hanged herself in an office on the eighth floor of the Atlas Building.

Mrs. May F. Mills, 58, fired a bullet through the roof of her mouth in the bedroom of her home. Her body was found by her husband.

Samuel Garner, 83-year-old father of Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph Garner, shot himself as he lay in bed at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Casey.

Dr. Smith said he would return suicide verdicts in all cases.

COURT OF HONOR BEGINS AT 7:30 FOR BOY SCOUTS

High School Social Room To Be Scene Of Big Gathering

MANY TROOPS TAKE PART

District Flag To Be Given To Organization With Best Percentage

Two hundred Boy Scouts, their leaders, parents and friends will gather in the Social room of the Circleville High School Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock for the quarterly district-wide court of Honor ceremony.

Troops from Kingston, New Holland, Williamsport, Five Points, Tarlton and the four troops in Circleville are expected to be on hand for the evening program, according to word from the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, district chairman of Scout Advancement, and his committee composed of Joe Adkins, Circleville, Guy Cline, Ashville and Dr. Robert Hedges, Circleville.

Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon will be the speaker of the evening. The Advancement Committee will take care of the presentation of awards to Scouts who have advanced to Second, First, Star and Life Ranks.

The coveted district flag will be awarded to the troop with the highest percentage of attendance by Dr. J. J. Baker, neighborhood commissioner.

The second and first class ranks in scouting are awarded to those Souts who meet the requirements in cooking, firebuilding, signalling, first aid, thrift and other skills while the merit badge program leading to Star, Life and Eagle ranks is made up of more than 100 subjects. Men who are professionals in the various fields give of their time to counsel with scouts working for merit badges.

Keep a notebook of the seeds and plants you start this spring. It will be invaluable as a guide in future ordering.

LANNY ROSS

Mrs. Richard Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., will be Lanny Ross' leading lady Wednesday 2 p. m. CBS, when Lanny sings "Silver Threads Among the Gold," the song that taught Mrs. Loder and her husband to speak English many years ago.

The story harks back to 1908 when Mr. and Mrs. Loder and their baby came to America unable to speak a word of English. Mr. Loder got a job in a bakery and the couple bought a victrola. The first record they played was "Silver Threads," and they played it over and over until they knew and could pronounce every word of it. As their savings permitted, they bought other records and with each wax disc, their knowledge of the language increased. Today the Loders are solid citizens. They have three grown children and Mrs. Loder writes Lanny: "Every day we thank God for the great privilege of being permitted to raise our family and grow old in a country of peace and contentment."

OSCAR LEVANT

The erudite Oscar Levant, of "Information Please!" fame, will make a flying trip to the coast to appear on Bing Crosby's Music Hall Thursday, March 28, when Bing also plans to entertain Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall as his guests. Such old hands in the shindigs over the NBC red network at 10 p. m. as Bob Burns, the Music Maids, Ken Carpenter, and John Scott Trotter will all be on hand.

Levant, no slouch with the English language himself, will vie with Bing in a bit of heavy verbiage. The pianist, who recently author, plays George Gershwin's "Prelude Number 2."

The gallivanting Errol Flynn will introduce Brenda Marshall, pretty young motion picture star, to Bing and Bob. Miss Marshall is in Flynn's new Movie, "The Sea Hawk."

Bing takes a vocal workout on "Give a Little Whistle," "Yours Is My Heart Alone," "Ooh, What You Said," "Missouri Waltz," and for his 1860 memory number, the familiar "Old Black Joe."

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

When Ezra Stone, star of "The Aldrich Family," appeared as a guest on Col. Stoopnagle's MBS program he became the first outsider on the program since the series started.

Kay Kyser's "College of Musical Knowledge" starts its third year on the air April 3.

It's not certain now whether Peter Van Steeden, the bandleader, will go to Hollywood with Fred Allen. His new duties as conductor of "Mr. District Attorney," which starts April 4 on the NBC-Red network at 8 p. m. may keep him in New York.

April 28 is the starting date of "Adventures of Ellery Queen" in place of "Screen Guild Theatre" on CBS Sundays at 7:30 p. m. The stories are written by Manfred B. Lee and Frederic Dannay.

In addition to starting their second year with the Bing Crosby Thursday night air show, the "Music Maids" this week wind up their busiest year in pictures, having done vocal work in a score of films for seven different companies.

Denise Connor, who has been handling publicity for "Joyce Jordan—Girl Interne" is getting married in two weeks. She's wedding an interne.

"Symphony No. 2 in E Minor," written by Meredith Wilson, radio conductor of "Good News of 1940," will be given its premiere playing by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra on April 4 and 5, with the famed conductor, Albert Coates, on the podium. The symphony, sub-titled "The Missions of California," is purely American in theme, its four movements dealing with "Father Junipero Serra," "San Juan Batista Mission," "San Juan Capistrano Mission" and "El Cmaino Real," the ancient road of the mission fathers. NBC-Blue airs it coast-to-coast.

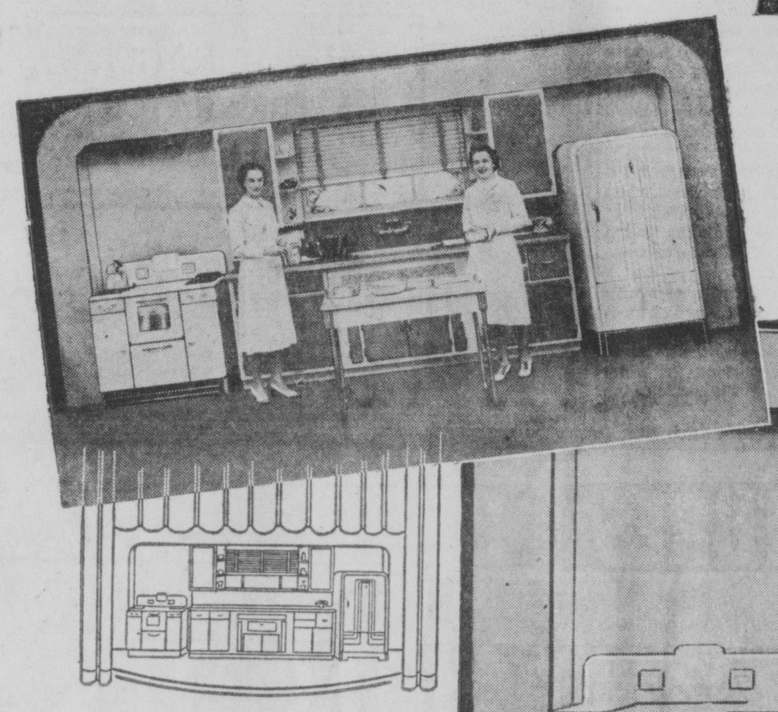
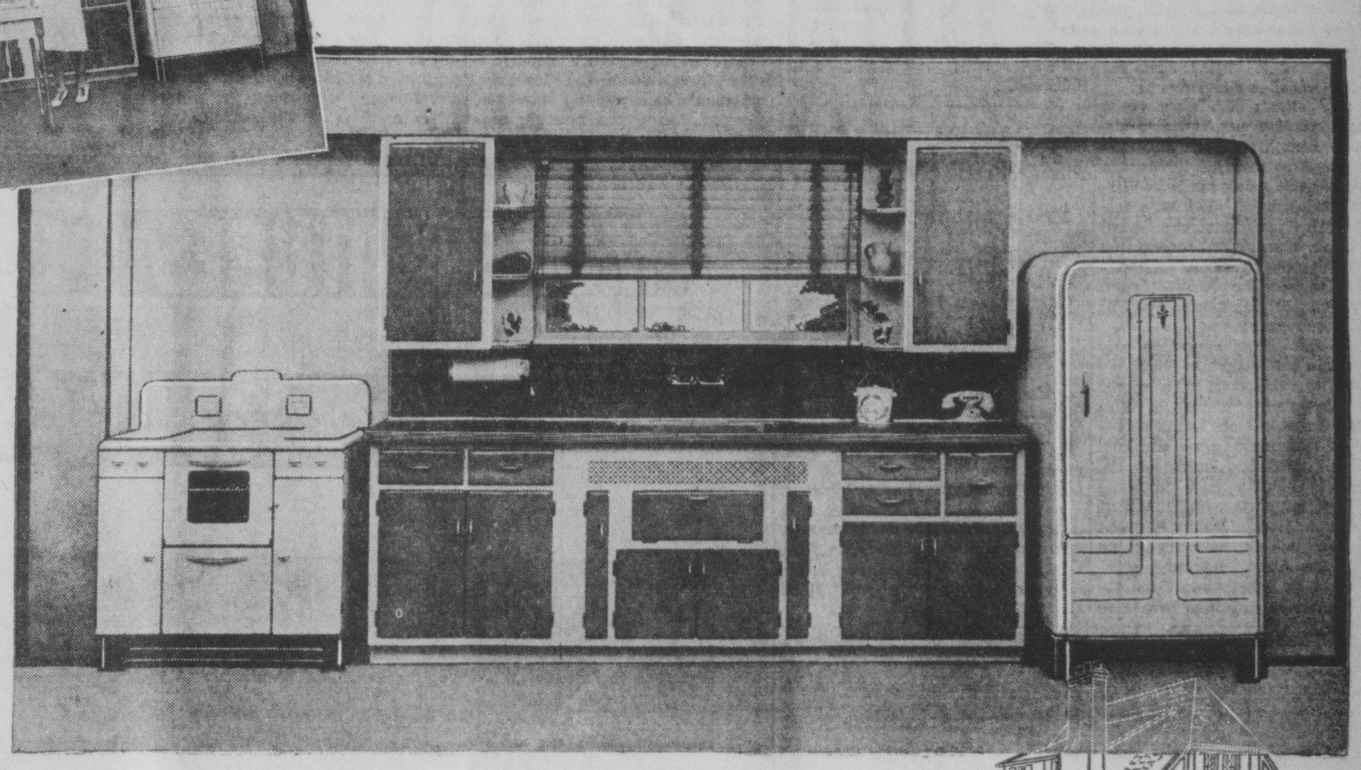
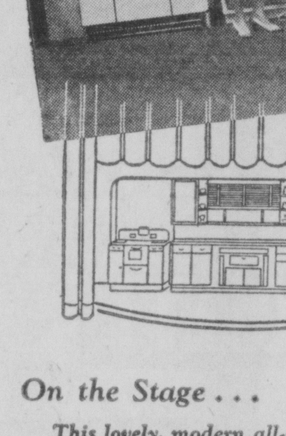
It's Easy to Own an ALL-GAS KITCHEN

Read How This Modern Dream Kitchen Can Become A Reality In Your Home



On the Stage . . .
This lovely, modern all-gas kitchen will command the praise of everyone in attendance at the 1940 Gasco Food Institute. It presents the latest mode in kitchen arrangement and decoration. It offers the "last word" in kitchen convenience and efficiency. Be sure to inspect it carefully following the programs of the Food Institute.





Miss Esther Roehm

Miss Roehm, Food Lecturer of the Gasco Food Institute, gives many hints on kitchen arrangement and equipment during the course of her lectures.

FIRST STEP in planning your new kitchen or modernizing your old is the selection of the appliances which will serve you best. Modern gas appliances offer your kitchen the finest in design, the greatest efficiency and cleanliness in operation. The moment you install a modern gas range or gas refrigerator you begin to save in time — save on steps — and save money. Kitchen work takes wings. Kitchen hours become exciting and pleasure filled. So, first, select modern gas appliances for your new kitchen.

THE PLAN of your kitchen is important. There are three main working centers—the range, the refrigerator and the sink. For maximum convenience the sink is usually placed between the range and refrigerator although this may be varied to suit different floor plans. The cabinets, counters, linoleum and other fixtures should be given careful consideration. To assist you in your kitchen planning The Gas Company maintains a kitchen planning service. A representative will gladly consult with you on your plans.

FINANCING, of course, is an all important consideration. Under modern plans of financing, you need not delay your kitchen modernization. The Gas Company, and other dealers in kitchen equipment and fixtures, all have convenient payment plans. Banks and other financial agencies stand ready to assist you in budgeting the cost of a modern kitchen and home. For more complete information on modern kitchen planning visit The Gas Company or phone for a representative to call at your home.

In Your Home . . .
Such a kitchen will bring modern ease and proficiency. Its beauty will excite the envy of your friends. It is really a short step from Food Institute to your home as far as a modern all-gas kitchen is concerned. Make this kitchen yours now.

F. D. R. TO TALK APRIL 20 WITH POLITICS TOPIC

Washington Believes, Though, That President Will Not Reveal His Plans

WELLES NEARING HOME

Friends Insist Executive Wishes To Retire After Close Of Term

WASHINGTON, March 26 — White House announcement that President Roosevelt would go on the air April 20 with a nationwide political broadcast aroused interest in the competing 1940 camps, but left most observers still convinced the broadcast would pass without any pronouncement on the third term.

Those close to the President predicted his radio speech to a series of dinners arranged by the Young Democrats of America woud fail to produce any inkling as to Mr. Roosevelt's ultimate decision on running again.

Supporters of Vice President Garner and other hopeful Democratic candidates were of a like mind, basing their opinion on the President's sphinx-like attitude on the important question to date.

All observers were mindful, however, that Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles is returning from Europe Friday to report on prospects of peace or more violent war as he found them in a tour of Rome,, Berlin, Paris and London.

Wants To Retire

Mr. Roosevelt's most trusted aides insist that the President wants to retire at the end of his current term—but always qualify themselves by noting that he views the international situation most seriously.

There was no decision yet whether Welles would make his report here in Washington or in Warm Springs, Ga. The President is planning to leave for his "other home" in Georgia by the end of the week, and it was possible the seclusion of the Roosevelt Warm Springs cottage might be considered a better spot for this important conference.

In any event, Mr. Roosevelt's spring visit to Warm Springs will provide him with semi-isolation while the first tests of third-term sentiments are being made in Wisconsin and Illinois. Primary voters in both states must choose between a convention delegation pledged to the President and one pledged to Vice President Garner. The Wisconsin primary is April 2; Illinois on April 9.

While the chief executive was making no commitments about his availability, the man who might sway a number of voters in Wisconsin—Senator Bob LaFollette—likewise was making no commitments. LaFollette, leader of the Progressive Party and erstwhile New Deal supporter, had lunch at the White House last week but word has gone out he will take no hand in the April 2 primary.

Thomas E. Dewey and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, Mich., are contesting in the Republican primary that same day and it is understood LaFollette will make no commitment as to whom he will support for the presidency until after the June-July conventions.

Garner Hopeful

Political scouts of all complexions were converging on Wisconsin and Illinois today for a last-minute estimate of prospects. The Garner forces are hopeful they can take a majority of the Wisconsin delegation because there are two Roosevelt slates of delegates in the field against them. It is generally conceded that the Illinois Democrats on April 9 will vote their delegation for Mr. Roosevelt.

The April 20 broadcast of the President was arranged by Matt Adams, president of the Young Democrats, at a Monday White House conference. White House attaches were inclined to believe the chief executive would take the occasion to elaborate on his oft-repated demand for a continuation of truly liberal government and charge the nation's new voters with exercising their franchise to that end.

You'll Like A Hamburger Grill

IN the interest of ease, health and a cleaner kitchen, why not forget the frying pan when hamburger patties are to be cooked, and broil them instead? Homemakers have discovered in using the new certified performance gas ranges with their roomy smokeless broilers and fast-action scientific burners that broiling means no smoke, no fat spatters, no heavy aroma of cooking in the kitchen atmosphere.

Broil seasoned patties in the preheated compartment for five minutes; when ready to turn, add halves of green pepper scalded for five minutes and filled with cooked whole grain corn, chopped pimiento, butter, salt and pepper. Dip halved bananas in lemon juice, melted butter and roll in powdered sugar. Add halves of tomatoes—but if they are out of season substitute slices of steamed or boiled squash. Broiling will enrich the flavor. Broil for five minutes longer or until all the food is a golden brown.

MRS. JOHN M. HICKLE, 84, DIES; RITES WEDNESDAY

Mrs. John M. Hickle, 84, former resident of the Clarksburg community, died Monday at 1:30 p. m. at her home near Washington C. H. after a two-weeks' illness from infirmities of old age.

Mrs. Hickle was a resident of Fayette County for about 40 years. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. B. E. Kelly, of Washington C. H. Several distant relatives in Ross County also survive. Mr. Hickle died September 22, 1939. Mrs. Hickle was a member of Grace Methodist Church in Washington.

Services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Methodist Church in New Holland, the Rev. C. L. Thomas officiating. Interment will be in Brown's Chapel Cemetery.

HEALTH OFFICE TELLS HOW TO ESCAPE FEVER

PHILADELPHIA, — If you would avoid tularemia, rare febrile disease spread by rabbits, use rubber gloves while skinning and handling the uncooked animals and then cook them thoroughly, advises Dr Hubley R. Owen, Philadelphia health director.

The disease, first discovered in Tulare County, Calif., affects those who handle rabbits, such as market men, cooks and housewives, Dr. Owens explained. Consumption of insufficiently cooked meat of an infected animal or contact of germs with open cuts and sources spread the ailment.

"The disease is sudden in its onslaught, runs an acute course and convalescence is slow," the health director warned. "In half the cases, the lymph glands become involved, break down and discharge. One should be especially careful of infection during the hunting season."

BRITISH DOUBT ITALY WILL ACT

Survey Made In Empire Discloses Belief Of Residents

LONDON, March 26 — No one person in twenty in Great Britain thinks that Italy will enter the war on the side of Germany, her partner in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Of the remaining nineteen, seven think that Italy will join the Allies, seven think she will stay neutral, and five haven't made up their minds what she will do.

These estimates were disclosed today as the result of a survey conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, which in recent months has surveyed virtually every aspect of English thought and opinion.

Choice Facing Voters

To a representative sample of British voters, the BIPO put the question: "Which do you think Italy will do in this war: (a) Join the Allies; (b) join Germany; (c) remain neutral.

Analysis of the answers showed that 34 percent said join the allies, 5 percent said join Germany; 34 percent said remain neutral; 27 percent said Don't know.

The high proportion of those answering "don't know" indicates plainly that Italy's attitude to the war has got the British public guessing.

Italy herself has defined her attitude as one, not of "neutrality," but of "non-belligerency."

MORE FARMERS IN KEYSTONE ON OWN PROPERTY

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Three of every four Pennsylvania farmers owne their own farms as compared to the national average of less than one in two, Pennsylvania's department of commerce has reported.

Of the owner-operated farms, a department survey disclosed, "just about half" are entirely free from debt, as compared with the United States figures of only three debt-free farms in ten.

Even tenant farmers enjoy almost as high a percentage of modern conveniences as the owner-operator—a striking contrast to tenant farmer conditions in many other sections of the nation, the report showed.

AMERICAN GIRL IN AMBULANCE IN CHINESE STRIFE

CHUNKING, China, — Braving dangers of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, a pretty 24-year-old American girl, Betty Graham, of Seattle, Washington is driving an International Red Cross car in south-west China.

On her latest journey she is taking her car to Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow Province, with medical supplies.

She left Shanghai last November and travelled alone through war areas to Kunming, in the southwestern province of Yunnan.

In 1936 Miss Graham was arrested by Japanese in Manchuria as a spy and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. The sentence was later rescinded although as she recalled in an interview here: "I enthusiastically offered to go to jail."

The following year she made a trip from India to Europe overland, via Afghanistan and Persia.

When she arrived here on her way to Kweiyang, Miss Graham declared: "I like China so much I want to call it my home."

She added: "I expect to stay in China a long time and concentrate on learning the language."

BRITISH STAMP TO BE SOLD TO BUY U. S. ARMS

LONDON, — Stamps worth $700,000 are to be sold in the United States to obtan American currency with which to buy arms.

The collection, which is said to be the second finest in England, belong to the late David Bernhard, famed philatelist, is surpassed only by the collection owned by King George of England.

It was bought by dealer Frank Godden for sale abroad.

The collection could easily be sold in England but the British government are anxious that it be sold in the United States to obtain dollars to be spent on airplanes, according to Godden.

Ironically enough the collection contains German stamps to the value of over $60,000. Another treasure is the Western Australia "Inverted Swan." Only eight of these are in existence. Each is worth $4,000.

LA GRANDE, Ore.—Pangs of conscience must have been too great for the anonymous student who lent a quarter to a local theatre manager and a letter of apology for "sneaking in to see a show." The student is enrolled in the Northwest Nazerene Bible College at Nampa.

NAZIS MOBILIZE ARMY OF YOUTH FOR HOME FRONT

More Than 10 Million Boys And Girls At Work For The Reich

DUTIES DIVERSIFIED

Target Shooting And Careful Military Training Given To Nation's Youths

BERLIN, March 26 — Germany has mobilized an army of more than ten million boys and girls to assist the Fatherland in its war with the western democracies .

At the beginning of the conflict the Fuehrer in his Reichstag speech appealed to Germany's youth to do their utmost to strengthen the front at home. Immediately the machinery of the Hitler Youth Movement went into full swing.

More than 600,000 boys and girls alone were employed in harvest work, replacing the hundreds of thousands of peasants and farm helpers called to the colors. Each candidate for harvest work had to undergo a strict medical examination to prove his or her ability. According to official statistics, all members of the Hitler Youth Movement, employed in this work, are under regular medical care of 4,000 special physicians.

Other tens of thousands of boys and girls at the same time started collecting scrap iron or other valuable material lying idly around in German households or elsewhere. Still others combed the woods for medicinal herbs, wild-grown fruits and any other plants considered worthwhile. It is officially emphasized that while all this work might fail to impress an outsider, it nevertheless is producing excellent results.

Work Minutely Organized

With German thoroughness, the employment of all these helpers has been organized on a minutely planned system. All over the Reich little groups were organized under the command of young leaders, especially trained for their task. In forty-four special schools more than 12,000 Hitler Youth leaders were prepared for their future duties during the first three months after the outbreak of the war.

The Reich is also giving her male youth an early idea of a soldier's life. All boys between sixteen and eighteen years of age receive thorough premilitary training, including target shooting with small calibre rifles, and furthermore a careful training in all fields of air defense, such as the building of bombproof cellars, etc.

Regular Military Lectures

All these courses are carried through under the sharp control of officers of the army and members of the Air Defense League. In order to keep the future soldiers of the Reich informed on what is at stake in the present war, there are regular lectures by officers of army, navy and the air force.

At the same time Germany is creating for herself the biggest and most efficient Red Cross Corps throughout the world. All girls of seventeen at present are undergoing a Health Course, practical training in first aid. Girls of other classes are being employed as family helpers in families with a large number of children, in public kitchens and other public institutions.

Official statistics show that in the month of September 1939 alone 1,091,000 boys and girls, approximately every tenth member of the Hitler Youth Movement, were employed in the many fields of assistance at home.

MUSICAL WORLD LISTS ANOTHER OF SPITALNYS

PITTSBURGH, — Still another Spitalny, this time Jimmy, just 14, has invaded the musical world.

It would seem that Jimmy was practically born with a baton in his mouth. His father is Maurice Spitalny, director of the KDKA orchestra, and his grandfather, who founded the musical tradition, was Jacob Spitalny, a Russian musician who had his own orchestra until his death 14 years ago.

Among his uncles are H. Leopold Spitalny, musical director for the NBC orchestra, and Phil Spitlnay, conductor of the all-girl ensemble.

But Jimmy isn't resting on the laurels of his relatives. He appeared here as student conductor of the Massanutten Military Academy band.

When he's not conducting, he's busy studying — or playing the bells and tympani. He prefers the latter, he said.

Rhubarb was first used in Europe for medical purposes and was one of the most costly of medicines. The cost was caused by the expense of importing it from China, across Asia, and the difficulty of preserving it from attacks of insects.

Fricasseed Chicken

A DEEP rich chicken flavor is not difficult to obtain when preparing a fricassee and it is well worth the extra trouble. Place the pieces of chicken in a two quart glass saucepan and add boiling water to half cover. Adjust saucepan cover and cook chicken gently for two to three hours, according to age. The flexible top burner of a modern gas range does the trick on almost no fuel because the burner may be adjusted to simmer and will retain that temperature accurately.

Add salt after the first hour When chicken is tender, remove from stock and roll in one-half cup flour mixed with one teaspoon poultry seasoning. Fry in butter in a skillet until golden brown. Thicken stock and add one-third cup cream. bring to boiling point. Pour over chicken and serve with hot biscuits or fluffy dumplings.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: When do you take the covering or winter mulch off tulips?

ANSWER: I like to take the mulch off my flower borders, including bulbs, rather early before growth starts. In Columbus this can be done now, but farther north, it will probably be any time before the first of April.

QUESTION: Can heather be grown successfully in Ohio?

ANSWER: Although there are a number of different kinds of heather, the Scotch heather is the one most people think of in connection with this name. Although I know of one very successful planting near Chagrin Falls, it has been planted in a small valley well protected from the wind and pretty well under snow most of the winter. Normally, heather seems to be damaged by our open winters and hot summers. In sections of the state where the soil is not naturally acid, the soil must be acidified to grow heather successfully. All in all, although you might try it, I am afraid I cannot guarantee its success.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to take up tulip bulbs every three years for a rest?

ANSWER: Tulips are dug not to rest them but to divide them when they have multiplied to such a point that the bulbs are getting small and do not bloom. Even then I would be inclined to replant them immediately rather than attempt to store them in the garage or cellar during the summer.

QUESTION: What plant or shrub suitable for cemetery planting will require the minimum amount of care and have the maximum beauty and hardiness?

ANSWER: Contrary to popular practice of using rather stiff, formal types of evergreens, either globes or pyramids, I am inclined to feel that with the tremendous variety of monuments in the cemetery that we need more informal, sprawling types of evergreens than upright types. I would, therefore, be inclined to recommend for large monuments such plants as Pfitzer juniper or spreading varieties of Japanese yew. For smaller plants the Andorra juniper, the evergreen bittersweet (Euonymus radicans vegetus), or the wintercreeper (Euonymus radicans). I would be inclined to suggest that these evergreen vines be allowed to climb on the bas and even part way up the monument itself, softening its effect.

QUESTION: Do tuberous rooted begonias need to be taken up each fall?

ANSWER: Tuberous rooted begonias are not hardy, and consequently, if left out over winter are sure to be killed.

QUESTION: If hybrid roses become loose during the winter months, how should they be tightened in the spring?

ANSWER: Although it is not uncommon for roses or other shrubs to be swayed sufficiently in the wind during the winter so that they have an enlarged hole in the ground around the lower part of the stem, this will do no particular harm. However, I have always followed the practice of stamping the earth firm around any such plants each spring.

QUESTION: What can you do to keep the leaves of African violets from drooping?

ANSWER: My observation has been that those African violets whose leaves are limber and drooping have been getting too much water. May I suggest you give them just a little bit less.

QUESTION: How can I kill the ground ivy in my lawn?

ANSWER: Ground ivy, for those who are not acquainted with it, is a trailing plant with a round leaf one-half to three-fourths inch in diameter with a scalloped edge, a square stem, purplish flowers and a rather strong odor to the foliage. Small patches may be controlled by pulling every bit of the stem out. Larger patches can sometimes be controlled by using one to two pounds of ammonium sulphate per 10 0square feet, sprinkling it n when the foliageis wet. This will burn the lawn as well as the ground icy, but the grass will come back. Another method would be to spray it with sodium chlorate using two ounces in one gallon of water, applying with the regular sprayer. Care should be taken not to allow this material to dry on the clothing or shoes nor to get on other plants. It will kill the other plants and it will make the clothing highly inflammable when it dries.

QUESTION: Will my hemlock be seriously injured by this past winter's snow?

ANSWER: Our native hemlocks are absolutely hardy and will not be injured by the snow unless it has been piled up on them to such an extent that it breaks them by mechanical force. However, some hemlocks look rather bad this spring due to the fact that they went into the winter too dry so that if they were in a windy exposure the foliage has dried out and become brown during the winter. If the wind has been strong enough, it can kill the entire plant although normally it kills back the tips of the growth.

QUESTION: Can any fertilizer be used in place of bonemeal? The dogs dig into the roots of the plants where I use it.

ANSWER: Bonemeal was the fertilizer that your grandparents used and has been largely replaced today by modern commercial fertilizers. They are not only less expensive for the fertilizing ingredients they contain, but are practically odorless. Besides, the phosphorus of the bonemeal is very slightly available whereas that of the present day commercial fertilizer is relatively quickly available. I would suggest you use any complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4. You can buy this under various trade names or as 4-12-4 fertilizer from farmers' supply stores.

QUESTION: When is the proper time to plant tuberous begonias?

ANSWER: If you are buying the dormant plants they should be purchased in the near future, planted in 3½ or 4 inch pots sometime during late March or April and started into growth indoors. If you are buying the growing plants, you will purchase them in late May or early June and plant them out immediateliy.

Toast Is Better Made In Broiler

WHILE taste in toast differs with the individual, it is a safe bet that most persons like it crunchy, which means evenly cooked to the center and uniformly browned. Broiling is an ideal method of making toast—it's quicker, easier, and more convenient for a small or a quantity supply.

The broiler burner of a certified performance gas range does a very special toasting job, which is one of the supreme tests for uniformity. And, when a broiler toasts to perfection, you may be assured it will broil every other food as nicely.

There is no need to preheat the broiler for toasting because heat is directed upon the bread the moment it is placed beneath the flame. The new broiler racks are large enough to accommodate 8 and 9 pieces, each browned evenly Scientific burners light with the twist of a dial, are smokeless, and cannot consume more than a fixed amount of gas.

SOLDIERS FINDS ROMANTIC NOTE AFTER 23 YEARS

LONDON — Some twenty-three years ago, romantically minded, eighteen-year-old London tailoress Mabel Roderick slipped a note inside the pocket of an Army tunic she was sewing.

The note asked the soldier who wore the tunic to write to the girl who made it.

"It's a silly sort of thing to do," laughed Mabel to her friends. "Still . . . you never know."

And last month Mabel, much to her surprise, received a reply.

George Norris, aged twenty, of the British Royal Corps of Signals, found the note in his tunic pocket He wrote to Mabel to meet him.

Mabel read and laughed again. "Come and have tea with me," she replied.

The couple met in Mabel's home in the East end of London.

And Mabel, admiring the handsome young soldier, smiled up at him and said:

"Oh George. You are just a generation late.

"That letter was meant for your father, and the men who fought with him."

Mabel wrote her letter in 1917. In the meantime, the young tailoress has become Mrs. Mabel Young.

She is now forty-one and has a daughter aged twelve.

"The joke's on both of us," said George. "Of course, I thought I was going to meet a young girl."

OLD-FASHIONED SCHOOL 'MARM' IS ON WAY OUT

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., — The old-fashoned cross school teacher is on her way out in Indiana, according to a survey undertaken recently at the Indiana State Teachers' College of class-room teachig many elementary schools.

After visits had been made to 217 classrooms over the state, it was revealed that 83 percent of the teachers encountered were pleasant and apparently sympathetic with their pupils.

Forty-seven percent of all classrooms were described as being home-like, and 46.5 percent had movable types of seating equipment instead of old-fashioned seats bolted to the floor in rows.

The severest criticism made in the survey was in the field of teaching skill with a definite practical application, less than two percent of the classrooms being indicated as showing that facts were being taught for a definite need.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, March 26

THE LUNAR transits for this day forecast a very lively day, with much stirring at particularly high tempo and probably with some agitation or excitement. Concentrated effort may be brought to bear on breaking up long static conditions in order to make way for important new ventures. This may cause sudden upsets and upheavals, with matters materializing quite unexpectedly. The state of health may also prove a disturbing factor.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with much stirring of a surprising and unpredictable nature. These may involve radical change in plans, objectives and possibly in environs, preliminary to the shattering of old congestions so that more definite progress of a constructive trend may be engineered. It may take drastic action, perseverence and fortitude to cope with deep-seated inertia or restrictions. Be careful with the health. Elders may prove difficult.

A child born on this day may have much intellectual vigor and versatility, being alert, brilliant and keen as well as studious, profound and original. It may also be temperamental, emotional and restive.

SCIENCE FINDS ANOTHER USE FOR WHITE RAT

LAS CRUCES, — Another use has been found for the traditional friend of science—the white rat.

Edith M. Lantz, research specialist in the home economics division of the New Mexico State College will use the rates to experiment on the vitamin content in chili.

It has been detemined, Miss Lantz said,that chili pepper when fresh contains carotene (vitamin A) and ascorbic acid (vitamin C). However, in dying chili for commercial use, the C vitamin appears to be lost. The experiment will be used to find a method of drying the chili pod so that C is not lost.

The white rats will be used to measure the effects of various drying methods using chili found mostly in New Mexico.

The experiment will start this summer.

We wish to announce that our milk plant is going under federal and state milk inspection. In preparation for this we have bought two new pasteurizers built with stainless steel and are glass lined which are considered the latest and most efficient type. We will also install recording thermometers, new dial scales, stainless steel receiving and weighing tanks, a stainless steel cheese vat. Many other modern changes will be made within two or three weeks.

Inspection of cows and barns of those who produce our milk will be made at least once per month. Bacterial and sediment tests of the milk from each farm will be made regularly as well as of our finished pasteurized products.

We sell milk in Pickaway, Fairfield, Hocking and Ross Counties. Owing to the fact that Pickaway County has no health unit to take care of such inspection, the Ross County unit will care for our milk plant.

For two years our record has been very good, but with our new equipment and our triple bottle wash we hope to still improve our record.

No person in Circleville from now on need have any fear about milk. We will be the only plant that will have 100% rigid inspection.

TEST OF DEADLY BOMB PLANNED AT BALTIMORE

Martin Airplane Factory Employe To Show Army His Invention

HANDLING IN QUESTION

Barlow Claims Weapon Able To Kill All Within Two Miles

BALTIMORE, March 26—Lester P. Barlow, who says he has invented the most deadly aerial bomb ever made, was to conduct the first public test of his weapon today.

Today's demonstration, designed primarily to test the "safety-in-handling" factors of the bomb, will be held in a remote corner of the proving grounds of the Glenn L. Martin airplane plant near Baltimore. Barlow is an engineer in the Martin plant.

Although originally announced as the first step in proving the bomb's worth to congressional and U. S. military experts, there was considerable doubt over who would attend the ceremony.

Leading members of both the senate and house military and naval affairs committees who had been invited to be present, said that no members of congress would be on hand.

The War Department announced that Lt. Col. K. F. Adamson, of the ordnance division, would attend, but only as a "private observer."

Living Objects Asked

Barlow at first sought permission to demonstrate his claims in an unsettled area of the Southwest on a site the size of a modern battleship. Using animals as subjects, he said he would show that the bomb would destroy all life within an area of two miles through powerful detonating rays.

Congressional experts and Barlow compromised on a demonstration closer to the capital and without any living subjects.

The tests today, said Barlow, will show that the bomb can be handled safely, a controversial point. Utilization of liquid oxygen —used in the Barlow bomb—has been condemned by military authorities because of instability and danger in transportation.

Barlow says he has overcome these faults to such an extent that bullets may be fired at the bomb without exploding it.

Today's Menu

Smelts in Italian Sauce
Oven Fried Potatoes
Buttered Beets Cabbage Salad
Lemon Pudding Coffee or Tea

THE RECIPE for smelts is said to be a favorite with Lauritz Melchior, the noted Danish tenor, singer of Wagnerian roles.

Smelts in Italian Sauce—Place seasoned smelts in an oiled baking dish. Cook four chopped mushrooms, one small clove minced garlic, two tablespoons green pepper and small pinch thyme in one and one-fourth cups of tomato sauce for three minutes. Pour sauce over fish. Bake, basting twice. Serve with pan liquor over fish.

Lemon Pudding — Ingredients: one cup sugar, four eggs, one lemon, juice and grated yellow rind. Beat yolks and sugar until very light, mix with lemon juice and rind; beat whites to stiff froth, fold into yolk mixture. Line gem pans with puff paste, fill with mixture and bake.

Lamb Chops Baked Potatoes
Harvard Beets Canned Peas
Lettuce or Celery Cabbage Salad, French Dressing
Apple-Custard Pie Coffee

YOU MAY buy lamb chops or steaks of various cuts. Rib and loin chops are best known, but shoulder chops are nice and may be broiled. For broiling lamb chops, preheat the broiler, if you wish. Place the chops with the top surface about three inches from the source of heat. When chops are brown, they will be cooked about halfway through. Season the chops and turn. When both sides are brown, the chops are ready to serve. Chops one-inch thick require about 12 minutes to broil.

French Dressing — Ingredients: one-half cup salad oil, two or three tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon mustard or dash of cayenne, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon salt, or more, to taste; one teaspoon sugar, few drops Worcestershire sauce. Put all ingredients in covered glass jar and shake vigorously until thick and well blended. This may be made in quantity and kept in refrigerator until needed. Always shake well before using.

Swedish Meat Balls
Riced Potatoes
Buttered Spinach Cole Slaw
Swedish Dessert Coffee

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS—Ingredients: one-half cup fine bread crumbs, one medium-sized onion, grated; one and three-fourths teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one egg, well beaten; one cup milk, one pound beef, finely ground; one-half pound lean pork, finely ground; three tablespoons butter or fat; one tablespoon flour, one cup top milk, one-half cup chopped sweet pickles, two tablespoons drained horse-radish. Combine bread crumbs, onion, one and one-half teaspoons of the salt, pepper, egg and one cup milk. Add meats aond mix thoroughly. Drop from tablespoon into melted butter in hot skillet. Slowly saute until well browned on all sides. Remove meat balls to hot platter. Scrape al browned materials from sides and bottom of skillet and stir in flour. Add one cup milk and remaining salt, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Simmer five minutes longer; add pickles and horse-radish. Pour around meat balls. Serves six.

Swedish Dessert — Ingredients: one pound prunes, one-half pound seedless raisins, one package (three ounces) candied pineapple, citron, lemon and orange peel; 12 graham crackers, sugar to taste. Cook prunes and raisins till tender; drain. Reserve one to one and one-quarter cups juice. Stone prunes and run them and the raisins and candied peels through medium food chopper. Mix with juice an crushed graham crackers, adding sugar to taste. Chill and serve very cold. Garnish with whipped cream and maraschino cherry. This is a rich dessert, serving twelve to fifteen. Serve in sherbet glasses. Halve recipe for six.

Cheese and Rice Fondue Broccoli
Molded Tomato Salad Pickles
Cherry Pie Coffee

CHEESE and Rice Fondue—Ingredients: One-fourth pound American cheese, one cup scalded milk, one cup soft bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon salt, three eggs, one cup cooked rice. Cut cheese into small pieces; mix scalded milk, bread crumbs, cheese and butter and salt over hot water. Stir until cheese is melted, then remove from fire and add egg yolks, beaten until lemon colored; fold in cooked rice and, lastly, stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes or until nicely brown. This will serve eight.

Molded Tomato Salad—Ingredienats: Two and one-half cups canned tomatoes, one tablespoon minced onion, one stalk celery, one-half bay leaf, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, two tablespoons unflavored gelatin, one-half cup cold water, two tablespoons mild vinegar. Put tomatoes into sauce-pan, add coarsely-chopped onion and celery, and add to tomatoes with bay leaf, salt and sugar. Heat to boiling and boil gently for 10 minutes. While mixture boils sprinkle gelatin on top of cold water and let stand fixe minutes. Force cooked tomatoes through strainer, add gelatine at once and stir until it is dissolved, then add vinegar. Pour at once into molds that have been rinsed in cold water, and set aside to chill. Unmold when ready to serve on any desired salad green and srve with cooked dressing or mayonnaise.

BIG TRANSPORT NEARLY READY FOR AIR DUTIES

Work Of Assembly Starts In St. Louis Factory; Plane Is Largest

36 MAY BE CARRIED

Cruising Speed Of Craft To Be 210 Miles An Hour; Top 243

ST. LOUIS, March 26 — More than three years of planning and work have gone into the new thirty-six passenger substratosphere transport assembled at the Curtiss-Wright Corp., plant at Lambert-St. Louis municipal Airport. The plane is said to be largest twin-engine land transport ever constructed in the United States.

Gross weight of the plane is nineteen tons, about twelve times the weight of an ordinary automobile, and wingspan is 108 feet, the approximate height of a seven-story building. When the plane is resting on the ground its height is just over nineteen feet. The pilot in its nose could look down into a second-story window.

The CW 20, as it is known in the plant, is one of the first designed for substratosphere flying. Its cabin, one of the first deep enough to allow a passenger to walk erect, will be sealed and "pressurized" so that air pressure inside while the plane is four miles above the earth will be same as if the plane were at a mere 6,500 feet, the cruising altitude of ordinary liners.

Gasoline Burning Heaters

Gasoline-burning heaters, with blowers, will heat the cabin. Temperatures in the substratosphere range around and below zero.

In the higher altitudes the new plane will be out of the storm strata.

Four wing tanks with a total capacity of 1,000 gallons of gasoline give the CW 20 a non-stop range of over 1,500 miles. Space is available for more tanks should the purchaser of the plane decide to put it on a longer run.

Cruising speed of the plane will be three and one-half miles a minute, or 210 miles an hour. A top speed of 243 miles an hour is expected.

To establish instant and sure communication between pilots and ground crew just before taking off and immediately upon landing, telephone plugs are recessed in the tail and belly of the ship. Lines from the plugs go to the pilots' compartment.

Many of the dials and gadgets which took the attention of pilots in older ships have been eliminated and replaced with automatic devices. The panel on the CW 20 has only two-thirds as many things to watch as those on some other liners.

Overall Length 75 Feet

Cabin appointments will be largely up to the airline which pays the $220,000 expected to be asked for the plane. Space is available for thirty-six passengers if the ordinary chair car arrangement is used, for twenty sleeping, or for thirty with a club car arrangement. The overall length of the plane is 75 feet. A cargo space beneath the cabin floor is loaded from outside but may be reached from inside. It will hold up to 5,200 pounds of baggage and mail.

Two pilots and a stewardess will be able to handle the plane.

Elaborate precautions have been taken to insure safe letting down and retraction of the landing gear which, on other planes, has been blamed for accidents through failure to operate. The landing wheels, four feet, seven inches in diameter, are operated by hydraulic pistons. Should these fail, electric motors do the job or the gear may be operated by hand. To achieve more streamlining, even the tail wheel is drawn into the body and covered in flight.

INITIAL FINE ASSESSED FOR WRONG SIDE PARKING

The "honor" of being the first man to be fined under the new ordinance which prohibits parking on the wrong side of the street went to Clarence Rhoads, R.F.D. 1. His parked car pointing against the flow of traffic was seen on East Franklin Street by Patrolman Miller Fissell at 5:20 p. m. Monday.

He paid a fine of $2 in Mayor William Cady's court at 7 p. m. Monday. An additional charge of $1 for towing the car from East Franklin Street to the Lutz-Yates garage was also paid by Rhoads.

SHOPLIFTER FINED

WASHINGTON C. H., March 26—Pleading guilty to the charges of shoplifting six dresses, Dorothy Nidy, 19, Hamilton, paid a fine of $50 and costs in police court. The two women and a man who were with her in the store escaped.

They Offer Blood for Poles

DR. Seymour J. Zauderer takes samples of blood from Irene Polaski and Sam Deutscher at the Paderewski Fund headquarters in New York. The two were among volunteers who have offered to sell their blood to help raise funds for Polish relief work.

BODIES OF EIGHT MINERS REMAIN IN BLASTED PIT

NEFFS, O., March 26 — Clean-up squads today expected to reach the bodies of the last eight miners still entombed by the blast that ripped through the Willow Grove mine ten days ago.

The explosion claimed 72 victims, including three would-be rescuers who were fatally gassed when they rushed into the mine after the blast.

Six bodies were taken from the mine yesterday and through the night, but the last were still unidentified. The other five victims were Walter Slater, 29, of Bannock; William Schiller, 38, Neffs; Edwin Patterson, 34, Bellaire; John Demkowicz, 27, Neffs, and Frank Dopkiss, 36, of Maynard.

SPEEDER CITED TO COURT

Donald Edison Lake, 28, Lancaster, was cited to appear in Mayor William Cady's court at 7 p. m. Tuesday to face charges of speeding. He was stopped by Patrolman Charles Mumaw at 2:45 p. m. on East Main Street, as he was driving between 55 and 60 miles per hour.

MANY FORCED TO FLEE HOMES TO ESCAPE FLAMES

CLEVELAND, March 26—Damage was estimated at $10,000 today in a fire which drove more than a score of persons from a two-story business and apartment block in suburban Lakewood.

Bruce Preslan, 24, discovered the fire as he sat in a cafe on the ground floor of the building. He ran upstairs and roused his wife, Florence, 22, and his two brothers, Charles, 18, and Wallace, 16, who were sleeping in the couple's second-floor apartment.

Preslan and his wife managed to escape through the smoke-filled halls, but the two younger brothers were forced to climb out a window to the roof of an adjoining building from which they were rescued by firemen. Mrs. Lillian Folsom, who occupied the other apartment on the second floor, was not at home at the time.

Hundreds of spectators were attracted to the scene as dense smoke drifted over the neighborhood, and street car and automobile traffic on Detroit Avenue was tied up more than an hour. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

Roosevelt Vs. Tobey

President Roosevelt says that Senator Tobey of New Hampshire is the first Senator ever to advise citizens to refuse to obey "the law." Apparently this assertion was supposed to cause the Senator to shrivel and subside, but without waiting to mail a letter he immediately telegraphed the President demanding to know what is "the law."

The forthcoming census proposes to demand the amount and source of your income. These questions have never been asked in any previous census for 150 years. There is no statute which expressly authorizes these particular questions, or requires the citizen to answer them under threat of fine and jail sentence. If the authority exists at all it is implied in the general direction of the statute that "a census of population . . . shall be taken by the Director of the Census," etc.

PETTENGILL

Does the word "population" include "income?" What is the "population" of your pocketbook? If Congress told the census man to count the chickens in your back yard, could he go on from there and demand to open your pocketbook and count the dollars? From his express authority to count human being, does he have the implied authority to demand that they state, under oath, whether they say their prayers before going to bed, or any other intimate and personal matter? Could they, far example, be compelled to state whether they favor a third term for Mr. Roosevelt? How about a census on that? In short, is there any limit at all to the questions the Director of the Census may decide to ask?

The President seems to think there is no limit — whatever is asked is "the law." He defends the income questions on the ground that they may be useful to somebody or other who may wish to sell you refrigerators or curling irons or redistribute your income.

Wholly irrespective of whether the census, in itself, is good or bad Mr. Roosevelt has disclosed a state of mind of importance to 130,000,000 people. To begin with, he begs the question as to what is "the law." Can it be that any question Mr. Harry Hopkins, one-time socialist, may decide to ask is "the law?" If so any decision of any bureaucrat is "the law," and a Senator of the United States is to be held up to public ridicule for daring to tell the citizens that in his opinion it is not "the law."

If a Senator may not question a bureaucrat, who can? Are lawyers from now on to be forbidden to advise clients that a bureaucratic ruling in their opinion is not the "law?" If so, then citizens are to be helpless against any kind of governmental tyranny. For if Senators cannot express their opinion that something is not "the law" why should courts be permitted to do so? Are judges who might agree with Mr. Tobey to be ridiculed also?

Such is the trend and the direction of this defense of the Census. If someone thinks it would be useful to him to know your income, or whether useful or not, the bureaucrat demands it, the citizen and his representative in the United States Senate, and perhaps the judge on the bench, should keep their mouths shut. He is a mangy creature, a pariah of low caste, if he does not go along with what some bureaucrat considers to be the "general welfare."

It comes down to this: The citizen has no rights that the State is bound to respect. Whatever someone thinks would serve the State or some manufacturer of curling irons, the citizen must yield, or else. This is part of this whole socialistic poison which has caused such an epidemic in Washington, D. C. It's logical, and if continued, its only end in this nation is tatalitarian government, a system which holds that the individual as such has no rights which he may assert against the State, which holds that he is but a cell in the totality of government, that the "general welfare" has no limits, that society is everything and the citizen is nothing.

Few things in recent years have been more revealing than the President's defense of Mr. Hopkins' questions.

Before proceeding one single, thoughtless step farther down this "way that leadeth to destruction" let every American pause before committing his children, at least, to the doctrine that has Europe in its iron hand.

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL.

THREE WATCH BURGLAR SHOOT STATION WORKER

COLUMBUS, March 26—With the descriptions furnished by three witnesses to work on, police today sought the bandit who shot and critically wounded Lee Cochenour, 38, filling station attendant, and fled with the day's receipts totaling $120.

The gunman entered the station and without warning shot Cochenour, the bullet just missing his heart and emerging under his left armpit. Only then did he announce "This is a holdup."

Cochenour was reported in "not good" condition at Mt. Carmel hospital.

The bandit then forced his victim and the witnesses, Kenneth Beyerly, manager of the station, and two truck-drivers, Ralph Chapman, Letart Falls, O., and Robert Cleland, Racine, O., into a washroom, rifled the open safe and fled.

Beyerly climbed through a window and called police and an ambulance.

Now we know why Admiral Byrd picked 1940 for his latest expedition to the South Pole — he's going to miss a lot of the presidential campaign hullabaloo.

Let Miss Roehm Show The Facts at the COOKING SCHOOL

During the session of the cooking school, Miss Roehm will show housewives who attend how to prepare many delicious baked things with "Special Patent" flour.

Miss Roehm selected "Special Patent" flour to use in her demonstrations because she knew it to be a guaranteed all-purpose flour. It produces excellent cakes, pies, rolls or biscuits.

Using Miss Roehm's recipes and "Special Patent" flour you can duplicate her results in your own kitchen.

For "Special Patent" is so good that the millers guarantee that it will make the best baked things you ever turned out.

Attend the Cooking School—benefit by the many suggestions for easier, simpler ways to cook that Miss Roehm and Miss Duncan will give you.

GOLF MATCH AT GREENSBORO TO RESUME TODAY

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 26 —Twice postponed because of cold and snow, play was to be resumed today in the $5,000 Greensboro Golf tournament if conditions permit.

Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., and Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., tied for the lead with 69s in the first round of the 72-hole tourney.

The annual Asheville tourney, scheduled for Thursday, will be postponed until play is over, or later, it was announced.

REDS WIN; VANDY DOES BETTER AGAINST WINGS

TAMPA, Fla., March 26 — The Cincinnati Reds contented themselves with light workouts today in preparation for tomorrow's game with the New York Giants. The big bats of the Reds swung into action yesterday at West Palm Beach and annihilated the Rochester Red Wings of the International League, 10 to 5. Johnny Vander Meer, double-no-hit wonder of 1938, allowed four hits and walked six men in the five innings he toiled.

FELLER TO PITCH

Gate Of $100,000 Sure For Louis-Paychek Go

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, March 26—If the so-called sports experts were the least bit thin skinned, they might very well feel a measure of chagrin today over the way things are going for the Joe Louis-Johnny Paychek world heavyweight title fight Friday night. Briefly, the customers have been warned in column after column that Paychek can't possibly win and some observers have suggested that he can't even go one round, but in spite of all that a gate of at least $100,000 was assured today, according to Promoter Mike Jacobs' ballyhoo department.

The answer to it all must be that the clients will pay at prices ranging up to $16.50 tops for the mere privilege of seeing Louis land one punch, with the chance of getting a surprise such as they have had on a few occasions. Bob Pastor, Max Schmeling, Tommy Farr and Arturo Godoy all disarranged the advance predictions by refusing to hold still for Louis, and the customers saw a fight in each instance to the limit. Fight may not be the word in two of those cases. Pastor ran and Godoy clowned. But Schmeling knocked Louis out and Farr went the limit in a bruising tussle.

Early Knockout Certain?

However, in each instance Louis made his comeback in his first start after being thus surprised, and because Godoy made him look so bad it seems safe to say that he will be able to shed his characteristic laziness against Paychek, for Louis really is proud and reacts accordingly to criticism. He probably will knock Paychek out before the challenger has a chance to really get into the fight.

Nevertheless nobody seems to be paying the slightest attention to that and everybody apparently is determined to attend if only to see the inevitable, hoping all the time that something will happen which isn't called for in the cut and dried script. Somehow, though, Louis has that appeal which pulls them in, despite the fact that he has made heavyweight defenses almost as commonplace as preliminaries. This will be his 10th title defense and his sixth fight in Madison Square Garden.

We still wonder what the appeal could possibly be in a fight that must end only one way, therefore removing the element of competition.

By way of getting in their final preparation, Louis and Paychek both will conclude their heavy training tomorrow in suburban camps. It might be mentioned that, unless the biggest surprise in recent fistic annals is about to be perpetrated, Paychek has been wasting his time.

WALKER'S FOE TO BEGIN TRAINING AT COLISEUM

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Paul Perroni, who tangles next Monday night with title-holder Jack Buddy Walker, Columbus Negro, for the Ohio heavyweight boxing crown at the Fairgrounds Coliseum, will arrive in Columbus tomorrow to complete his training. The Canton Italian was rated by Joe Louis, world title-holder, as "the smartest boxer I ever met."

Bowling News

Circleville Elks lost a match 10-pin game Sunday to a Columbus team, 54 pins separating the two clubs. Team totals were low, the B. P. O. E. crew falling far behind its usual average with 2,474 pins against 2,518 for the Columbus team. M. Good's 562 was the best score for the locals.

BUCKEYE GRID SQUAD TO OPEN SEASON IN 187 DAYS

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Just 187 days before they open their football season against the mighty Pittsburgh Panther, Ohio State's Buckeyes opened their spring practice training sessions today. The six-yeeks practice will end with an intrasquad game May 1.

New Yorkers Deny Farley And Cox Offer For Yankee Franchise

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26—Officials of the St. Louis Cardinals have given holdout Joe Medwick, hard-hitting outfielder, an ultimatum to sign his 1940 contract by tonight or face the possibility of having their $18,000 offer withdrawn.

Following another unsuccessful conference between Branch Rickey, general manager of the Cardinals, and Medwick yesterday, Rickey announced:

"We have reached a stage of temporary finality and this was my last conference with Medwick."

Medwick, however, gave no signs of capitulating from his demands that the $2,000 cut he accepted last year be restored.

NEW YORK, March 26 — Another round of denials from the principals today greeted the latest reports that the New York Yankees were about to be sold.

Posmaster General James A. Farley answered merely "no comment" to reports that he and former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio were negotiating a deal. Cox reported he was "not interested." No immediate comment was obtained from Publisher Joseph Medill Patterson who was reported another prospective purchaser.

President Ed Barrow and Vice President George Ruppert again repated their denials. Byron M. Clark, Jr., the Ruppert attorney and one of the three trustees for the estate, said he hadn't heard anything of the reported negotiations but emphasized any good offer that would help the trustees realize the maximum from the Jacob Ruppert estate wouldn't be sniffed at.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26—Sporting 11 victories in 15 exhibitions, the New York Yankees today began the long journey home from training camp via Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee and Virginia. Two grand slam homers by Arndt Jorgens and Jake Powell helped the Yanks win 12 to 2 over their Kansas City farm team yesterday.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 26 — Winners of the first game, the New York Giants today play their second and concluding spring training season game with the New York Yankees here. Hal Schumaker and Roy Joiner will divide pitching duties. The Giants made two runs in the seventh yesterday to down the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 4. Unable to negotiate a satisfactory salary for himself or trade himself off to another club, Zeke Bonura, holdout first baseman, announced he would go home when the Giants break camp here Thursday.

SEVEN PERSONS LEFT HOMELESS AS FLAMES SWEEP FOUR-ROOM PROPERTY

FLUE OF COAL STOVE BLAMED FOR DAMAGES

George Heater Residence, West Of N. & W. Rails, Scene Of Loss

FIREMEN USE PUMPS

Work Hindered By Lack Of Hose Long Enough To Reach Hydrant

Seven persons were left homeless Monday when a fire that started in the flue of a coal stove virtually destroyed the four room residence of George Heater near York Street west of the Norfolk and Western Railroad tracks.

Firemen who answered the call showed ramarkable efficiency in battling the flames despite the handicap of a hose and water shortage. There was not enough hose to reach the nearest hydrant and the water supply was exhausted when the fire was almost under control.

Quick refilling of the engine's tank while hand pumps were being used, they saved the house from total destruction.

Mrs. Earl Heater and her two month old baby were in the house when the fire broke out. They were given shelter at one of the nearby homes.

Smoke rapidly filled the house and billowed out of the windows and doors. When the firemen arrived demolition seemed inevitable. Neighbors and boys attracted to the fire were busy salvaging as much of the household goods as possible. Furniture was strewn about the ground around the house.

Living in the house were George Heater, his wife, Lu, and their two children; his brother, Earl Heater, and his wife Martha and the baby.

Firemen estimated the damage at approximately $150. The loss was covered by insurance by Hummel and Plum who carried $400 on the house and $100 on the household goods.

The fire department received a call at 10:15 p. m. Monday when wood and paper piled behind a stove at the home of Frank Sawyer, 738 Watt Street, was ignited. The fire was easily extinguished with damage estimated at $5.

THOUSANDS LOST WHEN CRESS FACTORY BURNS

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil M. Cress, 818 South Court Street, have returned home after a week end trip to Troy, O., the former's home city, where the $100,000 novelty factory belonging to his father, H. G. Cress, was destroyed by fire. The fire happened Thursday with loss to run into many thousands.

Mr. Cress said that the cause of blaze has not yet been determined. Part of the loss is covered by insurance, but a large part of it is not, Mr. Cress said.

The fire broke out when 30 employes were at their places. They were removed from danger and the Troy fire department was called. Firemen were hindered by a high wind and the wooden construction of the interior of the building, and the fact that the stock and manufactured goods in the building were highly inflammable.

Only the walls of the two-story brick building were left standing.

Loss included $25,000 in finished products, about $40,000 in raw material and other stock and the remaining damage to the building.

The Cress Co. manufactures educational novelties and toys.

Mr. and Mrs. Cress left Circleville Thursday after school for a week end viist in Troy. When they reached Troy they did not know that the factory had burned.

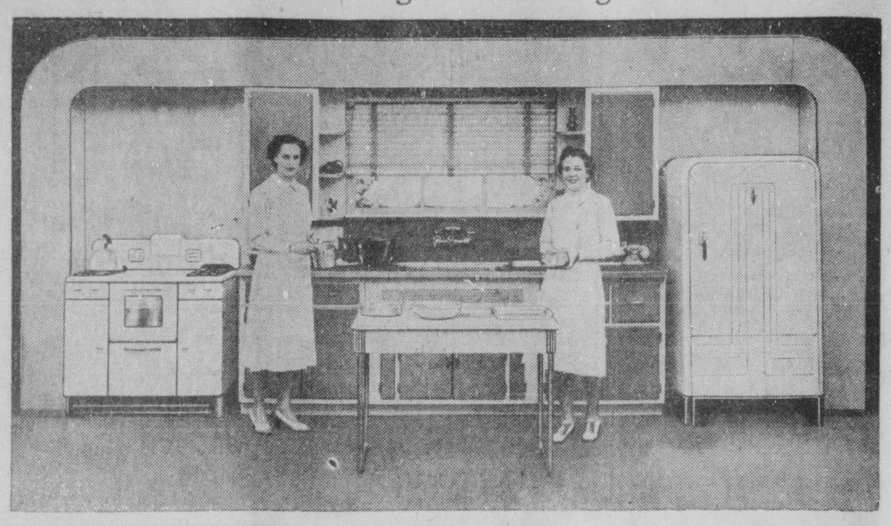
Attractive Setting For Cooking School



ABOVE is pictured the lovely model all-gas kitchen as it will appear on the stage of Memorial Hall tomorrow when the curtain rises on the first session of the 1940 Cooking School. The kitchen is built in units which, when assembled together, make a complete modern kitchen of latest design and equipment. These smaller units are moved from town to town in a modern streamlined trailer.

Congress. In the twelve years he has held his seat he has never made a campaign speech . . . You can be sure that if Secretary Morgenthau is required to express an opinion on the plan of Senator Townsend to stop purchase of foreign silver, he will oppose it.

McNUTT INCOME TAXES

The McNutt income tax investiproblem of smoking out big, jovial Bowman ("Bo") Elder, ex-treasurer of the American Legion and finance man for the McNutt forces in Indiana.

Elder was the man who received the funds from the Two Per Cent Club (by which state employees gave the party 2 per cent of their salary), and he also knew —or the Treasury thinks he knew —where these funds were disbursed.

It is the claim of the McNutt group that wihle large funds were received, they were all paid out for political purposes, and for this reason no income taxes were payable. In fact, McNutt himself, then a state employee, did not even file an income tax return.

However, the Treasury insists on getting details on how the funds were psent and Bo Elder is the key to this puzzle. They are waiting for him to talk, and he, in turn, says he will not be made the scapegoat.

Meanwhile, McNutt forces, jittery over delay and anxious to push the campaign of their candidate, demand that the Treasury either exonerate or indict. A break in the present impasse is coming soon.

NOTE—"Tuck" Stanley, McNutt's discouraged publicity expert, has resigned.

BORAH STATUE

The State of Idaho plans to enshrine the memory of its late great Senator William E. Borah under the lofty dome of the National Capitol, where he served for more than 30 years.

The State will fill its quota of statues in Statuary Hall (the original chamber of the House of Representatives, where each state is allowed to place two statues). The sculptor has not yet been chosen.

Borah will be the second Senator selected by Idaho for this honor. Its other statue is that of Senator George L. Shoup, a pioneer who was the first Governor of Idaho when the territory was admitted to statehood in July, 1890. The Shoup statue is the tallest in Statuary Hall, standing 13 feet.

NOTE—Mrs. Borah, accompanied by one of her sisters, soon will sail for Hawaii for a rest. Her plans after returning are indefinite; she is still undecided whether to reside in Washington or go back to Idaho.

CONGRESSMAN'S COSTS

It's an old Capitol Hill axiom that you can get a Congressman to talk about almost anything but the size of his bankroll. He'll orate at great length about the way the taxpayer's money is being squandered, but ask him how much of it he himself has managed to salt away during his years on the public payroll, and you've got a speechless Congressman.

One exception to this rule is lanky, tobacco-chewing Bob Secrest of Ohio. When he announced his candidacy for reelection for a fifth term the other day, Secrest accompanied the statement with an itemized account of his personal financial affairs. A public official, he told his constituents, is not entitled to privacy regarding his personal wealth, "for by this means the public can best measure his honesty in office."

"I have drawn $10,000 a year in my eight years in Congress," reported Secrest, "yet though I live as always did before, I have saved only $9,000, chiefly in insurance and realty. On the other hand, I owe $4,200. Four campaigns have taken thousands of dollars of my salary.

"In addition, income tax on my salary has been over $2,000, my telephone bills have cost me more than $5,000, chiefly long distance calls to help individuals and communities in my district. In my first five years in Washington, I spent $4,000 for transportation, over and above my mileage allowance, and have worn out five new cars.

"Further, several thousand dollars have gone for charity to individuals and worthy organizations in my district. That's the record. As long as I am in Congress I feel that the people are entitled to know where my money goes and what I own."

NO ALLIED SHIPS SENT DOWN IN MARCH 24 WEEK

LONDON, March 26—During the week ending March 24 not a single British or allied merchant ship was sunk, the admiralty announced today.

It was the first week that British or Allied merchantmen have escaped totally unharmed from German submarines, mines and aerial attacks since the war began.

Eight neutral vessels were sunk, however, but none of these was convoyed when attacked, the announcement stated, adding that two German vessels had been torpedoed by British submarines.

ELECTION YEAR WINS INTEREST

Londoners Watch Result Of Ballot In America; F. D. R. Favored

LONDON, March 26 — This is an election year in England, but the British will not be able to vote. The Americans will cast the ballots.

This briefly gives a picture of the intense interest with which the English are following developments in the Presidential campaign.

The man-in-the-street in London already has his candidate — Franklin D. Roosevelt. The third-term issue is only vaguely understood, but all are aware that there is some doubt whether or not Roosevelt will run.

Americans living abroad are constantly being button-holed by acquaintances and eagerly asked if Roosevelt will be a candidate, and, if so, what are his chances.

Roosevelt's popularity in Great Britain is based on his several peace appeals and on the widespread conviction that he is a friend of the Allies.

It is also true that little is known of the other candidates. McNutt, Garner, Dewey, Vandenberg, and Taft are merely names to the average Englishman.

Enthusiastically Applauded

No public figure, for example, is greeted with such enthusiastic applause in the news reels as is President Roosevelt. It is equal in volume to the hissing and bronx cheers with which Hitler is recevied.

Few people seriously believe that Roosevelt's reelection would eventually mean American intervention in the war, but they prefer candidacy of a man whose policies are know to be sympathetic to one whose views have not been defined.

Even before the war Roosevelt's magnetic personality had captured the public imagination as no other British leader except, perhaps, Winston Churchill. The two previous American presidents, Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover, seem to have lacked this appeal.

But, whatever the outcome of the election, it is certain to be fought on paper, at least, as fiercely in Great Britain as in America.

BOGGS REPORTS NEW FACTS FOR TOBACCO FARMS

Burley tobacco growers can now plant smaller crops in 1941 and in later years without affecting the size of their future AAA allotments or quotas, John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway County AAA Committee, announced this week.

A producer who grows less tobacco than his 1941 allotment is eligible to receive an allotment in the following year based on the past allotment rather than the planted acreage.

Under the new provision, if a producer grows as much as half of his 1940 allotment, his allotment for 1941 and later years will be determined just as though an acreage as large as the allotment had been grown in 1940. Likewise, if less than half of the allotment is grown on any farm in 1940, the allotment for 1941 and later years will be determined as though one-half of the 1940 allotment had been grown. "In view of existing tobacco surpluses and prospects for relatively low prices, some farmers would prefer to plant a smaller acreage of tobacco than their allotment calls for," the chairman explained. "At recent conferences, growers agreed that the supply of Burley now on hand is so large that it would be helpful if the acreage of tobacco grown in 1940 would be less than the acreage allotted for this year, he said.

The 1939 Burley tobacco crop was estimated at 365 million pounds when the quota was proclaimed in November, 1939, the chairman pointed out, while more recent estimates place the crop at approximately 390 million pounds, or 60 million pounds in excess of estimated world consumption of Burley tobacco for the year 1940.

Miss Esther Roehm To Be In Charge Of Annual Program

NEW FEATURES READY

Numerous Gifts Awarded To Persons Attending Sessions

Once again cooking takes the spotlight in Circleville and Pickaway County with the opening of the 1940 Cooking School in Memorial Hall auditorium Wednesday at 2 p. m. This cooking event is being brought to Circleville by the combined cooperation of The Circleville Herald, the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and some of the Circleville district's enterprising merchants.

A staff of experienced personnel is in charge of the School including the food lecturer, Miss Esther Roehm. Miss Dorothy Duncan, local home service representative of the Gas Company, assists Miss Roehm. All physical properties of the Cooking School are in charge of K. A. Williams, who also handles announcements and takes an active part in all programs.

A complete change of program from last year presents a novel and varied series of lectures, demonstrations and dramatic skits which will both entertain and inform the School audiences. The School has acquired a reputation for its unique presentation of the latest cooking trends. During the programs practically every phase of cooking and food preparation will be covered with special emphasis on time-saving methods and the preparation of unusual food servings.

The opening program, "Life Begins at Breakfast", is a different approach to the problem of getting variety and substance into breakfast menus. The program opens in a dramatic manner which holds many surprises for the audience. Every homemaker will find much of interest in this first day's program.

Many New Features

A score of brand new features will enliven the interest of the Cooking School this year. For example, the "magic mirrors" bringing an exciting new touch to all cooking demonstrations. These and other properties are designed to make each program more enter-

STATE SECRETARY TAKES 'TURN FOR THE WORSE'

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Secretary of State Earl Griffith, who suffered a heart attack in his office in the statehouse yesterday, took a turn for the worse during the night and was reported in critical condition this morning by attaches of White Cross Hospital.

Griffith, whose ailment was complicated by pulmonary trouble, was placed in an oxygen tent to aid his breathing.

The attack followed a severe cold and an attack of influenza Griffith suffered recently, Dr. Link Murphy, his attending physician, said.

BRITISH LUXURY LINER TO START PANAMA CRUISE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 26—The 35,739-ton British luxury liner Mauretania will pick up a British warship escort after passing through the Panama Canal, it was reported today.

The Mauretania, now painted war-time gray and believed enroute to Australia to serve as a troop ship, anchored last night in Cristobal Bay, but was expected to begin passing through the canal today.

Only a few persons were aware of the presence of the great ship off Cristobal after she arrived under cover of darkness, blacked-out save for her running lights.

The vessel will make the trip through the canal as fast as possible, it was anticipated, and is

SPRING-LIKE WEATHER AT HAND, FORECASTERS FOR STATE ANNOUNCE

Spring is on the way.

Although Monday night saw the thermometer again plummet below the 10-degree mark in scattered parts of the state, forecasters Tuesday promised fair skies and slowly rising temperature for the remainder of the week.

Spring-like weather, the meteorologists declared, will arrive with the week end.

Circleville's low temperature during the night was 20 degrees, six points higher than Monday's low reading.

The area around Cambridge was hardest hit Monday night with the mercury sliding to eight degrees. Hayesville reported 12 degrees, Toledo and Cleveland had 13, Columbus and East Liverpool 14, Akron 15, Dayton 19, and Cincinnati was one degree above Circleville.

AUDIT ASKED TO CLEAR QUESTION OF RELIEF FUND

The Pickaway County commissioners Monday authorized a complete audit of all funds received from beer, malt, admissions and public utility tax in an effort to clear up any misunderstanding that might exist between the county and City of Circleville concerning the expenditure of this money for relief purposes. The audit will be conducted by an examiner from the office of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, according to Herbert A. Sifferlin, relief examiner, who was in the county Monday.

"If the city thinks that it has some funds due it," one of the commissioners said, "we will do everything possible to bring the fund to light. We are ordering a complete audit of all money coming into the county from these sources."

Council in discussion last Wednesday evening brought up the subject of relief funds with some of the officials declaring that they believed the city should have some money in the county treasury since they had no record of any money being distributed from beer, malt, admissions and public utilities. County officials pointed out, however, that prior to July, 1939, all relief funds had gone into one relief pot from which city and county expenditures for aid were made. No distinction was made between city and county shares, they said.

All parties concerned hope that the audit will determine definitely whether the city should have a relief balance in the auditor's office.

CAR HUNTED AS CLUE IN DEATH OF OHIO YOUTH

Patrolmen Seek Auto Seen In Southern Ohio After Store Robbery

Body Of John Baldwin, 19, Tossed In Front Of Doctor's Home

WEST UNION, O., March 26 — State Highway patrolmen today searched for a black coupe from which the bullet-riddled body of John Baldwin, 19, was thrown outside the office of a West Union physician.

Coroner E. T. Gibboney expressed the belief that the murder of Baldwin and the $150 robbery of the "rolling grocery store" of William McKee was perpetrated by the same men. McKee said he was held up near Baldwin's home, 12 miles northeast of West Union. It was believed Baldwin may have been shot because he was a witness to the holdup and recognized the robbers.

According to a report over highway patrol radio, three men in a light blue car with license tags covered with cardboard, held up the grocery truck at approximately 7:45 p. m. Monday about five miles East of West Union on the Vaughn Chapel road.

Robbery Confirmed

Mrs. Harold Tracy, owner of the store since the recent death of her husband, confirmed the story of the armed robbery of the truck.

Dr. O. T. Sproull, West Union, said that an injured man had been found in front of the doorway of his residence about 8 p. m. and that he had been identified. He died approximately 15 minutes later, and according to Dr. Sproull, cause of the death was undetermined although Baldwin was suffering from a bad flesh wound on the inside of his right thigh. No bones were broken.

At the time of the robbery, Mrs. Tracy notified Adams County sheriff's office and patrolmen at Georgetown. The Adams County sheriff, Mr. Baldridge, and his deputy was unable to act on the case at the time because they were engaged in a murder trial being conducted at the time. However, according to Mrs. Baldridge, they assisted the Georgetown patrolmen on the case as soon as they were free.

Thought To Be Prank

Dr. Sproull said that he did not know who brought the man to his front door, and that at first he thought the man was not injured and that it was the work of some pranksters.

'BOOK' OPERATOR, NUMBER WRITER FORFEIT BONDS

The Circleville treasury was aided by $100 Tuesday when a numbers writer and a race horse book operator forfeited $50 bonds each for hearings in Mayor W. B. Cady's court. They were Clyde Weaver, East Corwin Street, charged with participating in the numbers game, and Paul Carman, South Court Street, who was cited for running a 'book'.

One radio commentator charged the romance merely is a publicity buildup.

Lyle Reports Auto Tag Sales Surpassing 1939

As Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, issued a warning that there will be no extension in the deadline date of March 31 for the purchase of license tags, A. J. Lyle, deputy registrar of motor vehicles in Circleville, said Tuesday that tag sales to date are ahead of last year.

Lyle announced that starting Wednesday evening the Pickaway Motor Sales rooms will be open until 9 o'clock each evening through Saturday.

Sales early Tuesday totalled 1,628. At the same date of 1939 only 1,350 pairs of license plates had been sold. By April 1, 1939 sales amounted to 2,318. The total number of tags sold during 1939 was 3,675.

State authorities warned that drivers without new tags on their cars by April 1 are subject to arrest and a $25 fine. Mayor William Cady said this week that strict enforcement of that regulation has been ordered of the police department.

Local agencies that attempt to make any extension of the deadline will also be subject to arrest as state enforcement officers will move into the offending territories.

BRITISH CRUISER CHASES GERMAN VESSEL AGROUND

LONDON, March 26—Great Britain's intensified naval campaign against Germany produced still more results today as another German vessel ran aground on the Danish coast south of Hirtshals.

Identity of the German vessel was not revealed beyond the statement that it was a sister-ship of the German coke carrier Edmund Hugo Stinnes IV, which was sunk Sunday night by a British submarine off the west coast of Jutland, Denmark.

It was learned that the unidentified German vessel ran aground while attempting to evade pursuing British naval craft.

The fate of this ship marked the second incident in which a German vessel has run aground since the new British naval drive got under way. On Sunday the German steamer Ostpreussen ran aground off Skalderup while en route to Germany with a cargo of coke. A Danish salvage vessel went to its assistance.

British naval circles declined to comment on Copenhagen and other Scandinavian reports regarding the nature of the British naval concentration off the Norwegian coast.

These reports estimated that the British units consisted of several flotillas of light and heavy destroyers in addition to submarines.

Domestic Airlines End Year Without Fatality

WASHINGTON, March 26—American aviation passed another momentous milestone today as domestic airlines of the United States completed one year of operations without a single fatal accident or serious injury to passengers, crew or other persons.

During the 12-month period following the crash of an airliner at Oklahoma City on March 26, 1939 which brought death to eight, the nation's commercial air carriers safely transported more than 2,000,000 persons—an all-time record for one year.

President Roosevelt, Civil Aeronautic Authority officials and aviation leaders joined in special ceremonies marking the occasion.

A message from the White House will be read over a nation-

Bazooka Bob Burns Denies Love Piracy

But West Coast Man Claims Radio-Film Star Took Wife, Abducted Him

HOLLYWOOD, March 26—"Bazooka Bob" Burns, homely hillbilly funnyman of screen and radio fame, today flatly and emphatically denied charges, contained in a $70,000 damage suit, that he was a "love pirate," and "kidnaper."

The allegations were made by Daniel W. Hoge, former Texas oil man, who knew Burns when the comedian sold street car advertising for a living in Kansas back in 1915.

In his complaint, which he filed late yesterday, Hoge charged Burns had him seized in his Washington home and haled under threats to a downtown Los Angeles office, after he had accused Burns of stealing the affections of his wife, Millie Bernice Hoge.

There, the suit declared, Hoge was forced to sign a release, absolving Burns of the alleged love theft, and promising never to assert the matter again.

At his swank Bel-Air home, Burns snorted his disgust and his denials.

"This is crazy," he exploded. "I never had any more to do with his wife than the man in the moon. "I think the guy has lost his mind. Imagine me kidnaping anybody."

Burns said that Hoge had threatened several times to sue him, but that he had taken no notice until Hoge went to the offices of his studio, Paramount Pictures, with his charges.

"Paramount lawyers went to the district attorney's office," he

PAROLE DENIED FOR PRESIDENT OF CLOSED BANK

COLUMBUS, March 26 — The State Pardon and Parole Commission today refused to grant a parole to Charles E. Wheland, Uhrichsville, former bank president serving a penitentiary term for the embezzlement of approximately $475,000.

Wheland's case was continued to March 1941, when he again will be considered for a parole.

The 48-year-old former president of the defunct Union Bank of Uhrichsville was at the London prison farm when the parole commission announced the adverse ruling.

Brought to Ohio penitentiary from the Junction City brick plant for the parole hearing a week ago, Wheland was later transferred to the London honor farm where higher type prisoners are confined.

Under the ten-to-30 year sentence imposed by the trial court, Wheland would not have been eligible for a parole until April, 1943.

However, in reviewing another case early this year, the parole commission ruled that a trial judge could not fix a minimum sentence in excess of that provided by statute.

The statutory penalty provided under 54 of the 55 counts in the indictment against Wheland was none-to-30 years. The other count carried a sentence of one-to-five years. Since the sentences were

HOUSE TO HEAR PLANS TO SELL ALLIES PLANES

WASHINGTON, March 26—Full details of the administration's plan to sell late models of airplanes being built for the national defense program to Great Britain and France probably will be revealed tomorrow by Secretary of War Woodring, house military affairs committee members said today.

Decision to relax restrictions on sale of late model planes—restrictions known to have caused a slow-down in Allied plane purchases in this country—reportedly was reached yesterday at a conference between President Roosevelt, Woodring, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Woodring has been called to testify tomorrow when the house military affairs committee opens hearings on sales of planes to foreign powers.

The house investigation was ordered after members charged that the Allies were being sold military plane secrets. President Roosevelt described these charges as "bunk," and said volume sales of aircraft abroad would build up American plant production capacity to a point where U. S. defense needs could be more rapidly filled with later-model, more efficient planes.

ONNO MAY LEAVE TOWN, BUT NOT UNTIL SUMMER

For about the twenty-seventh time, Onno Wilson, East Franklin Street, was in the county jail Tuesday charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct. Onno was released from jail Sunday and was picked up again Monday evening.

Onno, who has told Mayor W. B. Cady many times that he would leave Circleville, made the same pledge Tuesday. Mayor Cady replied, though: "You may leave Circleville, but it will not be until sometime in June, because you are fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail."

Berlin Declares British Violating Neutrality With Aircraft

PARIS, March 26 — A huge renewal of activity all along the Western Front, with continuous artillery fire and intensified patrol sorties, was reported in dispatches from the battle zone today.

The fighting broke out with new vigor in the midst of the Easter holidays — the season of peace—as heavy guns pounded the opposing lines from one end of the Franco-German border to the other.

Advices said artillery duels raged yesterday along the entire Western Front and that they were accompanied by numerous German attacks on Allied outposts. These attacks, however, were repulsed with ease, the French reports said.

At one point along the Rhine River sector, three German soldiers launched a small boat in the river, bearing anti-British propaganda slogans.

The soldiers were killed immediately by French rifle fire.

Explosions Heard

Mysterious explosions were seen and heard at various points along the German Siegfried Line, but it was not known whether these blasts resulted from French artillery shells or from "local accidents."

Both the Allied and German air forces were extremely active. French planes carried out night reconnoitering flights deep into Germany. In the daytime the French planes also carried out numerous photographic and artillery control missions over the German lines.

(In London the Evening Standard reported that British warplanes carried out reconnaissance flights over northwestern Germany and over Prague during the night.

(The German war communique today accused Allied planes of "repeatedly violating" the neutrality of the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium and Switzerland while crossing into northern and southwestern Germany.)

LONDON—The British government revealed today that it will refuse to recognize the puppet Wang Ching-Wei regime which Japan proposes to establish in China. In reply to Japanese queries regarding Britain's attitude toward the puppet Wang government, it was learned that the Japanese were informed that "his majesty's government recognizes only the Chiang Kai-Shek regime as the legally constituted government in China."

PARIS — In a new move to "streamline" his government for a maximum war effort, Premier Paul Reynaud today announced that all questions relating to exports hereafter will be concentrated in the office of the minister of commerce.

LONDON—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is considering formation of a "big five" war cabinet as a means of intensifying Britain's war effort, the London Daily Mail said today. According to the newspaper, the stream-lined cabinet would include himself, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Lord Privy Seal Sir Samuel Hoare.

wide radio hookup by CAA Chairman Robert H. Hinckley from Salt Lake City.

At 3:50 this morning, exactly one year after the Oklahoma City crash, the following message sped over the government's 30,000-mile aviation teletype network from the CAA in Washington:

"Notice to airmen: Heartiest congratulations to all airline, CAA and weather bureau personnel on completion of an entire year of airline safety. This is one of the outstanding achievements in the history of transportation."

This message also was radioed to more than 200 airliners in flight. Some 3,000 passengers aboard these planes were given copies of the message, countersigned by the captains.

In addition to completing their first year of non-fatality operations, the commercial airline established a number of other records.

The 2,000,000 passengers flown during the 12 months travelled approximately 815,000,000 miles. During the same period a year earlier, the airlines carried only 2,380,000 passengers for a travel mileage of 565,000,000 miles.

TEEGARDIN AND JOHNSON ESTATE VALUES LISTED

Inventories filed with Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon Tuesday in the estates of Peter L. Johnson and Florence M. Teegardin totalled $49,949.52 and $58,146.22 respectively.

The bulk of the estate of the late Peter Johnson is in savings accounts and bonds, notes and other securities. Real estate holdings, centered in Ashville, were appraised at $11,033. Details of the inventory are personal goods and chattels, $2,537.65; bonds, notes, securities, $22,000; bank deposits and accounts receivable and other credits, $16,878.49; real estate, $11,033. Appraisal amounted $52,449, but $2,500 was exempted from administration.

Real estate was the largest single item in the state of the late Florence Teegardin. The holdings were concentrated in Madison and Harrison Township and were valued at $25,700. A breakdown of the appraisal shows the following items: personal goods and chattels, $4,307.50; money, $1,142.64; bonds, notes and securities, $19,266.27; accounts receivable $7,729.81; real estate, $25,700.

No part of the $58,146 estate was relieved of administration.

to be served concurrently, thus totaling a sentence of 1-to-30 years, the commission held that Wheland should have been eligible for a hearing a year after he entered the penitentiary.

The banker entered the penitentiary January 2, 1937. Shortly thereafter, he became ill of stomach ulcers. He refused an operation in the prison hospital, and lost over 100 pounds before being removed to Grant Hospital in Columbus for a series of abdominal operations.

Following his convalescence, he was transferred to Junction City, where, officials believed, the sunlight and fresh air would aid his ultimate recovery.

AKRON WOULD TAX KENO, BINGO GAMES' OPERATION

AKRON, March 26—An ordinance to secure revenue for the city by taxing of bingo and keno games and similar amusements was being drafted today by First Assistant Law Director Harold L. Mull, according to Frank Waite, chairman of the Akron city council's finance committee.

Waite said that the operator of each of these games would be assessed a $25 monthly tax and a special one dollar tax for each day the game is operated.

The proposal was expected to arouse strong opposition, particularly from the Akron Ministerial Association which has opposed similar measures in the past. Waite said, however, that he believed there were enough favorable votes in council to pass the ordinance.

said, "and the district attorney's men, or somebody, brought Hoge downtown to find out what it was all about. I was not there, but I was told Hoge said there was nothing to the charges. Then he signed a paper admitting it, and later apologized to me and asked me to forgive him."

The alleged kidnaping took place, according to Hoge's complaint, on December 29, 1938.

Not only did his abductors seize his person, Hoge charged, but also ransacked his house and confiscated important papers.

After he had signed the releases, one of which absolved the Paramount Company, he stated his "life was threatened unless he 'forgot all about this,' with the result he has lived in fear ever since."

He alleged that Burns, whom he first met in Kansas in 1915, renewed acquaintance in Hollywood in 1932 when he began visiting Hoge and his wife.

In 1935, Hoge alleged, his wife left him "because of Burns," and in 1938, Hoge planned to get a divorce, naming Burns, but denied that he had ever threatened the actor with the suit or asked for money.

Hoge declared he signed the releases on advice of an attorney, who told him to sign and take action later.

Burns' first wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher Burns, died of accidental burns in 1936, and on May, 30, 1937, the comedian married his secretary, the former Harriet Foster.

WALLACE WANTS CHANGE IN FARM LOAN PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, March 26 — Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today advocated a sweeping revision of the entire farm loan system—including lower interest rates and government guarantees of bonds—in testimony before the house agriculture committee today.

He indorsed major features of a bill by Committee Chairman Jones (D) Tex., which scraps important parts of the 25-year-old federal bank system.

Emphasizing the need for lower interest rates on farm loans, Wallace approved the policy of the Jones bill to make loans at 3 to 3½ percent.

expected to reach the Pacific early this afternoon.

Shortly thereafter she is expected to contact the warship escort which is believed to be waiting for her at an undisclosed point, presumably to protect her on the long voyage to Australia.

The Mauretania sailed from New York on Wednesday, a day ahead of the giant 81,235-ton British liner Queen Mary, which is too wide to pass through the canal. If the Queen Mary also is bound for Australia, she probably would make the journey via Cape Horn.

Stories of German submarines lurking off the Galapagos Islands, possibly lying in wait for the Mauretania, were believed responsible for the reported warship escort.

REPAIR OF 110 MILES OF ROADS TO START SOON

Commissioners Seek Bids For WPA Program Under Engineer's Direction

MUCH MATERIAL NEEDED

List Of Highways To Have Surfaces Treated Named By Officials

Embarking on a program of road repairs for county highways, the County Commissioners announced Monday that they would receive bids for the supply of 70,000 gallons of bituminous materials as required by the county engineer at approximately 12 cents per gallon. The bids are to be opened April 8.

The repair work which is under the blanket WPA program for 1940 will involve 110.68 miles of road. Mileage and the roads which are to be repaired are as follows:

Hayesville-Adelphi Road 11, 10.16; Circleville-Tarlton Road 16, 3.18; Circleville-Groveport Road 7, 7.19; Circleville-Commercial Point Road 4, 8.13; Darbyville-Columbus Road 33, 4.05; Circleville-London-Northern Road 3 (Darby Township) 3.26.

Palestine-Williamsport Road 21, 6.21; Circleville-London-Northern Road 3 (Jackson and Muhlenberg Townships) 6.83; Circleville-Florence Chapel Road 6, 1.60; Clark's Run Road 34, 4.43; Yankeetown Road 17, 8.10; Waterloo-New Holland-Egypt Road 25, 3.16.

Tarlton-Adelphi Road, 64, 1.74; Circleville-Stoutsville Road 40, 4.74; Circleville-Kingston Road 9, 6:60; Circleville-Commercial Point Road4, 5.22; Circleville-Lockbourne Road 28, 7.93; Circleville-Lockbourne-Eastern Road 31, .77.

Ashville-Fairfield Road 32, 1.25; Williamsport-Chillicothe Road 23, 6.44; Mt. Sterling-Commercial Point Road 22, 2.09; Stahl Road 158, .45; Ashville-St. Paul Road 90, 3.19; Goodman-Teegardin Road 85, 3.96.

Mothers Told What Not To Do To Crash Films

HOLLYWOOD, March 26 — Here's a tip to mothers if they want to get their children into pictures — don't dress them or make them up to resemble some famous child star.

Instead, let them be their natural selves and don't overtrain them.

This advice from Julius Evans, head of the RKO Radio talent department. He has recently had experience with child actors, and knows whereof he speaks.

He sent out a call for a girl, 7 or 8 years old, for "My Favorite Wife." More than 50 answered.

"Ninety percent of them either had curls after the manner of Shirley Temple or straight Dutch bobs like Jane Withers," Evans reports. "Most of them are stuffed full of schooling and recited lines like parrots. Not natural at all, just elocution.' '

At Bottom Of List

At the bottom of the list was a little girl making her first visit to a studio. She was given some of the lines to read.

"I nearly screamed," Evans says, "as she was exactly like the others, even if she had just come to Hollywood. I said, as politely as I could, I was afraid she wouldn't fit our requirements. When she and her mother started to leave, she turned and thanked me for having-given her a hearing. Her voice was perfectly natural then—not elecutionary and I saw a gleam of hope."

Evans had the girl read the part again, this time without flourishes —just in her natural voice.

"If it wasn't for those curls—" he hesitated.

"All little girls have curls, especially children who are professionals," her mother defended.

Signed to Contract

Evans took the child and her mother to see Director Kanin, but before he did, he had the curls combed out and only two short pigtails at the back of her head.

When the gril read the lines for Kanin and he talked with her a short time, he instructed Evans to sign her.

So Mary Lou Harrington of Detroit, Mich., was put under contract, and has forgotten all her cute little elocutionary tricks and her desire to look like Shirley Temple, and is scoring a great hit by simply being natural.

"If mothers would only remember that we're looking for children with personality, not more Shirley Temples, they would find many more chances for their youngsters to really get some place in pictures," Evans sighs. "But they probably won't."

FUEHRER READY TO TALK ABOUT BRENNER CONFAB

LONDON, March 26 — Chancellor Hitler will soon deliver an important speech outlining the results of his recent conversation with Premier Mussolini at Brenner Pass, the London News Chronicle reported from Brussels today.

According to the News Chronicle, Mussolini agreed to enter an understanding with Russia in exchange for permanent peace in the Balkans. In addition, it was stated, Mussolini told Hitler he desires the European war to be limited to the Franco-German front and the neutrality of Belgium and Holland to be respected.

MAYOR ORDERS CHURCH VISITS FOR 'REGULARS'

CHILLICOTHE, March 26—A new kind of sentence was handed down by Mayor Harold H. Brown to four consistent repeaters who have been brought in on charges of drunkenness.

Suspending workhouse terms, each was directed by the Mayor to attend any church or Sunday school next Sunday and each Sunday after that for nine weeks.

For the next ten Mondays each of the men must appear before the Mayor with a signed "receipt" from the pastor or the superintendent as evidence of compliance with the Mayor's order. A lapse in the execution of the order will result in a trip to the workhouse.

"Maybe this will work. We've tried every other way," the Mayor said.

KIWANIANS HEAR ADDRESS ON STATE CONSERVATION

Johnny Jones, widely known Columbus sportsman, spoke before the Kiwanis Club Monday evening on the conservation program in Ohio, discussing Governor Bricker's "Conservation Week", which is being observed the week of April 5.

Jones, a guest of Carl Bennett, urged Kiwanians to promote tree planting and to do all they could to help conserve trees.

Another guest at the meeting was Kenneth Holtrey, agricultural instructor of the Walnut school.

Lawrence Snodgrass, employe of the Citizens Telephone Co., became a new member of the club at its meeting Monday evening.

ASHVILLE

Ashville, Phone 79

At the local United Brethren Easter services there were 185 present at Sunday school. At the church service seven new members were received into full membership and the rites of baptism conferred on nineteen, fourteen of these being infants. The church special collection amounted to $264. At Robtown church 76 were present at Sunday school, ten new members united with the church and nine baptisms.

This kind of winter weather doesn't fit in so well with dwelling house construction but it's fine for doing the cost figuring. Talked to some of the supply and building men yesterday and they told us there would be five new dwellings for sure and several more in the talking stage. So the prospects for that dozen-for-sure new dwellings for the season, gets brighter each day.

—Ashville—

Mrs. Lida Brinker recently received a letter from her nephew, William Lane, located in New York City. He is employed by a law firm there which has to do with maritime business. Our Mr. Lane is an Ashville High graduate and also of the O. S. U. law department. During his school years his vacation periods were spent shipping on the seas, having crossed the Atlantic 25 times according to his own statement. And while doing all this ocean travel made all the ports of the world except four. Among the things the letter contained, hesaid: "I saw the Queen Elizabeth come to New York harbor and it was a sight I shall never forget."

—Ashville—

Easter services at the Ashville Methodist Church were marked by special music with Mrs. Walter Hedges and Mrs. R. S. Hosler, and Chester Hedges and Dick Welch taking the solo parts. Children baptized were Phyllis and Edith Bozman, and infants James Lamb Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glyn Hoover and Larry Beatty Fullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fullen.

—Ashville—

At Hedges Chapel Methodist Church the rites of baptism were administered to four children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams. They were Betty Irene, Wanda Pauline, George Allen and Walter Lee. The following were received into the membership of the church, Dorwin Eugene Hay, Joe Hilbert Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holtrey, Hugh Lamb and Ellen Ruth Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wharton and sons George and Billy. Approximately one hundred people participated in the Communion service. Special music was rendered by a Junior Choir and a Youth Choir directed by Miss Elizabeth Reber, a double quartette sang "Christ the Lord is Risen Today" and Metta Mae Hickman rendered a violin offertory solo. Mrs. Martin Cromley was at the piano.

—Ashville—

At the regular Good Friday Communion Service in the Ashville Methodist Church there were approximately eighty communicants. Miss Althea Ballinger of South Bloomfield was the soloist at this service. The Rev. T. A. Ballinger and the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh assisted the pastor Rev. Walter Peters in the service.

—Ashville—

Homer S. Reber has been designated chairman of the White Cross Hospital Loyalty movement and has called a meeting at the Ashville Church next Sunday at 2 p. m. Dr. J. L. Spindler will serve as local treasurer, and Rev. H. O. Harbaugh is the local hospital counsellor. Those serving on the teams are John Sark, A. B. Courtright, the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh, H. E. Swayer, W. O. Dountz, T. R. Acord, T. W. Purcell, Mrs J. L. Spindler, Hedges Chapel, Wilbur Brinker, Kenneth Holtrey, Glen Hay, Frank Dill, Gerald Solt, Wayne Hines, Martin Cromley, Hugh Solt and Sam Brinker. C. T. Hay, Russell Hedges, William Scothorn. The campaign will extend from April 1 to 10.

—Ashville—

Ashville Methodist Church was dedicated April 25, 1890 and will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary on Sunday, April 28. Committees were named by the Official Board of the Church for this anniversary as follows:—Invitation, Mrs. Blanche Morrison and Mrs. J. L. Spindler, program, Rev. H. O. Harbaugh, Mrs. R. S. Hosler, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Scothorn and Miss Ruth Courtright; decorating, M. M. Hott, H. E. Swayer, Mrs. S. Beckett, Mrs. T. W. Purcell, dinner, The Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. H. E. Swayer, president, reception, A. B. Courtright, Mrs. Blanche Morrison, John Sark, Dr. J. L. Spindler, Mrs. Lyda Brinker.

Easter was observed as a day of joy and gladness in First English Lutheran Church, Ashville. In his sermon, the pastor, the Rev. H. D. Fudge, stressed the significance of Christ's Resurrection, and called on the worshippers for a renewal of faith and Christian life. The service was enhanced by beautiful floral offerings and burning candles which beautifully bedecked the altar, and by special music by the robed choir. The choir, under the direction of Miss Gretchen Plum, sang "The Resurrection Light" by Wooler. The service was climaxed with the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

Preceding the Easter Service, Palm Sunday had been observed together with Confirmation, and Maundy Thursday with Holy Communion. Those confirmed on Palm Sunday were: Maurice Martin, Harold and Gene Tosca.

GOOD WILL

ONE of the most valuable assets a railroad can have is the good will of the public it serves.

In building good will, it is essential, of course, that the railroad provide an adequate, efficient transportation service. The constant, frank presentation of the true facts about the railroad—its problems and what it is attempting to do—is another vital factor. But so far as the Norfolk and Western Railway is concerned, genuine public good will grows from something more lasting and significant. And that is: a sympathetic understanding and a common interest which actually exists between the railway and the public, plus mutual respect and confidence.

The Norfolk and Western is what you might call a "home-town" railroad. For during the 101 years of its existence, the railway has grown up with hundreds of communities along its lines. The people of those communities have played a very definite part in the development of the railroad, and the railroad has played a very definite part in the development of the communities. They live and work together as neighbors and friends. They understand and respect each other. Each has a sincere interest and pride in the progress and achievements of the other. These things are the essence of genuine good will.

The Norfolk and Western cherishes the good will of its patrons and friends, and of the communities it is privileged to serve. The railway will always strive sincerely and diligently to merit that good will.

SELLING WAR PLANES

AS regards the sale of American airplanes to the Allies, which is coming to be an argumentative question, we might as well face facts. Assuming that we're determined to keep out of war, the facts now visible seem to be about like this.

Air combat and bombing have come to be very important and may eventually dominate the war.

The Nazis so far seem stronger in the air than Britain and France.

Britain and France hope to gain air supremacy and keep it by getting all the planes they need from America, and they have enough funds to pay for such air supremacy for perhaps two years.

We have an acknowledged right to sell them planes for cash, to take away at their own risk, just as we would do with any other belligerent that would come and get them.

Some people, both foreign and American, are beginning to object to this. Some of them object for the benefit of Germany, but most of them object honestly for patriotic reasons.

If we stop selling the Allies war planes, they may get licked. With enough planes, they will probably win.

So it seems to boil down to a question whether we want to take the chance of living in the kind of world it might be if the Allies were licked.

TALENTED YOUNG MUSICIANS

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI, famous orchestra conductor, has been testing young musicians for the big orchestra he plans to take on a South American tour during the coming summer. He is reported as delighted with what he finds. Some of the people he has heard show "amazing promise."

This is interesting, because the principal purpose of Mr. Stokowski's good will tour is to give employment and encouragement to young musicians of marked talent. He believes there are plenty of them who will make the most of the opportunity he offers.

After the summer trip he hopes to keep the orchestra intact and eventually to tour the United States. As the members grow in experience they will be expected to return to their home states to start other youth orchestras, while younger musicians take their places in his organization.

Mr. Stokowski should have no difficulty in filling the ranks of his proposed 109-piece orchestra. Musical education has been excellent in recent years, with more public school youngsters being taught both how to listen to music and how to produce it. The Stokowski orchestra will focus attention on this work and give the movement fresh impetus. Before long it may mean more good orchestras and more jobs for good musicians all over the country.

As for war sympathies, we're neutral on Sundays after church, but able to do justice to dictators the rest of the week.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

FARLEY INTENDS SHOWDOWN

WASHINGTON—It is no longer any secret that Jim Farley is definitely lined up with the anti-third termers. But not generally known is the fact that Jim actually plans a show-down with Roosevelt regarding the President's own plans, and this showdown will come before the Democratic convention at Chicago.

Jim made up his mind to do this about the same time he issued his recent Massachusetts bombshell labeled, "My name will be presented to the national convention."

Democratic insiders had known for some time that Farley was cold to the idea of the President running again, but he sidestepped a positive commitment. He always declared that he was confident the President had no intention to seek reelection.

In the past month, with Roosevelt slates being entered in various states under obvious White House guidance, Farley's aloofness has hardened to out-and-out hostility. From being on the fence he has slid over definitely to the anti-third term group.

Not only will Jim aggressively fight a third term, but he is prepared to denounce it publicly. However, he will not talk out until he has had a showdown with Roosevelt, at which time he will insist on a categoric "yes" or "no" answer.

If there is no reply, or an unsatisfactory one, then Jim is prepared to express his opposition publicly. He is aware that such a statement would play into the hands of the GOP and that it may mean finale for him politically, but he feels that he owes it to the Democratic Party and the country frankly to state his views.

The Massachusetts statement was Farley's opening gun in his plan to smoke out Roosevelt. From now on, regardless of their close ties and their still warm personal friendship (as far as Farley is concerned), they are two rival candidates.

NOTE—Farley was absolutely sincere when he declared that he was "in no combination with anyone." Recent reports that he was secretly allied with Garner are unfounded. Privately Jim thinks Garner is getting nowhere fast. His own personal ticket is Hull and Farley.

FARM-DIPLOMAT WALLACE

Following publication of a poll showing increased farm support for Henry Wallace, a newsman asked him: "Does this have any effect on your personal political ambitions, Mr. Secretary?"

Wallace evaded: "I noticed the poll indicated Pennsylvania was 51 percent Republican."

"Mr Secretary," persisted the newsman, "did you hear my question?"

"No," said Wallace, grinning. Then he added, "I'm trying to give you something of real interest."

Rest—Great Remedy for a Damaged Heart

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A PHYSICIAN who finds a case of valvular disease of the heart is duty-bound to warn the patient that he should not exert himself unduly. This is good doctrine and common sense doctrine because, naturally, the heart with valvular disease has a mechanical defect and, therefore, has not as much reserve power as a normal heart.

The physician, however, is not greatly fooled as to what his patient will do about his advice. It is all right to say to a boy 12 or 14 years old that he mustn't run too much, but if the boy is playing baseball and he hits the ball, he is going to run down to first base. This often unduly alarms parents, but a great deal of this alarm is unnecessary. The doctor is not so much worried when his advice is disregarded in this respect because he knows that the heart muscle is a wonderful organ and is capable of doing a great deal more than might be expected of it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

We have a remarkable example of the reserve power of the heart muscle in a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It describes a marathon runner who performed a great many strenuous athletic feats, although he had a double valvular disease of the heart.

Advised Against Racing

The runner was 32 years old. He was found by the medical examiners of the athletic board to have heart murmurs which indicate valvular disease, and he was warned against participation in the race. He replied that he had competed in similar races on many occasions without any ill effects. He entered the race and ran a marathon of approximately 26 miles in three hours and two minutes, when the weather was intensely warm and at an altitude of approximately 6,000 feet above sea level. His condition after the race was good and he recovered general bodily equilibrium in a shorter time than his competitors.

A case of a different kind reported in the same journal indicates how completely the heart can heal after a severe, acute attack of coronary disease. Physicians usually order a patient with coronary disease to rest at least six weeks in bed. Time hangs heavy, especially after one gets to feeling better, and such a patient wants to be allowed out of bed. This case is a good example of what strict adherence to the rules will do.

Plenty of Rest

After he had been in bed in the hospital for seven weeks, he remained quietly at home for another month, and then spent six weeks in Nassau, mostly lying on the beach. After this he began very unusual physical exertion. He went airplaning; he went skiing; he engaged in swimming and dancing. He traveled by airplane to Europe, a trip which included 19 hours of continuous flying at an altitude of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet.

I certainly don't wish to be understood as advocating such a regimen for anybody, but there are some lessons to be learned. One is that the heart has great powers of recuperation and great reserve powers. The other is that the great remedy for the heart is rest. Even with such serious damage as comes from a coronary occlusion, the patient, by giving the heart several months of complete rest, gave the soft spot an opportunity to heal and this patient appears to have as good a heart as anybody as a consequence.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. W.: "I have heard that going bareheaded in chilly weather causes sinus trouble. Is there any truth in this?"

Answer: You are just as likely to hear that going bareheaded cures sinus trouble. Cold may be a factor in sinus trouble, but a remote one.

FIVE YEARS AGO

C. A. Leist, North Pickaway Street, purchased the property of Harry West, West Main Street, for $5,000 at sheriff's sale.

George Beers of Commercial Point, who had been in the eighth district office of the sales tax division, was transferred to Pickaway County to work with E. W. Weiler.

All physicians of the county were notified to watch for a corn thief seeking treatment for gun shot wounds after being "peppered" on the farm of Howard Hughes, north of South Bloomfield.

10 YEARS AGO

W. I. Spangler, a resident of Tarlton, cast his hat in the ring as candidate for state senator from the Tenth District, subject to the Democratic primaries.

The City of Circleville was made defendant in Common Pleas court by Marvine Riffle through her next friend, Harry W. Riffle, for the sum of $5,000. The petition states the girl suffered serious injuries to her right arm at the elbow joint in a fall on the sidewalk in front of C. E. Moeller's dry goods store, East Main Street.

Miss Anne Bennett, a student at the Birmingham School for Girls, Birmingham, Pa., spent her spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bennett, South Court Street.

25 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Newhouse left for Pueblo, Col., where they planned to make their home with his sister, Mrs. Eda Holderman, widow of John Holderman, formerly of this county.

The public sale of horses and cattle of Cary Short held on his farm in Wayne Township amounted to $10,887.40. Fifty head of horses and 71 head of cows were sold.

Miss Mary Roberts, who fell and broke her arm several months previously, resumed her duties as clerk at Moeller's Dry Goods Store.

Ever hear of Pickaway Pinks? They are a breed of chickens peculiar to this county alone. Had the strangest pink feathers, and many persons passing the farm of Frank Ward, down near Tarlton, stop and marvel at them. THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, rich young jeweler, at a party at the Rio Vista clubhouse. Captain of Detectives Clyde McDonald is convinced of my innocence, but young Coroner Silver still doubts me. The coroner is surprised to find that hobnailed boot prints in the garden where Markham was killed match prints found outside the house where a boy commits suicide the following midnight. The boy was the cook's helper at the Rio Vista club.

A man was sitting at the table, facing me.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"I TOLD YOU the servants were mixed up in this!" exclaimed Captain McDonald, triumphantly. "We should have suspected something when Pappini, the cook, said his helper went home early."

I thought of the weeping mother downstairs. "The boy was innocent," I told the officers. "Obviously he killed himself because he had fallen into the power of this man who tossed the note of warning to him through the window."

Coroner Silver agreed with me. "I think Strickland has something there, Captain. The boy had kept his drug addiction from his mother. This man knew of it, and was holding it over him to force him into a life of crime. Rather than have his mother learn his terrible secret, or become a criminal, he chose this way out."

The captain shook his head. "Good theory, but we should stick to facts. This is too early for theories. The fact is that this boy is linked, somehow, to the killing of Alfred Markham. You can't get away from that."

The boy's name was Robert Williams, we discovered. He was 18 years old. There was little more to be learned from studying his room and his belongings.

"We can question his mother tomorrow," the captain said. "Might as well call it a night. Time we all got some sleep."

Riding back to the police station, after picking up Sullivan and his equipment, Captain McDonald asked, "By the way, Silver, since you are so sure the servants at the Rio Vista club weren't mixed up in Markham's death, just what is your theory?" There was a note of sarcasm in his voice, but the coroner didn't seem to notice it.

"There was a quarrel," said Coroner Silver slowly. He was looking at the river front lights we were passing, but without seeing them. "It took place in the rose arbor. The assailant, I believe, tried to use Strickland's pocket knife. Perhaps it was stolen out of Strickland's pocket earlier in the night. Markham grabbed his arm, and the knife dropped. The killer then grabbed the stool and swung it over his head to knock Markham to the ground. The stool caught on the wire and broke it. Perhaps the men fell together. They would be unbalanced. The killer grabbed the mallet off the ground where they fell, knocked Markham unconscious and, to make doubly sure, stabbed him with a dagger of some sort. He threw the dagger and the wire and the stool into the river. He was in a hurry and he either forgot or couldn't find the pocket knife, and the mallet. He dragged the body along the walk toward the north wing of the building, where the moonlight was bright. He wanted to search the clothes, but he was interrupted. Whatever he was after—perhaps the jewels—he never found, for at that moment Jerry Montcalm opened the door and the killer ducked for cover."

The captain brought the car to a halt by the police station. "Very cleverly thought out," he admitted, "but how do you explain all this struggle without some sort of cry that would have been heard by the people inside the clubhouse?"

"They were playing the piano and singing," the coroner reminded him. "And a brave man seldom makes an outcry. He is too busy fighting."

"I have another objection to the theory," I told Coroner Silver. "You think the killing was done in a fit of anger, yet you say the body was dragged along the walk to be searched. That would indicate premeditation."

The coroner nodded. "There are weak spots in my theory—there would be in any theory."

The captain snorted. "That's why I say 'stick to facts.' "

"You have a theory of your own," the coroner told him. "You say Markham's death was planned in advance, with the servants—"

"Gentlemen!" I protested. "It is nearly two o'clock. Don't you think we should—"

"Right," agreed the captain. "Here comes the newsboy with The Morning Eagle. We can take it to bed with us."

We each bought a copy from the gray-haired, hunchback "boy." Captain McDonald opened his immediately, but Coroner Silver kept his folded and offered to drive me to my Laurel street studio. I accepted with thanks, although I, too, was curious to see what Belzer had written.

A large man lounged in the shadows of the doorway adjoining mine. My first thought was that he was the man who had sent me the threat, but when he and the coroner exchanged a friendly word, I knew he was my police guard.

Coroner Silver drove away. I climbed my own steps and shut the night on the outside of the door.

The hall light was dim, but the headlines and first few paragraphs of the newspaper story in my hands were in large, black type:

"KIDNAPER in MARKHAM MURDER PLOT!

"Bound hand and foot, and gagged, William Strickland, portrait painter who has been a suspect in the Alfred Markham murder case, was rescued from the river yesterday a half mile above the Rio Vista club, where the popular young jeweler was found stabbed to death Tuesday night.

"Interviewed exclusively by The Morning Eagle, Strickland told of being slugged and kidnaped by a large man whose face he never was given a chance to see. The attack, he said, took place an hour after Markham's death, in the Rio Vista garden, only a few feet from the spot where the body of the jeweler had been found. Strickland said his attacker bound him and took him upstream by rowboat.

"No reason for the kidnaping was disclosed. Strickland said his captor was careful to reveal nothing that would identify him. Nor could the victim tell where he had been taken, except to say that it appeared to be a large, half-deserted warehouse on the river's edge."

The report went on to tell how I managed to roll back into the boat and drift away, how the kidnaper had shot at me, and how to escape a shot that was almost certain to be fatal, I had purposely upset the boat and taken my slim chance in the water.

"Luckily," the reporter said, "an Eagle reporter who was giving thorough coverage to the case, was on the river in a motor boat."

No mention was made of Louise Markham, for which I knew she would be grateful.

I folded the paper and started up the stairs, quietly so as not to disturb my landlady. I felt a little more kindly toward Belzer. He had made it quite clear that I could not identify my assailant, which should satisfy the fellow that he didn't have to kill me to remain unknown.

Nevertheless, I was glad there was a police guard at my front door. The kidnaper might not subscribe to The Morning Eagle.

There was the disturbing thought, too, that Belzer had recognized my danger and had purposely emphasized my inability to identify the boatman. Suppose the fellow decided it was a trick? Suppose it only served to make certain his suspicion that I was dangerous to him?

I paused at the head of the stairs. What about the rear entrance to this house? Was it guarded? I didn't remember that Captain McDonald had spoken of assigning more than one man to the job.

Resolutely I opened my door, snapped on the light. My heart almost stopped. A man was sitting at the table, facing me.

Words of Wisdom

No better heritage can a father bequeath to his children than a good name; nor is there in a family any richer heirloom than the memory of a noble ancestor.— J. Hamilton.

Hints on Etiquette

If a divorced woman finds herself at a social function as co-guest with her former husband and his new wife, she greets them courteously and pleasantly, just as she does the other guests. Any display of animosity is out of place.

Today's Horoscope

The opposition of his or her elders will hinder the plans of the person whose birthday is today, particularly those plans concerning the opposite sex. The health of the women of such a person's household should be safeguarded. The child born on this date will be reserved, dignified, thoughtful, but also passionate and possessing strong emotions. In these latter qualities lies the danger to the career unless they are overcome early.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. From cinchona bark from Peru.
2. It was started under President Theodore Roosevelt's administration; finished in Woodrow Wilson's.
3. The Red sea and the Mediterranean.

Factographs

Thirty years ago persons of 65 or over who fractured their hips had no better than 50 percent chance of surviving the injury. Today only 12 percent of such persons die; 85 percent regain almost perfect use of their limbs.

Bush-Dilsaver Marriage

The late March marriage of Miss Kathleen M. Dilsaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Dilsaver of Amanda, to Mr. John Robert Bush, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bush of New Holland has been announced by the parents of the bride. The double ring ceremony was read at noon Friday, March 22, in the parlors of Mills Memorial United Brethren Church of Lancaster, by Dr. P. E. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. Merl M. Markwood, Lancaster were the only attendants.

A rose wool ensemble, with large felt hat in matching shade, was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Gardenias and pink sweet peas formed her corsage.

Miss Markwood's tailored suit of dusty rose was complemented with navy accessories and a gardenia shoulder corsage.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Bush left for a wedding trip to Cumberland Gap, Norris Dam and other points in the South after a wedding dinner at the Hillside Hotel.

A graduate of Amanda High School and Ohio State University, Columbus, the bride is a teacher in the primary grades of the Amanda school.

Mr. Bush is a graduate of Pickaway Township High School and a former student at Ohio State University, where he was a member of the Men's Glee Club.

Mr. Bush and his bride will be at home in New Holland after June 1. He is manager of the C. E. Groce Elevator.

Pointers on foundation plantings

When planning a foundation planting about a new house the first thing to be done is to put on a "clean-up" campaign. This often involves removing any heavy, clay sub-soil dug up during excavating of the basement; cleaning out all broken bricks, mortar and other building debris. If to top soil itself turns out to be rather poor, it is advisable to remove it for a depth of 12 to 15 inches and replace with good loam.

Do not make the common mistake of planting evergreens and shrubs too close to the house. Such plants are usually small when set out, but they soon grow larger and the crowding distorts their natural shape. When plantings are set too close to the foundations of a house are also harmed because the overhanging eaves keep off rain in summer, while in winter, when the eaves' troughs freeze, the overflow drips on to the plantings, freezes on them, after which the winter sun is apt to cause burning.

Today's Fashion

THE BACKGROUND coat, like the background frock, is an important feature of the comprehensive wardrobe. A well-cut coat serves as the background for a jeweled flower or amusing lapel gadget, for a gay chiffon scarf or furs. Here's one smart model, in a crinkly blue. Collarless, it closes over a chiffon scarf with four leather clips. The shaped yoke is outlined by a narrow fold terminating at the vertical seams on either side of the waist. The patch pockets are also outlined by a fold. The skirt has an inverted flared pleat center back.

ROBERTS FLAYS COURT DECISION IN BANK CASE

4-3 VOTE IS ANNOUNCED

Drive Against Trusts Wins Support As Contract Is Held Invalid

WASHINGTON, March 26—A declaration by Justice Owen J. Roberts that the Supreme Court has rejected important doctrines laid down by the famous liberal jurist, Louis D. Brandeis, aroused widespread discussions in congressional and legal circles today.

It raised again the question of whether the high court, with its New Deal majority, will follow the famous Holmes-Brandeis liberal philosophy, or go even "to the left" of it.

The declaration of Roberts was made in a dissenting opinion in a 4 to 3 decision in which the court ruled that national banks in Washington State had power to pledge assets to secure deposits of government agencies such as the Merchant Fleet Corporation.

Roberts declared that the majority overrode decisions delivered by Brandeis, before he retired from the court, in which he said that national banks could not give security to secure private deposits and that the comptroller of currency lacked power to order it in absence of a Congressional Act.

Principle Violated

"Paradoxically, the opinion of the court, while recognizing the authority, in the field of banking, of Mr. Justice Brandeis, rejects the fundamental principle of the opinions," said Roberts, twitting his fellow justices. He was joined in his dissent by Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds.

The majority of opinion, of which Roberts compained, was delivered by Justice Felix Frankfurter, longtime friend of Brandeis. He characterized Brandeis as an authority in the field of banking and asserted that his (Frankfurter's) ruling did not conflict with decisions by Brandeis.

Roberts refused to accept this view. He said that Brandeis ruled that specific authority of congress was necessary, while the majority opinion ruled that the comptroller had the authority in the absence of a special congressional act.

Trust Drive Aided

A notable unanimous decision of the court yesterday strengthened the anti-trust drive of Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold. The decision may open up a wide field for prosecution of corporations holding patent monopolies.

The court held invalid contracts between the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, holding patents for Ethyl gasoline, and 11,000 jobbers, on the ground that they were used to fix prices and suppress competition.

Healther Discusses The Five Greatest Killers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another in a series of articles provided by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner, for the education of the public.

In all of our articles on Health, we have tried to stay within the realm of Preventive Medicine. The specific duty of Public Health officials, is to preserve health and prolong life. In our previous publications, we have dealt with "preventable" diseases and more particularly with those communicable diseases which are caused by micro-organisms.

We have emphasized the numerous diseases of childhood and have pointed out the fact that fewer children, today, die from these diseases than in former years. We have produced figures to show that the reduction of infant and child mortality has been the cause of prolonging the life span by 20 years in the past century. The death rate in Ohio has been reduced from 13.7 in 1910 to 10.2 per 1000 population in 1938. Since 1900 the death rate from all causes has gone down 34 percent, but in this same period of time, the death date from all communicable diseases has dropped 70 percent.

The great killers of yesterday are not the great killers of today. Yellow fever, cholera, smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria are not dreaded plagues of this generation. Tuberculosis which not many years ago held third place among the killers is now down in seventh place.

Pneumonia (all forms) showed the greatest decline in the number of deaths, there being 1621 fewer deaths, in Ohio in 1938 than in 1937. The reason for the decline in death rates of the above named diseases, is that, scientific knowledge was put to work to fight them, and in a great measure to prevent them.

Now let us take time to examine the vital statistics of Ohio, for 1938. We find that five great killers, namely, heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemmorrhage, accidental deaths, and kidney disease, were responsible for 61 percent of all deaths in Ohio in 1938 while in 1920 they were responsible for only 40 percent of all deaths. We find also, in examining our statistics, that while the average span of life has been extended 20 years, that after the age of 35 years, life has not been extended a single year in the last two generations and that between the ages of 50 and 70, the life expectancy is not so great as it was a century ago.

There is a reason for this. It is because the death rate from these five great killers is on the increase. This bring up the question: "Are these five great killers preventable?"

Can heart disease, cancer, cerebral hommorhage, accidental death and kidney disease be prevented? Is these any immunity or any preventive measures that can be applied to these causes of death? On good authority, the answer can be given: "Death from all these causes can be delayed 5 to 20 years and in some cases prevented entirely."

Here is the Prescription

Go to a doctor for a complete overhauling and then repeat the procedure at least once a year. If you are past 40, you should have a thorough going over every six months. It is a known fact, however, that 30 percent of all persons over 40 have never had a complete physical examination, and 40 percent will not average an examination once in five years, and yet the people of the U. S. are spending $500,000,000 annually for patent medicines and nostrums that do more harm than good. Most people consult a physician only when they are sick and in many cases when it is too late for any hope of cure.

On the other hand, there are many people who have these periodic examinations. These wise people have convinced themeselves that guess work is poor policy. They know that only by a thorough examination can the hidden symptoms of these "killers" be found. (Accidental deaths excepted.)

For example, upon examination, the urine may show an excess of albumen, it may be that a high blood pressure may be discovered, a focal infection of teeth, sinuses or tonsils may be uncovered, or a faulty heart sound may be heard. The blood count or the x-ray examination may reveal many hidden pathologic conditions. Your doctor may discover that your arteries are hardening, or that you have too much fat over your abdomen or around your heart. He may discover a beginning cancer or other tumor or an enlarged prostate. In short the periodic examination permits of an early diagnosis. Early diagnosis and prompt medication, or surgery, or scientific advice, will add years to your life.

Keeping well and prolonging life need not be a burden. The plan is easy and effective if we will follow the simple "rules of health" and obey the "Laws of Nature" and rely on "Science" to do the rest.

WAVE OF SUICIDES FINDS THREE PERSONS VICTIMS

COLUMBUS, March 26—Two women and a man were dead today in what Coroner Edward E. Smith termed a wave of suicides due to ill health.

Lucille Striebel, 24, hanged herself in an office on the eighth floor of the Atlas Building.

Mrs. May F. Mills, 58, fired a bullet through the roof of her mouth in the bedroom of her home. Her body was found by her husband.

Samuel Garner, 83-year-old father of Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph Garner, shot himself as he lay in bed at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Casey.

Dr. Smith said he would return suicide verdicts in all cases.

WAR VETERAN CHANGES PLANS ABOUT SUICIDE

WASHINGTON, March 26—William J. Scott, 47-year-old World War veteran of Jenkintown, Pa., planned to commit suicide today, but something caused him to change his plans and take his life a day early.

Police found Scott, wounded, in the basement of his sister's home. On a table was a diagram depicting the swimming pool of a Capital High School, a nearby tree and bench.

"On Tuesday morning, March 26, you will find my dead body on this space," said one of several notes written by Scott.

The veteran died last night in Walter Reed Hospital, as the result of three bullets he fired into his own body.

F. D. R. A COMMUNIST?; NO, SAYS DAILY WORKER

NEW YORK, March 26—In an editorial entitled "No, thanks" the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper, today asserted any suggestion that President Roosevelt is a member of the Communist party is an "insult" to the Reds.

The editorial referred to the disclosure before the Dies committee that a member had used the name "Franklin D. Roosevelt" in enrolling in the party.

"Thinking of him today, in his present role as the chief of the imperialist war makers attempting to drag our country into the European war and, quite consistently, resorting to the Sherman anti-trust law in an attempt to exterminate the American trade unions as a part of the same reactionary war policy, the suggestion that he is a member of the Communist party is an insult," the Daily Worker said of the President.

"Last week when I came to Circleville I had the pleasure of going through the plant of the Wallace Bakers. Circleville and Pickaway County is fortunate in having fine breads such as Honey Boy and the Pinocchio Bread available . . . And indeed Wallace's Bakers are to be congratulated on the wonderful results they have attained in the perfection of these two marvelous breads. I personally recommend Wallace's Breads for any purpose."

COURT OF HONOR BEGINS AT 7:30 FOR BOY SCOUTS

High School Social Room To Be Scene Of Big Gathering

MANY TROOPS TAKE PART

District Flag To Be Given To Organization With Best Percentage

Two hundred Boy Scouts, their leaders, parents and friends will gather in the Social room of the Circleville High School Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock for the quarterly district-wide court of Honor ceremony.

Troops from Kingston, New Holland, Williamsport, Five Points, Tarlton and the four troops in Circleville are expected to be on hand for the evening program, according to word from the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, district chairman of Scout Advancement, and his committee composed of Joe Adkins, Circleville, Guy Cline, Ashville and Dr. Robert Hedges, Circleville.

Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon will be the speaker of the evening. The Advancement Committee will take care of the presentation of awards to Scouts who have advanced to Second, First, Star and Life Ranks.

The coveted district flag will be awarded to the troop with the highest percentage of attendance by Dr. J. J. Baker, neighborhood commissioner.

The second and first class ranks in scouting are awarded to those Souts who meet the requirements in cooking, firebuilding, signalling, first aid, thrift and other skills while the merit badge program leading to Star, Life and Eagle ranks is made up of more than 100 subjects. Men who are professionals in the various fields give of their time to counsel with scouts working for merit badges.

Keep a notebook of the seeds and plants you start this spring. It will be invaluable as a guide in future ordering.

LANNY ROSS

Mrs. Richard Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., will be Lanny Ross' leading lady Wednesday 2 p. m. CBS, when Lanny sings "Silver Threads Among the Gold," the song that taught Mrs. Loder and her husband to speak English many years ago.

The story harks back to 1908 when Mr. and Mrs. Loder and their baby came to America unable to speak a word of English. Mr. Loder got a job in a bakery and the couple bought a victrola. The first record they played was "Silver Threads," and they played it over and over until they knew and could pronounce every word of it. As their savings permitted, they bought other records and with each wax disc, their knowledge of the language increased. Today the Loders are solid citizens. They have three grown children and Mrs. Loder writes Lanny: "Every day we thank God for the great privilege of being permitted to raise our family and grow old in a country of peace and contentment."

OSCAR LEVANT

The erudite Oscar Levant, of "Information Please!" fame, will make a flying trip to the coast to appear on Bing Crosby's Music Hall Thursday, March 28, when Bing also plans to entertain Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall as his guests. Such old hands in the shindigs over the NBC red network at 10 p. m. as Bob Burns, the Music Maids, Ken Carpenter, and John Scott Trotter will all be on hand.

Levant, no slouch with the English language himself, will vie with Bing in a bit of heavy verbiage. The pianist, who recently author, plays George Gershwin's "Prelude Number 2."

The gallivanting Errol Flynn will introduce Brenda Marshall, pretty young motion picture star, to Bing and Bob. Miss Marshall is in Flynn's new Movie, "The Sea Hawk."

Bing takes a vocal workout on "Give a Little Whistle," "Yours Is My Heart Alone," "Ooh, What You Said," "Missouri Waltz," and for his 1860 memory number, the familiar "Old Black Joe."

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

When Ezra Stone, star of "The Aldrich Family," appeared as a guest on Col. Stoopnagle's MBS program he became the first outsider on the program since the series started.

Kay Kyser's "College of Musical Knowledge" starts its third year on the air April 3.

It's not certain now whether Peter Van Steeden, the bandleader, will go to Hollywood with Fred Allen. His new duties as conductor of "Mr. District Attorney," which starts April 4 on the NBC-Red network at 8 p. m. may keep him in New York.

April 28 is the starting date of "Adventures of Ellery Queen" in place of "Screen Guild Theatre" on CBS Sundays at 7:30 p. m. The stories are written by Manfred B. Lee and Frederic Dannay.

In addition to starting their second year with the Bing Crosby Thursday night air show, the "Music Maids" this week wind up their busiest year in pictures, having done vocal work in a score of films for seven different companies.

Denise Connor, who has been handling publicity for "Joyce Jordan—Girl Interne" is getting married in two weeks. She's wedding an interne.

"Symphony No. 2 in E Minor," written by Meredith Wilson, radio conductor of "Good News of 1940," will be given its premiere playing by the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra on April 4 and 5, with the famed conductor, Albert Coates, on the podium. The symphony, sub-titled "The Missions of California," is purely American in theme, its four movements dealing with "Father Junipero Serra," "San Juan Batista Mission," "San Juan Capistrano Mission" and "El Cmaino Real," the ancient road of the mission fathers. NBC-Blue airs it coast-to-coast.

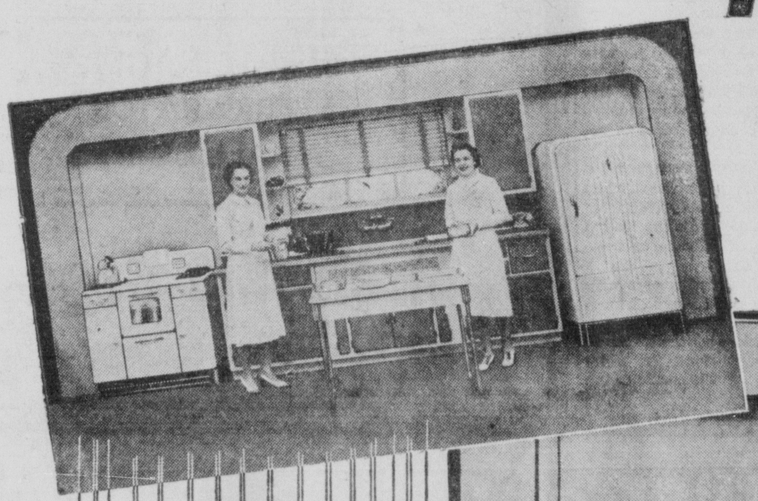
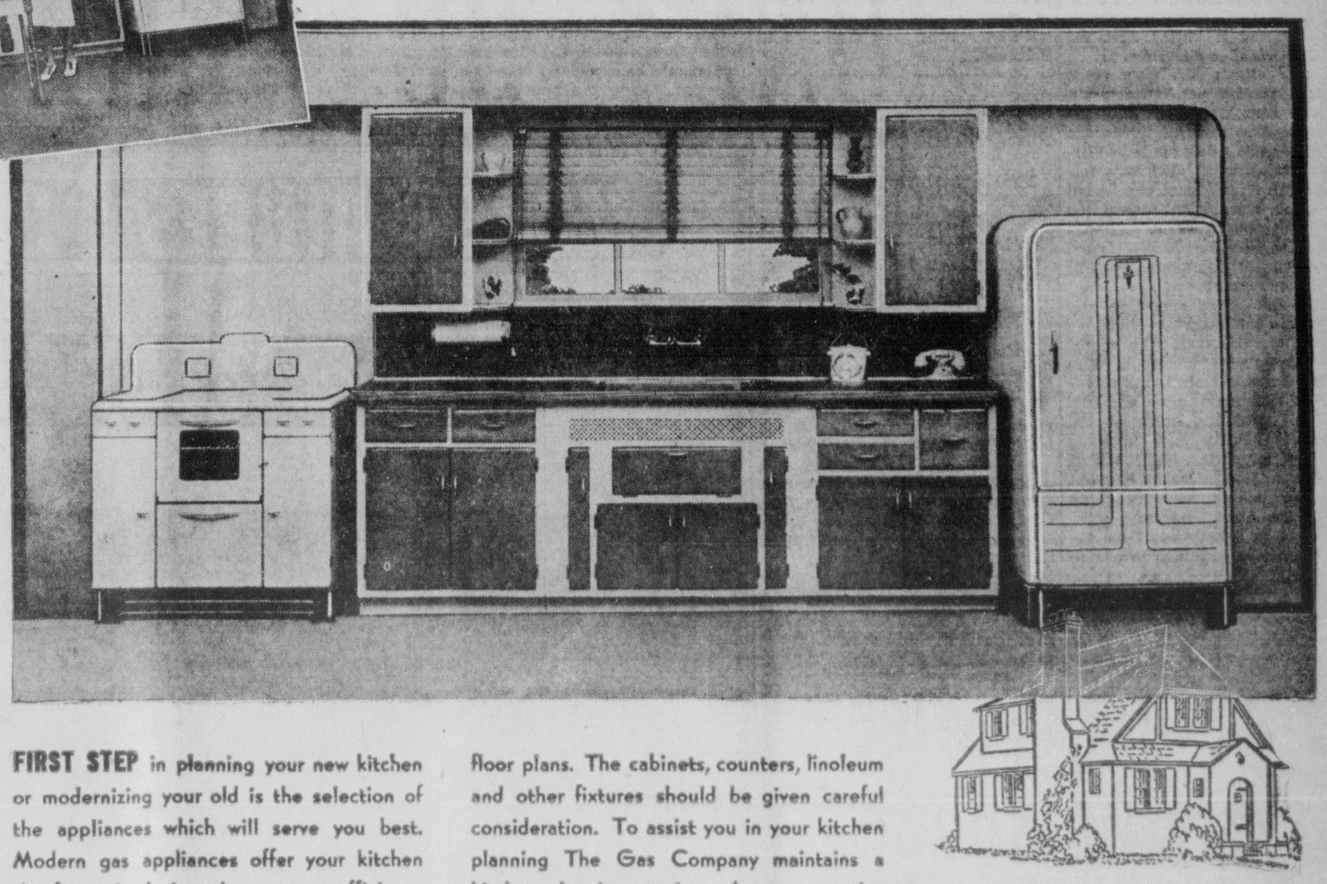
It's Easy to Own an ALL-GAS KITCHEN

Read How This Modern Dream Kitchen Can Become A Reality In Your Home





On the Stage . . .

This lovely, modern all-gas kitchen will command the praise of everyone in attendance at the 1940 Gasco Food Institute. It presents the latest mode in kitchen arrangement and decoration. It offers the "last word" in kitchen convenience and efficiency. Be sure to inspect it carefully following the programs of the Food Institute.

Miss Esther Roehm

Miss Roehm, Food Lecturer of the Gasco Food Institute, gives many hints on kitchen arrangement and equipment during the course of her lectures.

FIRST STEP in planning your new kitchen or modernizing your old is the selection of the appliances which will serve you best. Modern gas appliances offer your kitchen the finest in design, the greatest efficiency and cleanliness in operation. The moment you install a modern gas range or gas refrigerator you begin to save in time — save on steps — and save money. Kitchen work takes wings. Kitchen hours become exciting and pleasure filled. So, first, select modern gas appliances for your new kitchen.

THE PLAN of your kitchen is important. There are three main working centers—the range, the refrigerator and the sink. For maximum convenience the sink is usually placed between the range and refrigerator although this may be varied to suit different floor plans. The cabinets, counters, linoleum and other fixtures should be given careful consideration. To assist you in your kitchen planning The Gas Company maintains a kitchen planning service. A representative will gladly consult with you on your plans.

FINANCING, of course, is an all important consideration. Under modern plans of financing, you need not delay your kitchen modernization. The Gas Company, and other dealers in kitchen equipment and fixtures, all have convenient payment plans. Banks and other financial agencies stand ready to assist you in budgeting the cost of a modern kitchen and home. For more complete information on modern kitchen planning visit The Gas Company or phone for a representative to call at your home.

In Your Home . . .

Such a kitchen will bring modern ease and proficiency. Its beauty will excite the envy of your friends. It is really a short step from Food Institute to your home as far as a modern all-gas kitchen is concerned. Make this kitchen yours now.

F. D. R. TO TALK APRIL 20 WITH POLITICS TOPIC

Washington Believes, Though, That President Will Not Reveal His Plans

WELLES NEARING HOME

Friends Insist Executive Wishes To Retire After Close Of Term

WASHINGTON, March 26 — White House announcement that President Roosevelt would go on the air April 20 with a nationwide political broadcast aroused interest in the competing 1940 camps, but left most observers still convinced the broadcast would pass without any pronouncement on the third term.

Those close to the President predicted his radio speech to a series of dinners arranged by the Young Democrats of America woud fail to produce any inkling as to Mr. Roosevelt's ultimate decision on running again.

Supporters of Vice President Garner and other hopeful Democratic candidates were of a like mind, basing their opinion on the President's sphinx-like attitude on the important question to date.

All observers were mindful, however, that Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles is returning from Europe Friday to report on prospects of peace or more violent war as he found them in a tour of Rome,, Berlin, Paris and London.

Wants To Retire

Mr. Roosevelt's most trusted aides insist that the President wants to retire at the end of his current term—but always qualify themselves by noting that he views the international situation most seriously.

There was no decision yet whether Welles would make his report here in Washington or in Warm Springs, Ga. The President is planning to leave for his "other home" in Georgia by the end of the week, and it was possible the seclusion of the Roosevelt Warm Springs cottage might be considered a better spot for this important conference.

In any event, Mr. Roosevelt's spring visit to Warm Springs will provide him with semi-isolation while the first tests of third-term sentiments are being made in Wisconsin and Illinois. Primary voters in both states must choose between a convention delegation pledged to the President and one pledged to Vice President Garner. The Wisconsin primary is April 2; Illinois on April 9.

While the chief executive was making no commitments about his availability, the man who might sway a number of voters in Wisconsin—Senator Bob LaFollette—likewise was making no commitments. LaFollette, leader of the Progressive Party and erstwhile New Deal supporter, had lunch at the White House last week but word has gone out he will take no hand in the April 2 primary.

Thomas E. Dewey and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, Mich., are contesting in the Republican primary that same day and it is understood LaFollette will make no commitment as to whom he will support for the presidency until after the June-July conventions.

Garner Hopeful

Political scouts of all complexions were converging on Wisconsin and Illinois today for a last-minute estimate of prospects. The Garner forces are hopeful they can take a majority of the Wisconsin delegation because there are two Roosevelt slates of delegates in the field against them. It is generally conceded that the Illinois Democrats on April 9 will vote their delegation for Mr. Roosevelt.

The April 20 broadcast of the President was arranged by Matt Adams, president of the Young Democrats, at a Monday White House conference. White House attaches were inclined to believe the chief executive would take the occasion to elaborate on his oft-repated demand for a continuation of truly liberal government and charge the nation's new voters with exercising their franchise to that end.

You'll Like A Hamburger Grill

IN the interest of ease, health and a cleaner kitchen, why not forget the frying pan when hamburger patties are to be cooked, and broil them instead? Homemakers have discovered in using the new certified performance gas ranges with their roomy smokeless broilers and fast-action scientific burners that broiling means no smoke, no fat spatters, no heavy aroma of cooking in the kitchen atmosphere.

Broil seasoned patties in the preheated compartment for five minutes; when ready to turn, add halves of green pepper scalded for five minutes and filled with cooked whole grain corn, chopped pimiento, butter, salt and pepper. Dip halved bananas in lemon juice, melted butter and roll in powdered sugar. Add halves of tomatoes—but if they are out of season substitute slices of steamed or boiled squash. Broiling will enrich the flavor. Broil for five minutes longer or until all the food is a golden brown.

MRS. JOHN M. HICKLE, 84, DIES; RITES WEDNESDAY

Mrs. John M. Hickle, 84, former resident of the Clarksburg community, died Monday at 1:30 p. m. at her home near Washington C. H. after a two-weeks' illness from infirmities of old age.

Mrs. Hickle was a resident of Fayette County for about 40 years. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. B. E. Kelly, of Washington C. H. Several distant relatives in Ross County also survive. Mr. Hickle died September 22, 1939. Mrs. Hickle was a member of Grace Methodist Church in Washington.

Services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Methodist Church in New Holland, the Rev. C. L. Thomas officiating. Interment will be in Brown's Chapel Cemetery.

HEALTH OFFICE TELLS HOW TO ESCAPE FEVER

PHILADELPHIA, — If you would avoid tularemia, rare febrile disease spread by rabbits, use rubber gloves while skinning and handling the uncooked animals and then cook them thoroughly, advises Dr Hubley R. Owen, Philadelphia health director.

The disease, first discovered in Tulare County, Calif., affects those who handle rabbits, such as market men, cooks and housewives, Dr. Owens explained. Consumption of insufficiently cooked meat of an infected animal or contact of germs with open cuts and sources spread the ailment.

"The disease is sudden in its onslaught, runs an acute course and convalescence is slow," the health director warned. "In half the cases, the lymph glands become involved, break down and discharge. One should be especially careful of infection during the hunting season."

BRITISH DOUBT ITALY WILL ACT

Survey Made In Empire Discloses Belief Of Residents

LONDON, March 26 — No one person in twenty in Great Britain thinks that Italy will enter the war on the side of Germany, her partner in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Of the remaining nineteen, seven think that Italy will join the Allies, seven think she will stay neutral, and five haven't made up their minds what she will do.

These estimates were disclosed today as the result of a survey conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, which in recent months has surveyed virtually every aspect of English thought and opinion.

Choice Facing Voters

To a representative sample of British voters, the BIPO put the question: "Which do you think Italy will do in this war: (a) Join the Allies; (b) join Germany; (c) remain neutral.

Analysis of the answers showed that 34 percent said join the allies, 5 percent said join Germany; 34 percent said remain neutral; 27 percent said Don't know.

The high proportion of those answering "don't know" indicates plainly that Italy's attitude to the war has got the British public guessing.

Italy herself has defined her attitude as one, not of "neutrality," but of "non-belligerency."

MORE FARMERS IN KEYSTONE ON OWN PROPERTY

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Three of every four Pennsylvania farmers owne their own farms as compared to the national average of less than one in two, Pennsylvania's department of commerce has reported.

Of the owner-operated farms, a department survey disclosed, "just about half" are entirely free from debt, as compared with the United States figures of only three debt-free farms in ten.

Even tenant farmers enjoy almost as high a percentage of modern conveniences as the owner-operator—a striking contrast to tenant farmer conditions in many other sections of the nation, the report showed.

AMERICAN GIRL IN AMBULANCE IN CHINESE STRIFE

On her latest journey she is taking her car to Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow Province, with medical supplies.

She left Shanghai last November and travelled alone through war areas to Kunming, in the southwestern province of Yunnan.

In 1936 Miss Graham was arrested by Japanese in Manchuria as a spy and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. The sentence was later rescinded although as she recalled in an interview here: "I enthusiastically offered to go to jail."

The following year she made a trip from India to Europe overland, via Afghanistan and Persia.

When she arrived here on her way to Kweiyang, Miss Graham declared: "I like China so much I want to call it my home."

She added: "I expect to stay in China a long time and concentrate on learning the language."

BRITISH STAMP TO BE SOLD TO BUY U. S. ARMS

LONDON, — Stamps worth $700,000 are to be sold in the United States to obtan American currency with which to buy arms.

The collection, which is said to be the second finest in England, belong to the late David Bernhard, famed philatelist, is surpassed only by the collection owned by King George of England.

It was bought by dealer Frank Godden for sale abroad.

The collection could easily be sold in England but the British government are anxious that it be sold in the United States to obtain dollars to be spent on airplanes, according to Godden.

Ironically enough the collection contains German stamps to the value of over $60,000. Another treasure is the Western Australia "Inverted Swan." Only eight of these are in existence. Each is worth $4,000.

NAZIS MOBILIZE ARMY OF YOUTH FOR HOME FRONT

More Than 10 Million Boys And Girls At Work For The Reich

DUTIES DIVERSIFIED

Target Shooting And Careful Military Training Given To Nation's Youths

BERLIN, March 26 — Germany has mobilized an army of more than ten million boys and girls to assist the Fatherland in its war with the western democracies .

At the beginning of the conflict the Fuehrer in his Reichstag speech appealed to Germany's youth to do their utmost to strengthen the front at home. Immediately the machinery of the Hitler Youth Movement went into full swing.

More than 600,000 boys and girls alone were employed in harvest work, replacing the hundreds of thousands of peasants and farm helpers called to the colors. Each candidate for harvest work had to undergo a strict medical examination to prove his or her ability. According to official statistics, all members of the Hitler Youth Movement, employed in this work, are under regular medical care of 4,000 special physicians.

Other tens of thousands of boys and girls at the same time started collecting scrap iron or other valuable material lying idly around in German households or elsewhere. Still others combed the woods for medicinal herbs, wild-grown fruits and any other plants considered worthwhile. It is officially emphasized that while all this work might fail to impress an outsider. it nevertheless is producing excellent results.

Work Minutely Organized

With German thoroughness, the employment of all these helpers has been organized on a minutely planned system. All over the Reich little groups were organized under the command of young leaders, especially trained for their task. In forty-four special schools more than 12,000 Hitler Youth leaders were prepared for their future duties during the first three months after the outbreak of the war.

The Reich is also giving her male youth an early idea of a soldier's life. All boys between sixteen and eighteen years of age receive thorough premilitary training, including target shooting with small calibre rifles, and furthermore a careful training in all fields of air defense, such as the building of bombproof cellars, etc.

Regular Military Lectures

All these courses are carried through under the sharp control of officers of the army and members of the Air Defense League. In order to keep the future soldiers of the Reich informed on what is at stake in the present war, there are regular lectures by officers of army, navy and the air force.

At the same time Germany is creating for herself the biggest and most efficient Red Cross Corps throughout the world. All girls of seventeen at present are undergoing a Health Course, practical training in first aid. Girls of other classes are being employed as family helpers in families with a large number of children, in public kitchens and other public institutions.

Official statistics show that in the month of September 1939 alone 1,091,000 boys and girls, approximately every tenth member of the Hitler Youth Movement, were employed in the many fields of assistance at home.

MUSICAL WORLD LISTS ANOTHER OF SPITALNYS

PITTSBURGH, — Still another Spitalny, this time Jimmy, just 14, has invaded the musical world.

It would seem that Jimmy was practically born with a baton in his mouth. His father is Maurice Spitalny, director of the KDKA orchestra, and his grandfather, who founded the musical tradition, was Jacob Spitalny, a Russian musician who had his own orchestra until his death 14 years ago.

Among his uncles are H. Leopold Spitalny, musical director for the NBC orchestra, and Phil Spitlnay, conductor of the all-girl ensemble.

But Jimmy isn't resting on the laurels of his relatives. He appeared here as student conductor of the Massanutten Military Academy band.

When he's not conducting, he's busy studying — or playing the bells and tympani. He prefers the latter, he said.

Rhubarb was first used in Europe for medical purposes and was one of the most costly of medicines. The cost was caused by the expense of importing it from China, across Asia, and the difficulty of preserving it from attacks of insects.

Fricasseed Chicken

A DEEP rich chicken flavor is not difficult to obtain when preparing a fricassee and it is well worth the extra trouble. Place the pieces of chicken in a two quart glass saucepan and add boiling water to half cover. Adjust saucepan cover and cook chicken gently for two to three hours, according to age. The flexible top burner of a modern gas range does the trick on almost no fuel because the burner may be adjusted to simmer and will retain that temperature accurately.

Add salt after the first hour When chicken is tender, remove from stock and roll in one-half cup flour mixed with one teaspoon poultry seasoning. Fry in butter in a skillet until golden brown. Thicken stock and add one-third cup cream. bring to boiling point. Pour over chicken and serve with hot biscuits or fluffy dumplings.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: When do you take the covering or winter mulch off tulips?

ANSWER: I like to take the mulch off my flower borders, including bulbs, rather early before growth starts. In Columbus this can be done now, but farther north, it will probably be any time before the first of April.

QUESTION: Can heather be grown successfully in Ohio?

ANSWER: Although there are a number of different kinds of heather, the Scotch heather is the one most people think of in connection with this name. Although I know of one very successful planting near Chagrin Falls, it has been planted in a small valley well protected from the wind and pretty well under snow most of the winter. Normally, heather seems to be damaged by our open winters and hot summers. In sections of the state where the soil is not naturally acid, the soil must be acidified to grow heather successfully. All in all, although you might try it, I am afraid I cannot guarantee its success.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to take up tulip bulbs every three years for a rest?

ANSWER: Tulips are dug not to rest them but to divide them when they have multiplied to such a point that the bulbs are getting small and do not bloom. Even then I would be inclined to replant them immediately rather than attempt to store them in the garage or cellar during the summer.

QUESTION: What plant or shrub suitable for cemetery planting will require the minimum amount of care and have the maximum beauty and hardiness?

ANSWER: Contrary to popular practice of using rather stiff, formal types of evergreens, either globes or pyramids, I am inclined to feel that with the tremendous variety of monuments in the cemetery that we need more informal, sprawling types of evergreens than upright types. I would, therefore, be inclined to recommend for large monuments such plants as Pfitzer juniper or spreading varieties of Japanese yew. For smaller plants the Andorra juniper, the evergreen bittersweet (Euonymus radicans vegetus), or the wintercreeper (Euonymus radicans). I would be inclined to suggest that these evergreen vines be allowed to climb on the bas and even part way up the monument itself, softening its effect.

QUESTION: Do tuberous rooted begonias need to be taken up each fall?

ANSWER: Tuberous rooted begonias are not hardy, and consequently, if left out over winter are sure to be killed.

QUESTION: If hybrid roses become loose during the winter months, how should they be tightened in the spring?

ANSWER: Although it is not uncommon for roses or other shrubs to be swayed sufficiently in the wind during the winter so that they have an enlarged hole in the ground around the lower part of the stem, this will do no particular harm. However, I have always followed the practice of stamping the earth firm around any such plants each spring.

QUESTION: What can you do to keep the leaves of African violets from drooping?

ANSWER: My observation has been that those African violets whose leaves are limber and drooping have been getting too much water. May I suggest you give them just a little bit less.

QUESTION: How can I kill the ground ivy in my lawn?

ANSWER: Ground ivy, for those who are not acquainted with it, is a trailing plant with a round leaf one-half to three-fourths inch in diameter with a scalloped edge, a square stem, purplish flowers and a rather strong odor to the foliage. Small patches may be controlled by pulling every bit of the stem out. Larger patches can sometimes be controlled by using one to two pounds of ammonium sulphate per 10 0square feet, sprinkling it n when the foliageis wet. This will burn the lawn as well as the ground icy, but the grass will come back. Another method would be to spray it with sodium chlorate using two ounces in one gallon of water, applying with the regular sprayer. Care should be taken not to allow this material to dry on the clothing or shoes nor to get on other plants. It will kill the other plants and it will make the clothing highly inflammable when it dries.

QUESTION: Will my hemlock be seriously injured by this past winter's snow?

ANSWER: Our native hemlocks are absolutely hardy and will not be injured by the snow unless it has been piled up on them to such an extent that it breaks them by mechanical force. However, some hemlocks look rather bad this spring due to the fact that they went into the winter too dry so that if they were in a windy exposure the foliage has dried out and become brown during the winter. If the wind has been strong enough, it can kill the entire plant although normally it kills back the tips of the growth.

QUESTION: Can any fertilizer be used in place of bonemeal? The dogs dig into the roots of the plants where I use it.

ANSWER: Bonemeal was the fertilizer that your grandparents used and has been largely replaced today by modern commercial fertilizers. They are not only less expensive for the fertilizing ingredients they contain, but are practically odorless. Besides, the phosphorus of the bonemeal is very slightly available whereas that of the present day commercial fertilizer is relatively quickly available. I would suggest you use any complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4. You can buy this under various trade names or as 4-12-4 fertilizer from farmers' supply stores.

QUESTION: When is the proper time to plant tuberous begonias?

ANSWER: If you are buying the dormant plants they should be purchased in the near future, planted in 3½ or 4 inch pots sometime during late March or April and started into growth indoors. If you are buying the growing plants, you will purchase them in late May or early June and plant them out immediateliy.

Toast Is Better Made In Broiler

WHILE taste in toast differs with the individual, it is a safe bet that most persons like it crunchy, which means evenly cooked to the center and uniformly browned. Broiling is an ideal method of making toast—it's quicker, easier, and more convenient for a small or a quantity supply.

The broiler burner of a certified performance gas range does a very special toasting job, which is one of the supreme tests for uniformity. And, when a broiler toasts to perfection, you may be assured it will broil every other food as nicely.

There is no need to preheat the broiler for toasting because heat is directed upon the bread the moment it is placed beneath the flame. The new broiler racks are large enough to accommodate 8 and 9 pieces, each browned evenly Scientific burners light with the twist of a dial, are smokeless, and cannot consume more than a fixed amount of gas.

SOLDIERS FINDS ROMANTIC NOTE AFTER 23 YEARS

LONDON — Some twenty-three years ago, romantically minded, eighteen-year-old London tailoress Mabel Roderick slipped a note inside the pocket of an Army tunic she was sewing.

The note asked the soldier who wore the tunic to write to the girl who made it.

"It's a silly sort of thing to do," laughed Mabel to her friends. "Still . . . you never know."

And last month Mabel, much to her surprise, received a reply.

George Norris, aged twenty, of the British Royal Corps of Signals, found the note in his tunic pocket He wrote to Mabel to meet him.

Mabel read and laughed again. "Come and have tea with me," she replied.

The couple met in Mabel's home in the East end of London.

And Mabel, admiring the handsome young soldier, smiled up at him and said:

"Oh George. You are just a generation late.

"That letter was meant for your father, and the men who fought with him."

Mabel wrote her letter in 1917. In the meantime, the young tailoress has become Mrs. Mabel Young.

She is now forty-one and has a daughter aged twelve.

"The joke's on both of us," said George. "Of course, I thought I was going to meet a young girl."

OLD-FASHIONED SCHOOL 'MARM' IS ON WAY OUT

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., — The old-fashoned cross school teacher is on her way out in Indiana, according to a survey undertaken recently at the Indiana State Teachers' College of class-room teachig many elementary schools.

After visits had been made to 217 classrooms over the state, it was revealed that 83 percent of the teachers encountered were pleasant and apparently sympathetic with their pupils.

Forty-seven percent of all classrooms were described as being home-like, and 46.5 percent had movable types of seating equipment instead of old-fashioned seats bolted to the floor in rows.

The severest criticism made in the survey was in the field of teaching skill with a definite practical application, less than two percent of the classrooms being indicated as showing that facts were being taught for a definite need.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, March 26

THE LUNAR transits for this day forecast a very lively day, with much stirring at particularly high tempo and probably with some agitation or excitement. Concentrated effort may be brought to bear on breaking up long static conditions in order to make way for important new ventures. This may cause sudden upsets and upheavals, with matters materializing quite unexpectedly. The state of health may also prove a disturbing factor.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively year, with much stirring of a surprising and unpredictable nature. These may involve radical change in plans, objectives and possibly in environs, preliminary to the shattering of old congestions so that more definite progress of a constructive trend may be engineered. It may take drastic action, perseverence and fortitude to cope with deep-seated inertia or restrictions. Be careful with the health. Elders may prove difficult.

A child born on this day may have much intellectual vigor and versatility, being alert, brilliant and keen as well as studious, profound and original. It may also be temperamental, emotional and restive.

SCIENCE FINDS ANOTHER USE FOR WHITE RAT

LAS CRUCES, — Another use has been found for the traditional friend of science—the white rat.

Edith M. Lantz, research specialist in the home economics division of the New Mexico State College will use the rates to experiment on the vitamin content in chili.

It has been detemined, Miss Lantz said,that chili pepper when fresh contains carotene (vitamin A) and ascorbic acid (vitamin C). However, in dying chili for commercial use, the C vitamin appears to be lost. The experiment will be used to find a method of drying the chili pod so that C is not lost.

The white rats will be used to measure the effects of various drying methods using chili found mostly in New Mexico.

The experiment will start this summer.

We wish to announce that our milk plant is going under federal and state milk inspection. In preparation for this we have bought two new pasteurizers built with stainless steel and are glass lined which are considered the latest and most efficient type. We will also install recording thermometers, new dial scales, stainless steel receiving and weighing tanks, a stainless steel cheese vat. Many other modern changes will be made within two or three weeks.

Inspection of cows and barns of those who produce our milk will be made at least once per month. Bacterial and sediment tests of the milk from each farm will be made regularly as well as of our finished pasteurized products.

We sell milk in Pickaway, Fairfield, Hocking and Ross Counties. Owing to the fact that Pickaway County has no health unit to take care of such inspection, the Ross County unit will care for our milk plant.

For two years our record has been very good, but with our new equipment and our triple bottle wash we hope to still improve our record.

No person in Circleville from now on need have any fear about milk. We will be the only plant that will have 100% rigid inspection.

TEST OF DEADLY BOMB PLANNED AT BALTIMORE

Martin Airplane Factory Employe To Show Army His Invention

HANDLING IN QUESTION

Barlow Claims Weapon Able To Kill All Within Two Miles

BALTIMORE, March 26—Lester P. Barlow, who says he has invented the most deadly aerial bomb ever made, was to conduct the first public test of his weapon today.

Today's demonstration, designed primarily to test the "safety-in-handling" factors of the bomb, will be held in a remote corner of the proving grounds of the Glenn L. Martin airplane plant near Baltimore. Barlow is an engineer in the Martin plant.

Although originally announced as the first step in proving the bomb's worth to congressional and U. S. military experts, there was considerable doubt over who would attend the ceremony.

Leading members of both the senate and house military and naval affairs committees who had been invited to be present, said that no members of congress would be on hand.

The War Department announced that Lt. Col. K. F. Adamson, of the ordnance division, would attend, but only as a "private observer."

Living Objects Asked

Barlow at first sought permission to demonstrate his claims in an unsettled area of the Southwest on a site the size of a modern battleship. Using animals as subjects, he said he would show that the bomb would destroy all life within an area of two miles through powerful detonating rays.

Congressional experts and Barlow compromised on a demonstration closer to the capital and without any living subjects.

The tests today, said Barlow, will show that the bomb can be handled safely, a controversial point. Utilization of liquid oxygen —used in the Barlow bomb—has been condemned by military authorities because of instability and danger in transportation.

Barlow says he has overcome these faults to such an extent that bullets may be fired at the bomb without exploding it.

Today's Menu

Smelts in Italian Sauce
Oven Fried Potatoes
Buttered Beets Cabbage Salad
Lemon Pudding Coffee or Tea

THE RECIPE for smelts is said to be a favorite with Lauritz Melchior, the noted Danish tenor, singer of Wagnerian roles.

Smelts in Italian Sauce—Place seasoned smelts in an oiled baking dish. Cook four chopped mushrooms, one small clove minced garlic, two tablespoons green pepper and small pinch thyme in one and one-fourth cups of tomato sauce for three minutes. Pour sauce over fish. Bake, basting twice. Serve with pan liquor over fish.

Lemon Pudding — Ingredients: one cup sugar, four eggs, one lemon, juice and grated yellow rind. Beat yolks and sugar until very light, mix with lemon juice and rind; beat whites to stiff froth, fold into yolk mixture. Line gem pans with puff paste, fill with mixture and bake.

Lamb Chops Baked Potatoes
Harvard Beets Canned Peas
Lettuce or Celery Cabbage Salad, French Dressing
Apple-Custard Pie Coffee

YOU MAY buy lamb chops or steaks of various cuts. Rib and loin chops are best known, but shoulder chops are nice and may be broiled. For broiling lamb chops, preheat the broiler, if you wish. Place the chops with the top surface about three inches from the source of heat. When chops are brown, they will be cooked about halfway through. Season the chops and turn. When both sides are brown, the chops are ready to serve. Chops one-inch thick require about 12 minutes to broil.

French Dressing — Ingredients: one-half cup salad oil, two or three tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar, one-fourth teaspoon mustard or dash of cayenne, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon salt, or more, to taste; one teaspoon sugar, few drops Worcestershire sauce. Put all ingredients in covered glass jar and shake vigorously until thick and well blended. This may be made in quantity and kept in refrigerator until needed. Always shake well before using.

Swedish Meat Balls
Riced Potatoes
Buttered Spinach Cole Slaw
Swedish Dessert Coffee

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS—Ingredients: one-half cup fine bread crumbs, one medium-sized onion, grated; one and three-fourths teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one egg, well beaten; one cup milk, one pound beef, finely ground; one-half pound lean pork, finely ground; three tablespoons butter or fat; one tablespoon flour, one cup top milk, one-half cup chopped sweet pickles, two tablespoons drained horse-radish. Combine bread crumbs, onion, one and one-half teaspoons of the salt, pepper, egg and one cup milk. Add meats aond mix thoroughly. Drop from tablespoon into melted butter in hot skillet. Slowly saute until well browned on all sides. Remove meat balls to hot platter. Scrape al browned materials from sides and bottom of skillet and stir in flour. Add one cup milk and remaining salt, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Simmer five minutes longer; add pickles and horse-radish. Pour around meat balls. Serves six.

Swedish Dessert — Ingredients: one pound prunes, one-half pound seedless raisins, one package (three ounces) candied pineapple, citron, lemon and orange peel; 12 graham crackers, sugar to taste. Cook prunes and raisins till tender; drain. Reserve one to one and one-quarter cups juice. Stone prunes and run them and the raisins and candied peels through medium food chopper. Mix with juice an crushed graham crackers, adding sugar to taste. Chill and serve very cold. Garnish with whipped cream and maraschino cherry. This is a rich dessert, serving twelve to fifteen. Serve in sherbet glasses. Halve recipe for six.

Cheese and Rice Fondue Broccoli
Cherry Pie Coffee

CHEESE and Rice Fondue—Ingredients: One-fourth pound American cheese, one cup scalded milk, one cup soft bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon salt, three eggs, one cup cooked rice. Cut cheese into small pieces; mix scalded milk, bread crumbs, cheese and butter and salt over hot water. Stir until cheese is melted, then remove from fire and add egg yolks, beaten until lemon colored; fold in cooked rice and, lastly, stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes or until nicely brown. This will serve eight.

Molded Tomato Salad—Ingredienats: Two and one-half cups canned tomatoes, one tablespoon minced onion, one stalk celery, one-half bay leaf, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, two tablespoons unflavored gelatin, one-half cup cold water, two tablespoons mild vinegar. Put tomatoes into sauce-pan, add coarsely-chopped onion and celery, and add to tomatoes with bay leaf, salt and sugar. Heat to boiling and boil gently for 10 minutes. While mixture boils sprinkle gelatin on top of cold water and let stand fixe minutes. Force cooked tomatoes through strainer, add gelatine at once and stir until it is dissolved, then add vinegar. Pour at once into molds that have been rinsed in cold water, and set aside to chill. Unmold when ready to serve on any desired salad green and srve with cooked dressing or mayonnaise.

COOKING MODES OF TODAY AND TOMORROW

BIG TRANSPORT NEARLY READY FOR AIR DUTIES

Work Of Assembly Starts In St. Louis Factory; Plane Is Largest

Cruising Speed Of Craft To Be 210 Miles An Hour; Top 243

ST. LOUIS, March 26 — More than three years of planning and work have gone into the new thirty-six passenger substratosphere transport assembled at the Curtiss-Wright Corp., plant at Lambert-St. Louis municipal Airport. The plane is said to be largest twin-engine land transport ever constructed in the United States.

Gross weight of the plane is nineteen tons, about twelve times the weight of an ordinary automobile, and wingspan is 108 feet, the approximate height of a seven-story building. When the plane is resting on the ground its height is just over nineteen feet. The pilot in its nose could look down into a second-story window.

The CW 20, as it is known in the plant, is one of the first designed for substratosphere flying. Its cabin, one of the first deep enough to allow a passenger to walk erect, will be sealed and "pressurized" so that air pressure inside while the plane is four miles above the earth will be same as if the plane were at a mere 6,500 feet, the cruising altitude of ordinary liners.

Gasoline Burning Heaters

Gasoline-burning heaters, with blowers, will heat the cabin. Temperatures in the substratosphere range around and below zero.

In the higher altitudes the new plane will be out of the storm strata.

Four wing tanks with a total capacity of 1,000 gallons of gasoline give the CW 20 a non-stop range of over 1,500 miles. Space is available for more tanks should the purchaser of the plane decide to put it on a longer run.

Cruising speed of the plane will be three and one-half miles a minute, or 210 miles an hour. A top speed of 243 miles an hour is expected.

To establish instant and sure communication between pilots and ground crew just before taking off and immediately upon landing, telephone plugs are recessed in the tail and belly of the ship. Lines from the plugs go to the pilots' compartment.

Many of the dials and gadgets which took the attention of pilots in older ships have been eliminated and replaced with automatic devices. The panel on the CW 20 has only two-thirds as many things to watch as those on some other liners.

Overall Length 75 Feet

Cabin appointments will be largely up to the airline which pays the $220,000 expected to be asked for the plane. Space is available for thirty-six passengers if the ordinary chair car arrangement is used, for twenty sleeping, or for thirty with a club car arrangement. The overall length of the plane is 75 feet. A cargo space beneath the cabin floor is loaded from outside but may be reached from inside. It will hold up to 5,200 pounds of baggage and mail.

Two pilots and a stewardess will be able to handle the plane.

Elaborate precautions have been taken to insure safe letting down and retraction of the landing gear which, on other planes, has been blamed for accidents through failure to operate. The landing wheels, four feet, seven inches in diameter, are operated by hydraulic pistons. Should these fail, electric motors do the job or the gear may be operated by hand. To achieve more streamlining, even the tail wheel is drawn into the body and covered in flight.

INITIAL FINE ASSESSED FOR WRONG SIDE PARKING

The "honor" of being the first man to be fined under the new ordinance which prohibits parking on the wrong side of the street went to Clarence Rhoads, R.F.D. 1. His parked car pointing against the flow of traffic was seen on East Franklin Street by Patrolman Miller Fissell at 5:20 p. m. Monday.

He paid a fine of $2 in Mayor William Cady's court at 7 p. m. Monday. An additional charge of $1 for towing the car from East Franklin Street to the Lutz-Yates garage was also paid by Rhoads.

SHOPLIFTER FINED

WASHINGTON C. H., March 26—Pleading guilty to the charges of shoplifting six dresses, Dorothy Nidy, 19, Hamilton, paid a fine of $50 and costs in police court. The two women and a man who were with her in the store escaped.

They Offer Blood for Poles

DR. Seymour J. Zauderer takes samples of blood from Irene Polaski and Sam Deutscher at the Paderewski Fund headquarters in New York. The two were among volunteers who have offered to sell their blood to help raise funds for Polish relief work.

BODIES OF EIGHT MINERS REMAIN IN BLASTED PIT

NEFFS, O., March 26 — Clean-up squads today expected to reach the bodies of the last eight miners still entombed by the blast that ripped through the Willow Grove mine ten days ago.

The explosion claimed 72 victims, including three would-be rescuers who were fatally gassed when they rushed into the mine after the blast.

Six bodies were taken from the mine yesterday and through the night, but the last were still unidentified. The other five victims were Walter Slater, 29, of Bannock; William Schiller, 38, Neffs; Edwin Patterson, 34, Bellaire; John Demkowicz, 27, Neffs, and Frank Dopkiss, 36, of Maynard.

SPEEDER CITED TO COURT

Donald Edison Lake, 28, Lancaster, was cited to appear in Mayor William Cady's court at 7 p. m. Tuesday to face charges of speeding. He was stopped by Patrolman Charles Mumaw at 2:45 p. m. on East Main Street, as he was driving between 55 and 60 miles per hour.

MANY FORCED TO FLEE HOMES TO ESCAPE FLAMES

CLEVELAND, March 26—Damage was estimated at $10,000 today in a fire which drove more than a score of persons from a two-story business and apartment block in suburban Lakewood.

Bruce Preslan, 24, discovered the fire as he sat in a cafe on the ground floor of the building. He ran upstairs and roused his wife, Florence, 22, and his two brothers, Charles, 18, and Wallace, 16, who were sleeping in the couple's second-floor apartment.

Preslan and his wife managed to escape through the smoke-filled halls, but the two younger brothers were forced to climb out a window to the roof of an adjoining building from which they were rescued by firemen. Mrs. Lillian Folsom, who occupied the other apartment on the second floor, was not at home at the time.

Hundreds of spectators were attracted to the scene as dense smoke drifted over the neighborhood, and street car and automobile traffic on Detroit Avenue was tied up more than an hour. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

Roosevelt Vs. Tobey

President Roosevelt says that Senator Tobey of New Hampshire is the first Senator ever to advise citizens to refuse to obey "the law." Apparently this assertion was supposed to cause the Senator to shrivel and subside, but without waiting to mail a letter he immediately telegraphed the President demanding to know what is "the law."

The forthcoming census proposes to demand the amount and source of your income. These questions have never been asked in any previous census for 150 years. There is no statute which expressly authorizes these particular questions, or requires the citizen to answer them under threat of fine and jail sentence. If the authority exists at all it is implied in the general direction of the statute that "a census of population . . . shall be taken by the Director of the Census," etc.

PETTENGILL

Does the word "population" include "income?" What is the "population" of your pocketbook? If Congress told the census man to count the chickens in your back yard, could he go on from there and demand to open your pocketbook and count the dollars? From his express authority to count human being, does he have the implied authority to demand that they state, under oath, whether they say their prayers before going to bed, or any other intimate and personal matter? Could they, far example, be compelled to state whether they favor a third term for Mr. Roosevelt? How about a census on that? In short, is there any limit at all to the questions the Director of the Census may decide to ask?

The President seems to think there is no limit — whatever is asked is "the law." He defends the income questions on the ground that they may be useful to somebody or other who may wish to sell you refrigerators or curling irons or redistribute your income.

Wholly irrespective of whether the census, in itself, is good or bad Mr. Roosevelt has disclosed a state of mind of importance to 130,000,000 people. To begin with, he begs the question as to what is "the law." Can it be that any question Mr. Harry Hopkins, one-time socialist, may decide to ask is "the law?" If so any decision of any bureaucrat is "the law," and a Senator of the United States is to be held up to public ridicule for daring to tell the citizens that in his opinion it is not "the law."

If a Senator may not question a bureaucrat, who can? Are lawyers from now on to be forbidden to advise clients that a bureaucratic ruling in their opinion is not the "law?" If so, then citizens are to be helpless against any kind of governmental tyranny. For if Senators cannot express their opinion that something is not "the law" why should courts be permitted to do so? Are judges who might agree with Mr. Tobey to be ridiculed also?

Such is the trend and the direction of this defense of the Census. If someone thinks it would be useful to him to know your income, or whether useful or not, the bureaucrat demands it, the citizen and his representative in the United States Senate, and perhaps the judge on the bench, should keep their mouths shut. He is a mangy creature, a pariah of low caste, if he does not go along with what some bureaucrat considers to be the "general welfare."

It comes down to this: The citizen has no rights that the State is bound to respect. Whatever someone thinks would serve the State or some manufacturer of curling irons, the citizen must yield, or else. This is part of this whole socialistic poison which has caused such an epidemic in Washington, D. C. It's logical, and if continued, its only end in this nation is tatalitarian government, a system which holds that the individual as such has no rights which he may assert against the State, which holds that he is but a cell in the totality of government, that the "general welfare" has no limits, that society is everything and the citizen is nothing.

Few things in recent years have been more revealing than the President's defense of Mr. Hopkins' questions.

Before proceeding one single, thoughtless step farther down this "way that leadeth to destruction" let every American pause before committing his children, at least, to the doctrine that has Europe in its iron hand.

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL.

THREE WATCH BURGLAR SHOOT STATION WORKER

COLUMBUS, March 26—With the descriptions furnished by three witnesses to work on, police today sought the bandit who shot and critically wounded Lee Cochenour, 38, filling station attendant, and fled with the day's receipts totaling $120.

The gunman entered the station and without warning shot Cochenour, the bullet just missing his heart and emerging under his left armpit. Only then did he announce "This is a holdup."

Cochenour was reported in "not good" condition at Mt. Carmel hospital.

The bandit then forced his victim and the witnesses, Kenneth Beyerly, manager of the station, and two truck-drivers, Ralph Chapman, Letart Falls, O., and Robert Cleland, Racine, O., into a washroom, rifled the open safe and fled.

Beyerly climbed through a window and called police and an ambulance.

Now we know why Admiral Byrd picked 1940 for his latest expedition to the South Pole — he's going to miss a lot of the presidential campaign hullabaloo.

GOLF MATCH AT GREENSBORO TO RESUME TODAY

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 26 —Twice postponed because of cold and snow, play was to be resumed today in the $5,000 Greensboro Golf tournament if conditions permit.

Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., and Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., tied for the lead with 69s in the first round of the 72-hole tourney.

The annual Asheville tourney, scheduled for Thursday, will be postponed until play is over, or later, it was announced.

REDS WIN; VANDY DOES BETTER AGAINST WINGS

TAMPA, Fla., March 26 — The Cincinnati Reds contented themselves with light workouts today in preparation for tomorrow's game with the New York Giants. The big bats of the Reds swung into action yesterday at West Palm Beach and annihilated the Rochester Red Wings of the International League, 10 to 5. Johnny Vander Meer, double-no-hit wonder of 1938, allowed four hits and walked six men in the five innings he toiled.

FELLER TO PITCH

Gate Of $100,000 Sure For Louis-Paychek Go

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, March 26—If the so-called sports experts were the least bit thin skinned, they might very well feel a measure of chagrin today over the way things are going for the Joe Louis-Johnny Paychek world heavyweight title fight Friday night. Briefly, the customers have been warned in column after column that Paychek can't possibly win and some observers have suggested that he can't even go one round, but in spite of all that a gate of at least $100,000 was assured today, according to Promoter Mike Jacobs' ballyhoo department.

The answer to it all must be that the clients will pay at prices ranging up to $16.50 tops for the mere privilege of seeing Louis land one punch, with the chance of getting a surprise such as they have had on a few occasions. Bob Pastor, Max Schmeling, Tommy Farr and Arturo Godoy all disarranged the advance predictions by refusing to hold still for Louis, and the customers saw a fight in each instance to the limit. Fight may not be the word in two of those cases. Pastor ran and Godoy clowned. But Schmeling knocked Louis out and Farr went the limit in a bruising tussle.

Early Knockout Certain?

However, in each instance Louis made his comeback in his first start after being thus surprised, and because Godoy made him look so bad it seems safe to say that he will be able to shed his characteristic laziness against Paychek, for Louis really is proud and reacts accordingly to criticism. He probably will knock Paychek out before the challenger has a chance to really get into the fight.

Nevertheless nobody seems to be paying the slightest attention to that and everybody apparently is determined to attend if only to see the inevitable, hoping all the time that something will happen which isn't called for in the cut and dried script. Somehow, though, Louis has that appeal which pulls them in, despite the fact that he has made heavyweight defenses almost as commonplace as preliminaries. This will be his 10th title defense and his sixth fight in Madison Square Garden.

We still wonder what the appeal could possibly be in a fight that must end only one way, therefore removing the element of competition.

By way of getting in their final preparation, Louis and Paychek both will conclude their heavy training tomorrow in suburban camps. It might be mentioned that, unless the biggest surprise in recent fistic annals is about to be perpetrated, Paychek has been wasting his time.

WALKER'S FOE TO BEGIN TRAINING AT COLISEUM

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Paul Perroni, who tangles next Monday night with title-holder Jack Buddy Walker, Columbus Negro, for the Ohio heavyweight boxing crown at the Fairgrounds Coliseum, will arrive in Columbus tomorrow to complete his training. The Canton Italian was rated by Joe Louis, world title-holder, as "the smartest boxer I ever met."

BUCKEYE GRID SQUAD TO OPEN SEASON IN 187 DAYS

COLUMBUS, March 26 — Just 187 days before they open their football season against the mighty Pittsburgh Panther, Ohio State's Buckeyes opened their spring practice training sessions today. The six-yeeks practice will end with an intrasquad game May 1.

New Yorkers Deny Farley And Cox Offer For Yankee Franchise

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26—Officials of the St. Louis Cardinals have given holdout Joe Medwick, hard-hitting outfielder, an ultimatum to sign his 1940 contract by tonight or face the possibility of having their $18,000 offer withdrawn.

Following another unsuccessful conference between Branch Rickey, general manager of the Cardinals, and Medwick yesterday, Rickey announced:

"We have reached a stage of temporary finality and this was my last conference with Medwick."

Medwick, however, gave no signs of capitulating from his demands that the $2,000 cut he accepted last year be restored.

NEW YORK, March 26 — Another round of denials from the principals today greeted the latest reports that the New York Yankees were about to be sold.

Posmaster General James A. Farley answered merely "no comment" to reports that he and former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio were negotiating a deal. Cox reported he was "not interested." No immediate comment was obtained from Publisher Joseph Medill Patterson who was reported another prospective purchaser.

President Ed Barrow and Vice President George Ruppert again repated their denials. Byron M. Clark, Jr., the Ruppert attorney and one of the three trustees for the estate, said he hadn't heard anything of the reported negotiations but emphasized any good offer that would help the trustees realize the maximum from the Jacob Ruppert estate wouldn't be sniffed at.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26—Sporting 11 victories in 15 exhibitions, the New York Yankees today began the long journey home from training camp via Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee and Virginia. Two grand slam homers by Arndt Jorgens and Jake Powell helped the Yanks win 12 to 2 over their Kansas City farm team yesterday.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 26 — Winners of the first game, the New York Giants today play their second and concluding spring training season game with the New York Yankees here. Hal Schumaker and Roy Joiner will divide pitching duties. The Giants made two runs in the seventh yesterday to down the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 4. Unable to negotiate a satisfactory salary for himself or trade himself off to another club, Zeke Bonura, holdout first baseman, announced he would go home when the Giants break camp here Thursday.

FLUE OF COAL STOVE BLAMED FOR DAMAGES

George Heater Residence, West Of N. & W. Rails, Scene Of Loss

FIREMEN USE PUMPS

Work Hindered By Lack Of Hose Long Enough To Reach Hydrant

Seven persons were left homeless Monday when a fire that started in the flue of a coal stove virtually destroyed the four room residence of George Heater near York Street west of the Norfolk and Western Railroad tracks.

Firemen who answered the call showed ramarkable efficiency in battling the flames despite the handicap of a hose and water shortage. There was not enough hose to reach the nearest hydrant and the water supply was exhausted when the fire was almost under control.

Quick refilling of the engine's tank while hand pumps were being used, they saved the house from total destruction.

Mrs. Earl Heater and her two month old baby were in the house when the fire broke out. They were given shelter at one of the nearby homes.

Smoke rapidly filled the house and billowed out of the windows and doors. When the firemen arrived demolition seemed inevitable. Neighbors and boys attracted to the fire were busy salvaging as much of the household goods as possible. Furniture was strewn about the ground around the house.

Living in the house were George Heater, his wife, Lu, and their two children; his brother, Earl Heater, and his wife Martha and the baby.

Firemen estimated the damage at approximately $150. The loss was covered by insurance by Hummel and Plum who carried $400 on the house and $100 on the household goods.

The fire department received a call at 10:15 p. m. Monday when wood and paper piled behind a stove at the home of Frank Sawyer, 738 Watt Street, was ignited. The fire was easily extinguished with damage estimated at $5.

THOUSANDS LOST WHEN CRESS FACTORY BURNS

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil M. Cress, 818 South Court Street, have returned home after a week end trip to Troy, O., the former's home city, where the $100,000 novelty factory belonging to his father, H. G. Cress, was destroyed by fire. The fire happened Thursday with loss to run into many thousands.

Mr. Cress said that the cause of blaze has not yet been determined. Part of the loss is covered by insurance, but a large part of it is not, Mr. Cress said.

The fire broke out when 30 employes were at their places. They were removed from danger and the Troy fire department was called. Firemen were hindered by a high wind and the wooden construction of the interior of the building, and the fact that the stock and manufactured goods in the building were highly inflammable.

Only the walls of the two-story brick building were left standing.

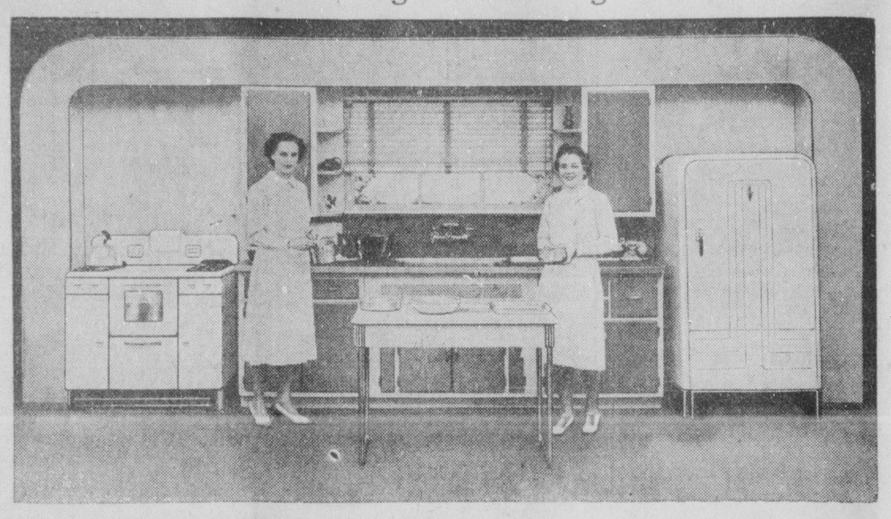
Loss included $25,000 in finished products, about $40,000 in raw material and other stock and the remaining damage to the building.

The Cress Co. manufactures educational novelties and toys.

Mr. and Mrs. Cress left Circleville Thursday after school for a week end vilst in Troy. When they reached Troy they did not know that the factory had burned.

The "kick" or recoil of a modern sporting rifle is powerful enough to break the shoulder of the shooter unless he assumes a free-standing position.

Attractive Setting For Cooking School



ABOVE is pictured the lovely model all-gas kitchen as it will appear on the stage of Memorial Hall tomorrow when the curtain rises on the first session of the 1940 Cooking School. The kitchen is built in units which, when assembled together, make a complete modern kitchen of latest design and equipment. These smaller units are moved from town to town in a modern streamlined trailer.

Congress. In the twelve years he has held his seat he has never made a campaign speech . . . You can be sure that if Secretary Morgenthau is required to express an opinion on the plan of Senator Townsend to stop purchase of foreign silver, he will oppose it.

McNUTT INCOME TAXES

The McNutt income tax investiproblem of smoking out big, jovial Bowman ("Bo") Elder, ex-treasurer of the American Legion and finance man for the McNutt forces in Indiana.

Elder was the man who received the funds from the Two Per Cent Club (by which state employees gave the party 2 per cent of their salary), and he also knew —or the Treasury thinks he knew --where these funds were disbursed.

It is the claim of the McNutt group that wihle large funds were received, they were all paid out for political purposes, and for this reason no income taxes were payable. In fact, McNutt himself, then a state employee, did not even file an income tax return.

However, the Treasury insists on getting details on how the funds were psent and Bo Elder is the key to this puzzle. They are waiting for him to talk, and he, in turn, says he will not be made the scapegoat.

Meanwhile, McNutt forces, jittery over delay and anxious to push the campaign of their candidate, demand that the Treasury either exonerate or indict. A break in the present impasse is coming soon.

NOTE—"Tuck" Stanley, McNutt's discouraged publicity expert, has resigned.

BORAH STATUE

The State of Idaho plans to enshrine the memory of its late great Senator William E. Borah under the lofty dome of the National Capitol, where he served for more than 30 years.

The State will fill its quota of statues in Statuary Hall (the original chamber of the House of Representatives, where each state is allowed to place two statues). The sculptor has not yet been chosen.

Borah will be the second Senator selected by Idaho for this honor. Its other statue is that of Senator George L. Shoup, a pioneer who was the first Governor of Idaho when the territory was admitted to statehood in July, 1890. The Shoup statue is the tallest in Statuary Hall, standing 13 feet.

NOTE—Mrs. Borah, accompanied by one of her sisters, soon will sail for Hawaii for a rest. Her plans after returning are indefinite; she is still undecided whether to reside in Washington or go back to Idaho.

CONGRESSMAN'S COSTS

It's an old Capitol Hill axiom that you can get a Congressman to talk about almost anything but the size of his bankroll. He'll orate at great length about the way the taxpayer's money is being squandered, but ask him how much of it he himself has managed to salt away during his years on the public payroll, and you've got a speechless Congressman.

One exception to this rule is lanky, tobacco-chewing Bob Secrest of Ohio. When he announced his candidacy for reelection for a fifth term the other day, Secrest accompanied the statement with an itemized account of his personal financial affairs. A public official, he told his constituents, is not entitled to privacy regarding his personal wealth, "for by this means the public can best measure his honesty in office."

"I have drawn $10,000 a year in my eight years in Congress," reported Secrest, "yet though I live as always did before, I have saved only $9,000, chiefly in insurance and realty. On the other hand, I owe $4,200. Four campaigns have taken thousands of dollars of my salary.

"In addition, income tax on my salary has been over $2,000, my telephone bills have cost me more than $5,000, chiefly long distance calls to help individuals and communities in my district. In my first five years in Washington, I spent $4,000 for transportation, over and above my mileage allowance, and have worn out five new cars.

"Further, several thousand dollars have gone for charity to individuals and worthy organizations in my district. That's the record. As long as I am in Congress I feel that the people are entitled to know where my money goes and what I own."

Midgets living in New York buy their clothes from a special shop for midgets; others patronize the children's departments of stores.

NO ALLIED SHIPS SENT DOWN IN MARCH 24 WEEK

LONDON, March 26—During the week ending March 24 not a single British or allied merchant ship was sunk, the admiralty announced today.

It was the first week that British or Allied merchantmen have escaped totally unharmed from German submarines, mines and aerial attacks since the war began.

Eight neutral vessels were sunk, however, but none of these was convoyed when attacked, the announcement stated, adding that two German vessels had been torpedoed by British submarines.

ELECTION YEAR WINS INTEREST

Londoners Watch Result Of Ballot In America; F. D. R. Favored

LONDON, March 26 — This is an election year in England, but the British will not be able to vote. The Americans will cast the ballots.

This briefly gives a picture of the intense interest with which the English are following developments in the Presidential campaign.

The man-in-the-street in London already has his candidate — Franklin D. Roosevelt. The third-term issue is only vaguely understood, but all are aware that there is some doubt whether or not Roosevelt will run.

Americans living abroad are constantly being button-holed by acquaintances and eagerly asked if Roosevelt will be a candidate, and, if so, what are his chances.

Roosevelt's popularity in Great Britain is based on his several peace appeals and on the widespread conviction that he is a friend of the Allies.

It is also true that little is known of the other candidates. McNutt, Garner, Dewey, Vandenberg, and Taft are merely names to the average Englishman.

Enthusiastically Applauded

No public figure, for example, is greeted with such enthusiastic applause in the news reels as is President Roosevelt. It is equal in volume to the hissing and bronx cheers with which Hitler is recevied.

Few people seriously believe that Roosevelt's reelection would eventually mean American intervention in the war, but they prefer candidacy of a man whose policies are know to be sympathetic to one whose views have not been defined.

Even before the war Roosevelt's magnetic personality had captured the public imagination as no other British leader except, perhaps, Winston Churchill. The two previous American presidents, Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover, seem to have lacked this appeal.

But, whatever the outcome of the election, it is certain to be fought on paper, at least, as fiercely in Great Britain as in America.

BOGGS REPORTS NEW FACTS FOR TOBACCO FARMS

Burley tobacco growers can now plant smaller crops in 1941 and in later years without affecting the size of their future AAA allotments or quotas, John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway County AAA Committee, announced this week.

A producer who grows less tobacco than his 1941 allotment is eligible to receive an allotment in the following year based on the past allotment rather than the planted acreage.

Under the new provision, if a producer grows as much as half of his 1940 allotment, his allotment for 1941 and later years will be determined just as though an acreage as large as the allotment had been grown in 1940. Likewise, if less than half of the allotment is grown on any farm in 1940, the allotment for 1941 and later years will be determined as though one-half of the 1940 allotment had been grown. "In view of existing tobacco surpluses and prospects for relatively low prices, some farmers would prefer to plant a smaller acreage of tobacco than their allotment calls for," the chairman explained. "At recent conferences, growers agreed that the supply of Burley now on hand is so large that it would be helpful if the acreage of tobacco grown in 1940 would be less than the acreage allotted for this year, he said.

The 1939 Burley tobacco crop was estimated at 365 million pounds when the quota was proclaimed in November, 1939, the chairman pointed out, while more recent estimates place the crop at approximately 390 million pounds, or 60 million pounds in excess of estimated world consumption of Burley tobacco for the year 1940.

The speed demon, says Zadok Dumbkopf, who can't wait until he gets where he is going often doesn't know it when he arrives—because it's just around the corner.

THREE BOYS FLEE

LANCASTER, March 26—Sentenced to the Boys Industrial School at Lancaster for automobile thefts, three youths escaped in the institution's mail truck, George Lamb, assistant superintendent, reported. The three boys are Jack Richard, 17, Toledo; Robert Knaus, 15, Cleveland, and Charles Ash, 17, Lawrence County.
